'BETRAYERS OF PUBLIC TRUST' ATTACKED AS STATE OPENS ARGUMENT IN PRICE TRIAL

J. W. Simmons Defeats George for Fulton Clerk

FORMER SCHOOL LEADER IS VICTOR BY 516 MAJORITY

Simmons Receives More Ballots Than All Three of His Opponents in Contest Combined.

BATTLE IN COURTS CONSIDERED LIKELY

Opposition Claimed Before Election That He Was Disqualified for Non-Payment of Taxes.

BY HERMAN D. HANCOCK.

J. Walton Simmons, former superintendent of Fulton county schools and runner up in the race for clerk of Fulton county superior court half a dozen years ago, Wednesday was elected clerk over James M. George, incumbent pro tem., and two other candidates by a plurality of 603 votes, according to compilations by The Constitution.

His majority over the entire field in the four-cornered contest was 516.

Of the 11,013 votes polled Simmons mustered 5,779, while George got 5,176. R. J. Davidson, third entrant, had only 64, while Robert E. Church, the other contestant, ran a poor fourth, with 23 votes out of the 37 precincts.

Court Battle Seen.

Selection of Simmons was regarded as the signal for a court battle over the position of the late Thomas Miller in view of the fact that the George camp has claimed for several days that Simmons was not a qualified candidate because, they alleged, he had not paid his taxes for the past six years.

None of the George faction Wednesday night would make any statement, but before the election, headquarters for George cited a legal opinion bearing the indorsement of leading Atlanta attorneys setting out that if Simmons had failed to pay his taxes, he was not entitled to make the race.

Vote by Precincts.

Simmons led in 24 of the 37 precincts throughout the county while the remaining 13 fell into the George column.

George got seven of the precincts in the borough of Atlanta proper, and Simmons had the other 15.

In the county, outside the borough of Atlanta, Simmons had nine of the boxes and George half a dozen.

Simmons took the following precincts in Atlanta:

Two "B," three "A" and "B," four "B" by one vote, getting 68 while George got 67, five "A" and "B," six "B," seven "A" and "B," eight "B," nine "B,"ten "A," "B" and "C," eleven. In addition he got Hapeville and College Park.

George carried the following precincts in Atlanta:

First ward by one vote, obtaining 14 while Simmons got 13; two "A," four "A," six "A," eight "A," nine "A," thirteen. He got East Point.

A feature of the race was that three of the boxes were won by only one vote. Simmons won Peachtree district by a vote of 23 to 22, and four "B" by the same majority, while George added the first ward in Atlanta by a margin of one vote.

In addition Simmons took Center Hill, Collins, Cook's, Poole's, Grogan's and South Bend, while George annexed Adamsville, Black Hall, Bryant's, Buckhead and Oak Grove, all of which are county precincts and not in incorporated boroughs.

Simmons' Statement.

Mr. Simmons issued the following statement concerning his victory:

"I desire to express my very deep appreciation for the magnificent vote of confidence I received today at the hands of my fellow citizens. I desire also to express to my immediate coworkers my appreciation of their fine work, their complete loyalty and their entire unselfishness.

"I have in my heart no trace of bitterness for those who saw fit to oppose me in this race. I had the pleasure of serving with the deputies of Miller for more than a year in the office of clerk of court, and among this number are some of my warmest friends. For them I wish the very best.

"It is my purpose when I assume my duties as clerk of the superior court to retain the personnel of this office for some time—perhaps to retain some of them permanently, and to work my associates into this organization gradually, and as they have had the opportunity to become acquainted with the details of this office.

"The work of the courts will proceed smoothly and harmoniously."

Georgia Is Painted As 'Dripping Wet'

Liggett, in Latest Expose of Prohibition Conditions, Charges That Augusta is the "Wettest City in America."

Georgia, a dry state since 1908 with large sections dry under local option since the eighties, has learned to drink again under the tutelage of its corn-raising farmers, who soon after 1920 saw the error of trying to grow cotton, and now can boast in Augusta the wettest city in America, judged by arrests for drunkenness, at any period in history, Walter W. Liggett declares in the latest of his exposes on prohibition in the May issue of Plain Talk.

Mr. Liggett, who has uncovered dripping wet conditions in Washington, Boston, Michigan, Kansas and Minnesota, claims that Georgia is in the same saturated situation with the exception that all the liquor is made from corn, is considerably cheaper than in other sections and is distributed with amazingly little bribery. While, in Mr. Liggett's opinion, the majority of Georgians are wet in practice, the churches, Baptist and Methodist, he says, are in the political saddle and are using prohibition to keep themselves seated. They never oppose a man who drinks, he found, as long as he votes their way.

The Plain Talk investigator made his survey of Georgia subsequent to his appearance before the house committee which held hearings on prohibition to present in detail his findings in other sections. Grand juries in Washington and Boston have also requested his testimony on conditions in those cities. In Michigan his charges led to a shake-up of dry forces and to considerable political turmoil. In Kansas a motion to censure him as a liar was defeated by the lower house of the legislature by a vote of 81 to 25. The personnel of dry forces in that state also underwent considerable change following his assertion that they were being utilized more for political purposes than for enforcement.

Still Seizures.

Mr. Liggett bases his charges in Plain Talk of increased drinking in Georgia since 1919 on the official figures of stills seized and arrests for bootlegging, drunkenness, etc. "Last year," he found, "counting fermenters, there were approximately 30,000 seizures of stills or parts of stills. Hardly a week passes without at least one being captured in every one of the 161 counties of Georgia. But the moonshiners are not discouraged and the supply of liquor does not dwindle. Corn liquor is easily and speedily obtainable in every small town and every city in the state. You can purchase it by the pint, the quart, in five-gallon cans, or ten-gallon kegs. It can be bought as low as $2 a gallon if the purchaser will drive out to the moonshiner. The supply is inexhaustible.

"Augusta, next to Savannah the oldest city in Georgia," continues Mr. Liggett in Plain Talk, "now has about 65,000 population with a tradition of drinking from the old planter days. Before prohibition it had 90 saloons. What are conditions today after 22 years of prohibition—ten of which have been under federal as well as state laws? In 1929 613 persons were arrested for violations of the liquor laws. This would indicate that there is more than one bootlegger for every 100 persons in Augusta. Also the total number of arrests for drunkenness in 1929 was 3,047 and that means that one out of every 22 persons was arrested for intoxication. This amazing record cannot be duplicated by any other city in the United States."

Arrests in Athens.

In Athens, a town of 30,000 and the educational center of Georgia, there were in 1929, says the Plain Talk investigator, 265 persons arrested for being drunk, 189 for being drunk and disorderly, and 38 for driving while drunk. The total of 492 arrests for intoxication gives this college town the unenviable distinction of having one out of every 40 persons arrested for intoxication. Its drunkenness rate is 246 per 10,000. There wasn't a single big industrial city in the United States that had such a high percentage of arrests for drunkenness back in the days of the open saloon. Before 1908 Athens used the dispensary system and there were 50 per cent fewer arrests for intoxication there than there are today.

In Atlanta, the capital and largest city of Georgia, says Mr. Liggett, an authoritative and complete record of arrests for drunkenness reveals that drinking has more than doubled since the federal prohibition law went into effect. "In 1919," his artice reads, "Atlanta had a population of 200,616 and there were 3,136 arrests for drunkenness. That made 156 arrests for every 10,000 population.

"In 1929, just ten years after the dry law went into effect, Atlanta had

PROBE OF CHURCH 'LOBBY' PRACTICES URGED BY TINKHAM

Massachusetts Congressman Hits Political Activities of Two Religious Organizations.

BY JAMES W. DOUTHAT,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(AP)—An appeal to "unmask the indefensible political activities" of the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals and the Federal Council of Churches was made today before the senate lobby committee by Representative Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts.

Speaking in a conversational tone Tinkham charged that the two organizations by political activities have "set aside entirely" the principle of separation of church and state. The remarks of the heavily bearded representative were attentively received.

"I believe that this committee can render no greater public service," he said, "than to do its part toward a public exposure of the practices of these organizations, in violation of the principle of the separation of church and state, so that their church constituencies, as well as the public at large may be informed and so condemn such practices."

After charging the Methodist board with violating the federal corrupt practices act by failure to report expenditures for political purposes, Tinkham was excused until tomorrow. Then he will give the committee his evidence against the Federal Council of Churches.

Chance to Reply.

Chairway Caraway, of the committee, announced that both organizations would be given an opportunity to reply to Tinkham after he completes his testimony. He said they had expressed a desire to appear if Tinkham made any charges they thought should be answered.

Meanwhile, the committee subpoenaed the records of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment and summoned Henry H. Curran, president of the association, to appear next Tuesday.

In taking this action Caraway said a committee investigator, who had gone to New York, had been denied permission to obtain the records, which made a subpoena necessary.

Curran denied last night that permission had been refused but indicated that personal records would have to be subpoenaed. He said today he would appear Tuesday.

The committee will attempt to ascertain the methods employed by the association in opposing the prohibition law and the amount of money expended. John J. Raskob, chairman of the democratic national committee, has testified he contributed $65,000.

No Report.

Tinkham charged that the Methodist board had engaged in political activities in the 1928 presidential election and had failed to file a report of its expenditures with the clerk of the house of representatives, as required by law.

He read a statement attributed to Dr. Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the organization, which said:

"We have no apology to make to anyone because we used all the energy at our command in bringing about the election of Herbert Hoover as president and Charles Curtis as vice president."

Tinkham also presented to the committee a copy of a report made by Deets Pickett, research secretary of the board, which said the board "circulated enormous quantities of Al Smith's record, a detailed account of the governor's attitude toward the prohibition law and liquor restriction since his early days of political activity."

Sunday School Annex of Decatur Church Destroyed by Fire; Damage Put at $40,000

Fire originating in a row of garages behind an apartment house adjoining the First Methodist Church of Decatur practically destroyed the Sunday school annex of the church and caused damage estimated by church officials at $40,000.

The fire broke out in a row of garages belonging to the Columbus Court apartments on Ponce de Leon avenue, which are owned by Eugene Allen, of Decatur. These garages also were destroyed by the flames, which were fought by firemen of Decatur and Atlanta for an hour and a half.

The church, which faces on Sycamore street, was saved by the firemen after it seemed that the flames would sweep to it from the Sunday school wing. The church itself was built 30 years ago and the annex, which was constructed of stone to match that of the church, was erected about eight years ago.

The congregation is one of the largest in the suburbs of Atlanta, drawing a large membership from the faculty and student body of Emory University and Agnes Scott college.

Dr. Horace Smith is pastor of the church and has been conducting a revival series. Due to the fact that the fire caused some inconvenience, there was no service Wednesday night, but the revival will be continued and the service for today will begin tonight at 8 o'clock as usual, it was announced.

An automobile and five bicycles were destroyed in the garages before the church caught fire. There were eight units to the garage section.

:: VALUE PUT AT $120,000,000 BY DR. C. S. PIGGOT ::

There is sufficient radium in the visible portion of Stone mountain to more than cover the cost of completing the Stone Mountain memorial, according to C. S. Piggot, of the Carnegie Geophysical laboratory, Washington, D. C., who addressed the Analytical division of the American Chemical Society here Wednesday afternoon.

Dr. Piggot's estimate of the quantity of the precious metal in the huge granite block is approximately 1,700 grams, which, figured at current prices of $70,000 a gram, would give a total value of some $120,000,000.

"I knew somebody would ask me that specific question," he explained, "so I estimated the figure to be prepared." Underneath the figure in small writing the words "try and get it," which he laughingly explained had been added to his manuscript by one of the men in the laboratory.

"I am not trying to start a radium rush on the mountain," he explained in his talk, "but merely to show that there is considerable heat being generated within rock masses of the earth and that it might be sufficient to furnish the heat of fusion for rock underlying the earth's crust in the 40 or 50 million years which some have assigned to the geologic cycles which are known to have occurred."

Granite Contains Radium.

It was brought out that practically all granite which he had examined had contained evidences of radium content but that the Stone mountain samples had run higher than any of the others.

His paper had added significance in the view of recent publications regarding the radio-active springs around the base of the mountain. J. A. Hootman, of the Emory physics department, who was present at the Wednesday meeting, pointed out that while his computations regarding the springs were not at any great variance with Dr. Piggot's figures, he did not think that the radium content demonstrated was sufficient to account for the radio-activity of the water in the vicinity.

The value of the whole takes on really astounding figures when it is

HOWARD DERIDES CITY PURCHASER'S DEFENSE APPEAL

JURY TO GET CASE DURING AFTERNOON

Three Arguments, Two for Defense and One for State, Scheduled for This Morning.

In a scathing denunciation of "betrayers of the public trust," Special Prosecutor William Schley Howard Wednesday night opened argument for the state in the trial of William P. Price, city purchasing agent and defendant under an indictment charging him, ex-Councilman Harry York and Jack White, a broker, with defrauding the city. Howard ridiculed the unsworn defense statement by Price that "I am a victim of circumstances."

With three arguments scheduled for this morning, the jury will receive the case between 12:30 and 1 o'clock this afternoon, following a charge by Judge John D. Humphries, of Fulton superior court. Defense Attorneys Frank Hooper, Sr., and W. B. Hollingsworth will divide two hours between them. Solicitor-General John A. Boykin will deliver the concluding argument, for the state.

Mr. Howard, in an hour's speech to the jury, exhibited masterful gifts or sarcasm and irony. "Ah! Gentlemen of the jury. The mighty have fallen!" he declared. "Six months ago, before the strong arm of the law, through the instumentality of the able and distinguished solicitor-general of this circuit, stepped in and brought about his downfall, where was the man who had more influence than this man Jack White!"

"The mighty have fallen! And they have no friends now. Yet six months ago they were reaping in the money in the most unconscionable scheme of graft in the history of the city. And William P. Price could have stopped it in two minutes," he asserted.

Mayor Warned Price.

"When that damnable thing called the Southeastern Brokerage Company was being formed in 1928, the mayor of the city called Price into his office and said, 'I hear rumblings about Jack White and a councilman being hooped up, and I warn you now to have no dealings with those people.'

Mr. Howard prefaced his address with a description of the city of Atlanta as a great corporation with 300,000 stockholders electing a board of directors every two years.

"That board of directors, the aldermanic board and the council, elects the heads of departments and delegates certain powers and supervision to them," he said. "Where does tax money come from? It comes from the millionaire—from the little home

NEGRO IS RUSHED TO FULTON TOWER

Suspect in Attempted Criminal Assault in LaGrange Is Brought to Atlanta by Sheriff.

Mob violence, anticipated at LaGrange Wednesday night, threatening a call of national guardsmen from Atlanta, was averted late in the afternoon when Sheriff H. N. Brady and an armed escort secretly rushed Leonard Philpot, 49-year-old negro charged with attempted criminal assault against two white women, to Fulton tower.

Civil authorities of LaGrange and Troup county Wednesday morning called Governor L. G. Hardman and asked national guard protection. High excitement was reported following arrest of the negro and seven others Sunday and Monday.

Officials Go To LaGrange.

Adjutant General Homer C. Barker and Colonel Arthur McCullum, of the state staff, left immediately for LaGrange for a personal investigation of conditions before taking action. They found the town quiet but serious trouble anticipated by authorities if the negro, charged with the attempt, was kept in LaGrange over night.

Arrangements were made for his transfer to Atlanta for safekeeping. Three cars carrying an armed escort of a dozen men took the negro from the jail and started him toward Atlanta.

At Newnan they were met by another car containing deputy sheriffs of Fulton county, who accompanied them to Fulton tower.

Pending developments companies E, F and H of the 122nd infantry, the latter a machine gun company, were assembled at their armory and kept in readiness to answer a hurry call. They were under the command of Major Thomas L. Alexander, commanding officer of the second battalion.

AMERICAN FREED BY MEXIC BANDITS

Oil Man Delivered to Son After Payment of Ransom Money.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., April 9. (AP)—Exhausted from a month of privation and terror in the hands of Mexican bandits, J. E. Bristow, American oil man, was released by his kidnapers today in the mountains near Ahuacatlan, Nayarit, after payment of ransom by his son, Obie Bristow.

Details of the delivery, reported both in official and private advices, were given tonight in a copyrighted dispatch to the Daily Oklahoman from Merle Blakely, staff writer.

Blakely joined Obie Bristow in Mazatlan two weeks ago and was in the party of three Americans who carried the ransom money to the mountain village of Ahuacatlan, where final arrangements for the elder Bristow's release were effected.

The long weeks of anxious waiting were climaxed by the meeting between father and son, who had hurried to Mexico when news of the capture became known.

The exact amount of the ransom has not been made public.

"Let mother know I am well," were the father's first words when he was greeted by his son. Mrs. Bristow is in San Angelo, Texas, where her husband had been engaged in the oil business. The family formerly lived in Oklahoma.

As the oil man embraced his son, in the presence of Blakely and E. W. Eaton, American consul at Mazatlan, he said he did not know until last Friday that any effort was being made to rescue him. "I thought perhaps you believed me dead," he added.

Bristow was worn from his long captivity and his face was covered with a heavy growth of graying beard. He had been held since March 10, most of the time in the subcrater of an extinct volcano near Ahuacatlan, where the bandits camped.

The place was a natural fortress against the Mexican federal troops which pursued the outlaws.

HooverMakesMayDay Health Event for Kids

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(AP)—May Day was proclaimed as child health day by President Hoover tonight, with the reminder that "we shall fall short of our highest aspirations if we fail to practice all that science can give in service of our fundamental asset—our children."

The president called upon all people and all agencies interested in boys and girls "to assist every reasonable effort of their communities to make this a day for organizing and coordinating interest in child health."

Shot by Prohibition Agent, Youth Dies

WILMINGTON, N. C., April 9.—(AP)—Roy Gurganious, young man of Onslow county, who was shot today by Federal Prohibition Agent S. K. Hughes, died tonight in a Wilmington hospital.

Gurganious was shot as he was fleeing from a still, officers said. Hughes reported the shooting was accidental. He said his gun was fired as he stumbled while pursuing Gurganious.

News Scribes Conduct Trial Of 2-Way Television Confab

:: FIND EVERYTHING PRESENT BUT PERSON'S "SMELL" ::

BY H. ALLEN SMITH,
United News Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, April 9.—(UN)—Two groups of New York newspapermen, separated by three miles of skyscrapers and speakeasies, talked shop, watched each other blush and observed one another's sheepish grins by television this afternoon.

In the first public demonstration of two-way television, the Bell Telephone laboratories stationed the two groups of reporters in two different buildings. One group gathered at the American Telephone & Telegraph Company building on lower Broadway, while the others met at the laboratory building three miles uptown on West street.

One of the company engineers ushered this correspondent into a little reception room where an attractive young lady sat at a desk.

"Mr. Smith wishes to talk to Mr. Butterfield, of the Associated Press," the engineer told the girl. "Will you put in the call?"

She escorted the reporter into the booth, which is somewhat larger than one of those old-fashioned sound-without-sight booths.

Sitting down in the chair, the reporter faced a small plate of glass, upon which were the words "Ikonophone—watch this space for television image."

In a few seconds, there came a buzzing sound and Mr. Butterfield grinned out from the glass. The only thing that was wrong with Mr. Butterfield was that he flickered, something like the flicker on a movie screen when the projection machine goes haywire.

"Hello, Mr. Smith," said Mr. Butterfield, opening the conversation.

"Well, hello there, Mr. Butterfield, you're certainly looking fine."

Mr. Butterfield grinned.

"This is certainly a great invention," ventured Mr. Butterfield, still struggling to keep the conversation out of the doldrums.

"Say," your correspondent asked, "have you got a good-looking operator up at your end?"

"Oh boy!" exclaimed Mr. Butterfield over a distance of three miles, "you ought to see her!"

"Oh, I don't know," your correspondent argued, "this blonde we got down here is not so bad. Call your girl up to the phone and let's have a look at her."

"No," said Mr. Butterfield, "we're talked our time up already. Well, I'm certainly glad to have met you, Mr. Smith. I'm sure I'd know you if I met up with you on the street."

"Same to you, Mr. Butterfield," this correspondent replied, bowing, "and if I don't see you sooner, I'll have a talk with you when the time comes that they have perfected this thing so I can smell you. Happy days!"

"See you in the funny papers," said Mr. Butterfield, snickering. And so it ended.

Frank B. Jewett, president of the Bell telephone laboratories, said the distance offers no obstacle in the progress of two-way television. The hook-up today might just as well have been 2,000 miles instead of three, he said.

8 HIGHWAY PROJECTS WILL COST $1,000,000

Bids Will Be Advertised and Submitted April 22; Quarries May Be Leased.

Eight projects on which bids will be advertised to be submitted April 22, and whose total cost is estimated at $1,000,000, were announced Wednesday by J. W. Barnett, state highway board chairman.

The highway chairman also announced that negotiations are in progress looking to the leasing of the state-owned and operated quarries at Oglesby, near Elberton, to private concerns. Captain Barnett will visit the quarries this morning.

The quarries were purchased by the state a number of years ago. With original outlay and equipment, they represent an investment of about $200,000, and in the past few years have supplied a large part of the crushed stone used in road construction.

Captain Barnett said it might be to the best interests of the department to lease them. In such case, he said, they would be operated as a private enterprise.

The projects on which bids will be received April 22 are:

Wayne-Long counties—Nine bridges on what is locally known as the Jesup-Ludowici road.

Paulding county—8.761 miles of grading and top soil and one bridge on the Dallas-Cedartown road, beginning at Dallas and ending at the Paulding-Polk county line.

Madison-Franklin counties — Two bridges over the Hundson and Broad rivers, on the Danielsville-Royston road.

Brantlep county—4.610 miles of paving and one steel bridge on the Waycross-Brunswick road, beginning at the Ware county line and ending at Hoboken.

Barrow-Oconee counties — 10.897 miles of grading on the Winder-Athens road, beginning at Winder and ending at Bogart.

Negro Who Escaped From Gang Gives Up

One of two negro prisoners who made a break for liberty Monday afternoon under fire from a West Side camp guard surrendered, while the other is being sought with a $50 reward on his head, according to A. A. Clarke, Fulton county superintendent of public works.

Will Jones, a "lifer," and J. T. Johnson, serving seven years on misdemeanor charges, dashed into nearby woods at sundown Monday as the trucks were being loaded preparatory to the return trip to camp, Clarke said. A guard fired at the men three times, but missed. Johnson's mother persuaded him to return to the camp, and, because of his voluntary return after having been away overnight, he will not be punished, it was stated.

Tiny Cemetery, Unused for Generation, To Make Way for Commerce's March

Old family cemetery of the late Jesse Wood, which is soon to be cleared of its remaining graves, to make way for the advance of the city's growth. Although located in an area built up with large structures and important traffic arteries, the cemetery is hidden from view of passersby by a close-grown thicket. Preparatory to removal of the cemetery, "census takers" have been listing the population of the dead, as indicated in the picture by the steel rods, with tags bearing the family name at each grave.

A stone's throw from the noise and confusion of Spring street traffic, obscured from the vision of the passerby and known to only a handful of Atlantans, is a cemetery.

Unused for more than a generation and all but completely forgotten, this little village of the dead has come forth to seek the living.

The strange situation has been brought about by no feeling of spiritual unrest or any of the queer motives that sometimes form the basis for stories of fiction dealing with the spirit world. The population of the forgotten acre, which is situated about 300 feet diagonally away from the northwest corner of Spring and Sixteenth streets, consists of members of sturdy pioneer Georgia families, whose earthly abodes in some cases date back nearly a century.

The cemetery is to be abandoned. New resting places are to be given to those who repose there and their nearest living kin must be found. Formerly a portion of a large plantation dedicated for the burial ground of those who died on the plantation and neighboring farms and located far from the outskirts of Atlanta, the cemetery now has been overtaken by the growth of a flourishing metropolis and become an anomaly in the midst of speeding traffic and rising structures for residential, educational and other requirements of a large living population.

Task of Finding Kin.

But, because the dead can lend little aid beyond names and dates, and nearly all of these have vanished, the task of finding the living kin has become a perplexing problem for the owners of the property on which the old cemetery is located.

Traditional reverence of the living for their departed, supported by what is said by those familiar with the laws of the land, requires that relatives of the deceased shall be consulted when the remains are to be disinterred for removal to a more appropriate resting place.

So the work of tracing family trees, from the ancestors to the descendants, unlike the usual order of from the living to their ancestors, has been launched. It is being carried on under auspices of the Atlantic Steel Company, present-day owners of the tract of land embracing the cemetery, assisted by persons retaining knowledge of the old-time farmers of this district.

The cemetery was originally the private burial ground of Jesse Wood, pioneer member of a well-known Georgia family. In 1843 he had acquired Land Lot 108 in the seventeenth district, and adjoining parcels, amounting to more than 300 acres and containing the site of the cemetery. Incidentally, he had paid $700 for it to Hiram H. Embry. A portion of this land was sold recently to the Atlantic Steel Company for more than $150,000. The land lot had been granted by the state in 1822 to David Wall, Atlanta Title & Trust Company records reveal.

The first step in providing for removal of the graves was to take a "census" of population in the old cemetery. Alongside of each grave has been planted an iron rod bearing a tag on which is written the family name of the grave's occupant, where it is known, and occasionally the full name of the deceased. Among the names to be seen on the rows of tags are those of such old Georgia families as Jenkins, Crawford, Barnwell, Finnely, Carr, Johns, Tallison and Murry. A number of the tags bear the inscription "Unknown," while others are marked "Orphan Home Children."

Used by Other Families.

The cemetery, belonging to the Wood family, was used by many neighboring families as well as the Wood descendants. About 20 or 25 years ago, the Woods removed their deceased to permanent graves in West View and Oakland cemeteries, Judge Jesse M. Wood, prominent grandson of the founder of the cemetery, explained, when asked about the preparations being made. Before long it is expected that new tombstones and graves located in permanent cemeteries will replace the present abodes marked by unshaped granite slabs bearing no names or inscriptions except in one or two isolated cases.

Aside from tracing the families of the dead, permission from the board of health and state and city officials is to be sought by those undertaking the clearing of the site. Approximately 100 graves appear to have been tagged by the "census taker."

Because of the maze of legal restrictions and physical obstacles involved in the removal of a cemetery, the deeds by which the cemetery property was transferred by the Wood family to the Trust Company of Georgia, which acquired it for the steel company, are shown by the Atlanta Title & Trust Company records to contain this provision: "The party of the first part (the Wood heirs) assumes no responsibility for removal of any bodies or interments from said land and warrants title to same only as against himself and parties claiming under or through him."

Wood Died in 1882.

Jesse Wood died in 1882 and his will bore witness to the existence of the old cemetery, as shown in the old files of the title company: "First, I desire that my body be buried in the family burying ground in such manner as my family directs." A subsequent section of the will provides that the plantation was sold at auction and the receipts divided among the heirs.

Members of Mr. Wood's family at the time of his death were listed as Moses Wood and John N. Wood, sons and executors; Mrs. Helena Wood, widow; Elizabeth Ann Cheshire, daughter, and William J. Wood, Elias H. Wood and Thomas Wood, sons, all of Fulton county; Adeline Norton, daughter, of Alabama; and Amanda E. March and Lucy J. Bonner, daughters, of Carroll county, Ga. Of these, the Rev. Elias Hinton Wood, of Buckhead, and Mrs. Bonner, still survive, according to Judge Jesse M. Wood. Judge Wood's residence at 1261 Spring street is on a portion of the original plantation and not far from the old cemetery that will soon be only a memory.

Isabelle Yalkovsky To Play Here Tonight

Isabelle Yalkovsky, pianist, will be presented in concert at 8:30 o'clock tonight by the Atlanta Schubert Memorial committee, Clark Foreman, chairman, at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium. Miss Yalkovsky comes as the third artist presented this season by the Schubert Memorial and with such artists as Muriel Kurr and Sadah Schuchari preceding her, tonight's concert promises a climax of artistry. For a pianist barely out of her teens she has a phenomenally large repertoire of very wide scope. In a short space of a year Miss Yalkovsky has leaped to the foreground of American concert life, this being her first year in the concert work. Her dazzling technique, power and brilliance will be displayed tonight in a program of rare beauty, including works of Brahms, Chopin, Beethoven, Debussy, Rachmaninoff, Dohnanyi, Moussorgsky.

There will be no reserved seats. Tickets may be purchased at Phillips & Crew Piano Company during the day, and at the club box office after 7 o'clock. A student ticket is offered to those purchasing in blocks of ten for 50 cents.

PHYSICIAN KILLS SELF AND NURSE-SECRETARY

Apparent Despondency Over Scant Practice Said Reason for Act.

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP)—Apparently despondent over his failure to build up a lucrative practice, Maxwell Adlerberg, 30-year-old medical school graduate, is believed to have shot his youthful nurse-secretary early today and then turned the pistol upon himself.

The bodies of Adlerberg, who practiced under the name of Dr. Maxwell Beverley Allen, and the nurse, identified as Miss Florence La Pelle, 20, were found in the physician's office-apartment in fashionable Sutton place when an operator reported she received no answer to his telephone signal light.

Miss La Pelle had been shot three times through the throat and Dr. Adlerberg had a bullet wound in his right temple. The telephone stand had been overturned.

Dr. Adlerberg was graduated from New York Medical college three years ago and then served as an interne at Bellevue hospital. He opened his Sutton place office eight months ago. Police believe that he did not find his location among the wealthy families profitable. There were a large number of unpaid bills in his desk.

His brother, Dr. Gustave Adlerberg, of Brooklyn, could advance no motive for the apparent murder and suicide. Dr. Adlerberg was married, police were told, but was separated from his wife and child.

Anti-Trust Law Violations Scored by Huston Thompson

"Big Business" Depicted as Menace by Former Commission Head, Speaking at Institute.

Big business was depicted as a menace against which the anti-trust laws have been ineffective in the past few years by Huston Thompson, former chairman of the federal trade commission, at the Institute of Citizenship at Emory University Wednesday night. Reasons for the failure of the anti-trust laws were given and solutions offered in the main address of the day, "What Shall We Do With the Anti-Trust Laws and Their Administration?"

Controlled avenues of publicity, as in the case of the power trust, and the construing of much of the life out of the laws by the courts were blamed for the failure of these laws. The former head of the trade commission pictured the enforcement of the anti-trust laws as a traffic code with the attorney general of the United States and the federal trade commission as the traffic directors. "It is a friction-reducing traffic code for competing businesses."

Dr. Sam W. Small spoke at his second round-table conference on "Georgia's Immediate Problems." In his discussion of taxation, big businessness and the farmer received their share of criticism. It was pointed out that two interests in Georgia today are opposing a constitutional convention. They are the country people at large, who fear higher taxes and great public utilities, who are afraid their incomes will be decreased.

Miss Roberta Hodgson, head of the political science department at the State Teachers' College, Athens, presented her suggestions on reforms for county governments in the state following Dr. Small's address. Dr. Stewart Roberts spoke on health reforms for Georgia at the afternoon session.

"The United States of Europe" was A. T. Polyzoides' subject for his morning address in the university auditorium which followed his round-table on European problems, which began the day's work.

National affairs were discussed by Robert Lathan, editor of the Asheville Citizen, who spoke in the afternoon on "The Press and Public Opinion," and Huston Thompson, the evening speaker, who addressed himself to the problems of anti-trust laws.

"Some distant holding company directed by a small group of executives is giving the orders that are determining to a great degree the welfare of the people in towns of the south and west, also north, as far as 2,000 miles away who never see these executives, let alone know them," Mr. Huston said. "The money from their insurance premiums is moving toward New York city constantly. The profits from their stores are going in the same direction, all to swell the great credit monopoly, which, in turn, operates upon the legislation at Washington either with a powerful potential effect or by direct action."

Power Monopoly Scored.

The revelations of the federal trade commission in regard to the propaganda of the power monopoly were scored heavily. "Into its web has been gathered college professors, scientists, leaders of women's clubs, teachers and even some preachers, to say nothing of lawyers and paid lobbyists."

"Nor was that unusual," he said. "In an experience of eight years on the federal trade commission I found that there were combinations in many, many other industries carrying on the same practices as the power group. In fact, with the exception of the automobile industry, I can't recall another that was not seeking to frustrate the anti-trust laws.

"Those who appear to despise the anti-trust laws give as their most frequent justification for the present economic concentration that it makes for great savings in industry. Perhaps the greatest development in saving in any industry has been expressed by Mr. Ford single-handed, who, outside of taking over a non-competitive automobile line, has, so far as I know, never absorbed a competitor nor has he seen fit to wave aside the anti-trust laws.

"Is it not more than passing strange that with all the remarkable labor-saving devices and inventions which have frequently cut the cost of a product in two that the cost of living should not have come down?

Still Have Bread Lines.

"We have reached a stage in our development when with more production on hand than we can consume in this country or export we have bread lines in every city. Can we not avoid the terrible losses and hardships such as are now attendant upon our recent stock panic? First of all, let us see how frequently these panics come. The present generation has witnessed four great ones—1893, 1907, 1920, 1929—every one caused by the destruction of competition either in credit or industry.

"Look at this picture: Overproduction of industry, over-flotation of stock, over-speculation in securities, the income of the ultimate consumer absorbed by his debts and the stage was set.

"A series of deliberate raids drove the market down and forced out margin accounts; then they bought in great blocks again and sent the prices skyward. Thus the public bought until it was whipsawed and had nothing left, so the market crashed."

"The United States of Europe," Mr. Polyzoides explained in his morning address, is a plan whereby the European countries exclusive of Great Britain and the European part of Russia, are asked to join in a more or less closer union, so as to preserve their economic independence and present a united front against which they call the encroaching policy of the British Empire on the one hand, the soviet union of Russia on the other and, last but not least, the United States of America." The original plan is nearly a hundred years old, it was explained.

Adoption of the short ballot was the chief reform suggested for the consolidation and simplification of the county government in the state of Georgia by Miss Roberta Hodgson, of the State Teachers' college, Athens, at the round table on county government Wednesday morning. She had pointed out some of the deficiencies and needs at the Tuesday morning session. Her address was largely attended by members of the leagues of women voters of the vicinity.

A banquet sponsored by the Georgia League of Women Voters at the Athletic Club at 6:30 o'clock tonight will be the main feature of today's institute program. Judge O. A. Park, of Macon, will speak at that time.

The full schedule follows: 9 a. m., round table, A. T. Polyzoides; 10 a. m., "The World Problem of Unemployment," address by Mr. Polyzoides; 11 a. m., Dr. Small, round table; noon, Dr. M. L. Brittain, Georgia Tech president, "Educational Problems in Georgia;" 3 p. m., R. C. Norman, "Tax Problems in Georgia," and Dr. J. F. Rippey "An Inventory of Our Caribbean Policy," and 4 p. m., Marvin Underwood, "Municipal Government in the South."

NEW MAY SEEK POST OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Dublin Attorney, Here for Conference, To Make Decision Soon.

Parker New, Dublin attorney, whose name has been advanced as a possible candidate for attorney general, Wednesday indicated that he was giving the matter serious consideration and said that he would make a definite statement at an early date.

Mr. New, who is a member of the state legislature, appeared at the state capitol for a conference with Governor L. G. Hardman relative to the extra session of the legislature.

He expressed himself as favoring rewriting the general appropriations bill instead of adopting measures for additional revenue, and suggested that the pension bill be included in the call for an extra session if made.

The attorney-general's opinion to the effect that pensioners should be paid under the old schedule of $200 a year instead of the new of $300, overruled a valid act of the legislature and should be included in the call, he declared.

Mr. New indicated that if he announced for attorney general the pension question might be injected into the campaign as one of the principal issues. "If I am ever attorney general no act of the legislature shall ever be disregarded without a decision of the courts," he declared. "No officer, from the highest to the lowest, has any right whatever to conduct his office contrary to an act of the legislature until the courts themselves, and not the attorney general, has declared the act illegal."

Home-Grown Lettuce Experiment Is Started

An experiment in producing lettuce on an extensive scale is being undertaken by Colonel T. L. Huston, former part owner of the New York Yankees, on a vast acreage near Brunswick, it was announced Wednesday by Eugene Talmadge, state commissioner of agriculture.

The home-grown brand of lettuce is of a superior flavor to that produced in California and Arizona, Mr. Talmadge stated, but does not develop into as hard a head as some other brands. He expressed the belief that ultimately housewives would be educated to its use and that a large market for it would be had.

Beer Brings Crisis For German Cabinet

BERLIN, April 9.—(AP)—Beer today threatened to wreck the new government of Chancellor Bruening. President Von Hindenburg was forced to intervene in an attempt to save the situation.

The Bavarians in the budget committee declined to indorse a 75 per cent beer tax demanded by Finance Minister Moldenhauer. A Bavarian deputy complained that it was becoming the custom in the reichstag to poke fun at beer taxation.

He advised the reichstag to take the matter seriously since in Bavaria beer is a primary constituent for the nourishment of the inhabitants.

President Von Hindenburg summoned the Bavarian leader, Fritz Schaeffer, for a conference in the hope of swinging him into line. It was believed a compromise would be reached as a result of the president's intervention.

VALUE

IN the tire business, as in any other, production has a direct relation to costs.

It happens that Goodyear builds millions more tires than any other manufacturer, which ought to mean something to the man who buys tires.

We think it does: "More people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind!"

We think this single towering fact — not to be overridden by any sales argument, however ingenious—says all that needs be said of Goodyear quality, Goodyear service, Goodyear price.

The next time you need a tire, and seek the most you can get for your money, remember how the people have judged this question of value.

The simplest and safest advice, is for you to do what an overwhelming percentage of your fellow-motorists are doing — go straight to the nearest Goodyear dealer!

'Bolter' Heflin Deplores Raskob's Wet Donations

Alabaman Follows North Carolina's Simmons in Attack on Democratic National Committee Chairman.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(AP)—Demanding that John J. Raskob resign as chairman of the democratic national committee, Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, said in the senate today that the party has "come to a miserable position" when its chairman donated money to elect wet republicans to congress.

Heflin said not more than five democratic senators and 15 democratic members of the house, outside of the Tammany group, could be found who would say they thought Raskob should not resign.

Before Heflin spoke, Senator Simmons, democrat, North Carolina, said Raskob wanted a wet congress as well as a wet president. He said he had nothing to do with summoning Raskob before the senate lobby committee.

Raskob, who testified last Friday, said he had contributed $65,000 to the association against the prohibition amendment and that one of its purposes was to elect members of congress in favor of repeal or modification of the prohibition law. He is a director of the association.

Both Heflin and Simmons are up for re-election this year. They refused to support their party nominee, Alfred E. Smith, for president in 1928.

Senator Simmons on Monday told the senate that North Carolina democrats "repudiate" the action of Raskob "in contributing to the funds to be used to elect wet republicans over dry democrats while he still holds the titular position of national chairman of our party."

Heflin charged today that Raskob was working against him in Alabama and against Simmons in North Carolina and asserted:

"I'll defy them. I'll whip them in my state either in a democratic primary or out of it."

The Alabaman has been barred from the state democratic primary on account of his failure to support Smith. The decision has been appealed to the Alabama supreme court.

"Raskob has gone into my state," Heflin shouted, "and has influenced some of the members of the state committee of Alabama. But it won't work. The democrats of my state are

All gold star mothers of Greater Atlanta who are on the list of the Service Star League of Fulton county received personal telegrams from Gary Cooper last week inviting them to be guests of The Constitution at the showing of "Seven Days' Leave" at Keith's Georgia.

In addition, all mothers of members of the American Legion in Atlanta are invited to be guests of The Constitution provided they are accompanied by their sons.

Several mothers who lost sons in the World War, but whose names were not on the list of the Service Star League of Fulton county have called The Constitution and asked whether they were invited to see "Seven Days' Leave."

The answer is most emphatically "yes." The best reserved seat section of the theater has been held at every performance for the gold star mothers and those who did not receive a personal wire from Gary Cooper need only to present themselves at the door and say they are gold star mothers.

"Seven Days' Leave" is a story made by Paramount from the Sir James Barrie stage play, which smashes all the traditions of motion picture-making. It is the simple, but yet enthrallingly interesting story of the love of a poor woman for a stalwart young man she selects as her "son" during the World War.

There are no heroics; there are no "hot" love scenes between the young hero and the young heroine—chiefly, because there is no young heroine in the picture.

It is a strangely beautiful portrayal of the love which one woman holds for her "adopted" son and the influence she has on him.

Big Demand Shown For Opera Tickets

Spring sunshine and blue skies, which Atlanta folk have learned to look upon as heralds of the annual grand opera season, inspired an increased interest Wednesday in the sale of season tickets for the series booked for May 1, 2 and 3, and the throngs at the box office kept the ticket seller busy.

The opportunity to choose season tickets will end Saturday at noon, it is announced by the Music Festival Association. Officers pointed out that only through the purchase of season tickets can the more choice seat locations be had, and the lower price also is worth consideration.

Tickets for the four performances this season may be had at prices from $10 in the balcony to $26 "down in front," with excellent seats at rates between these two extremes.

The operas to be given are: Thursday, May 1, "Louise," with Bori, Trantpul and Rothier; Friday, May 2, "Trovatore," with Rosa Ponselle, Martinelli, Claussen and Danise; Saturday matinee, May 3, "La Boheme," with Bori, Gigli, Fleischer and De Luca; Saturday night, the double bill, "Cavalleria Rusticana," with Leonora Corona and Armand Tokatyan, followed by "Pagliacci," with Lawrence Tibbett, Martinelli and Queena Mario.

Tickets for single operas will not be offered until April 21, but reservations from out-of-town are being received and numbered, to be filled at the close of the season ticket sale.

35 More Housewives SendRummagetoArmy

While brooms, paint brushes and garden tools were being mustered throughout Atlanta in preparation for the citywide crusade against the demon dirt next week, Salvation Army records indicated that 35 more housewives had engaged in preliminary skirmishes with him Wednesday.

That number during the day, making a total of 115 since the first of the week, cleared their basement, attics and closets of old papers and rags and called the army's social service center at Jackson 2224 to collect the rummage.

The day's total of waste paper dropped from the 11,000-pound high point of Tuesday, however, to 9,850 pounds for the day, making a total of nearly 15 tons since the week's preliminary cleanup opened. Rags and old clothing for the day amounted to only 110 pounds, making a total of 660 for the first three days of the week.

G. M. A. Cadets End Two-Day Inspection

Hundreds of Georgia Military Academy alumni and friends Wednesday afternoon gave an old-fashioned Georgia barbecue to the more than 400 cadets at the close of their two-day governmental inspection. Majors A. S. Peake and Leland S. Hobbs, of the United States war department, were the inspectors.

Beginning early Tuesday morning the government officers put the cadets through every sort of military exercise and movement. The close of the inspection came Wednesday afternoon in a regimental review and parade.

Colonel J. C. Woodward, president, and his staff of West Pointers, Captains McQuarrie, Brewster and Spiller, Wednesday night declared themselves as much pleased with the showing the cadets had made.

Stromberg Reports Good Business Year

Not only were all earning records broken by the Stromberg-Carlson Telephone Manufacturing Company last year, according to the report mailed recently to stockholders, but 1930 is running substantially ahead of the banner year, and promises to exceed 1929.

Net profits for 1929, after provision for federal taxes, interest, reserves for depreciation, and all other charges in keeping with the soundest accounting practises, were $1,070,055.58. The previous record year was 1926, when profits totaled $971,262.97.

Notwithstanding the fact that the first six months for 1929 presented a new peak in the business of the nation, January business this year was 80 per cent greater in volume than the corresponding month last year, February this year was greater by 40 per cent than February, 1929, and March, up to the present time, is running 30 per cent ahead of March, 1929.

Coart Clemency Plea Considered by Board

The state prison commission Wednesday took the third application of Major Lee H. Coart, who is serving a life term for the murder of A. B. McNiece, former Talbot county school superintendent, under advisement.

Vigorous opposition to the application for clemency was made by Judge A. W. Cozart, of Columbia, and J. H. McGee, of Talbotton, brothers-in-law of the former army man. John A. Smith, of Talbotton, appeared in his behalf.

While Judge Cozart declared that McNiece had been "murdered in a most cowardly manner," Smith submitted evidence that nine of the jurors who convicted Coart urged his pardon, stating that they believed he had been punished sufficiently.

Mr. McGee said Coart was a "so-called major who never saw a gun except the one he stole from his wife's trunk and used on a defenseless man after locking him in his own office."

Gas Rate Reduction Urged for Columbus

Petition, seeking a rule nisi against the Columbus Electric and Power Company, citing the company to show cause why gas rates in Columbus should not be lowered was filed with the Georgia public service commission at the state capitol Wednesday.

The paper, signed by officers and directors of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and members of the city commission, city manager, clerk and attorney, asked a revision downward, but urged that revision or reduction be made in a manner not to injure the small consumer, even if the large consumer were to benefit by the change.

The Columbus Electric and Power Company was granted an increase in rates in 1920, the petition states, on grounds that coal, gas, oil and labor costs were prohibitive and above the figure at which gas was being furnished at that time. A clause in the order stated that if prices became lower, the gas rates were to be lowered accordingly.

City To Make Effort To Keep Part of Park

Council Monday passed a resolution to give a quit claim deed to the property to the Perkerson heirs, and Mr. Millican, assisted by other members of the tenth ward delegation, succeeded in obtaining permission to open negotiations for lease of a strip of the property with an option to buy it.

Other members of the committee whom Mayor I. N. Ragsdale selected included Councilman Wiley L. Moore, Alderman Alvin Richards and Councilman Raleigh Drennon.

BETRAYAL OF TRUST CHARGED TO PRICE

owner who gets it from the sweat of his face. The tax authorities lay their hands on the widow who has got only a humble roof over her head. All these pay their money in order that the hospitals may provide for the sick and the injured, in order that the schools may operate, and that our homes may be secure from the midnight marauders by the establishment of a police department.

"The board of directors and the heads of the departments are the trustees of the people. This bill of indictment charged a conspiracy between Price, White and York. By undisputed evidence, even from their own witnesses, the state has overwhelmingly established that conspiracy as a fact.

Price Argument Scored.

"William P. Price is not a victim of circumstances."

B. Graham West, the city comptroller, testified that he had relied wholly and absolutely on the representations of Price "in paying out your money and mine," Mr. Howard said.

Mr. Howard ridiculed the amount of insecticides purchased by the city. He declared White had been paid rebates "enough to furnish 20 beds in this disgraceful maternity ward at Grady hospital." The special prosecutor told the jury "I could fumigate the Fiji Islands with what they bought."

"Mose Holland, that bright-eyed, alert young man who is purchasing agent for the county, is evidently trying to protect the taxpayers' money. He has been buying the identical stuff from the identical companies. Mose paid $1 a gallon. The city paid $2.50. Levy and Feldman, witnesses you heard, swore positively that the stuff sold the city and that sold to the county was 'biled in the same kittle.' Holland said he bought it in as low as five-gallon lots at $1 a gallon.

"All Jack White wanted was to get his graft. He didn't care whether they just put the duclaw of a polecat in some kerosene, just so it stunk and he got his graft. Selig's sales fell from $8,000 to $2,000 after he got rid of York and White. Where was it going? To the Puritan and the Southern. It didn't make any difference if it was double or single strength stuff. It was $2.50 a gallon."

"Prompt Collector."

A number of times during his argument, Mr. Howard raised his hands high above his head and shouted: "I'm just a victim of circumstances!" "All of 'em do it," he said. "When they are caught, they plead the baby act, and say, 'I'm just a victim of circumstances.'"

"I'll take my hat off to White on one thing," Mr. Howard said. "There never was a prompter collector."

In order to allow Mr. Howard to attend court in Griffin today, Judge Humphries ordered a night session Wednesday, after the defense rested. When court reconvened after supper, O. H. Pendley, secretary to Chief of Police James L. Beavers, was called back to the stand by the state. Pendley said that on 20 or 25 occasions during a year and a half, he told Price that he had "no preference for what we got, and our only interest was to see that the city got the most for the least money."

Price, in his unsworn statement to the jury late Wednesday afternoon, asserted that he had been "double-crossed by Jack White and others who took advantage of me." Price claimed that he was a victim of circumstances and had no knowledge of secret rebates paid to White on chemicals and automobiles bought by the city.

Features of Wednesday in the Price trial included the declaration by Councilman James L. Wells that he had warned Price in 1926 or 1927 that "White is a damned crook," and the statement by Mayor I. N. Ragsdale that he had warned Price in 1928 against doing business with concerns in which anyone connected officially with the city of Atlanta was interested.

Rebuttal Witnesses.

Shortly after 5 o'clock Judge Humphries halted proceedings when Solicitor Boykin announced his intention of introducing one or two rebuttal witnesses. The defense had rested and Solicitor Boykin explained to the court that the rebuttal would require "only a very few minutes."

Judge Humphries declared he wished to have an opportunity to cast his vote in the election for clerk of court and that he also wanted to give jurors this opportunity. He told the counsel representing both sides that he "had no intention of rushing through this trial tonight," but that he was going to declare a recess and hold a short night session because of the fact that Mr. Howard's presence at a murder trial in Griffin had caused postponement of the trial there.

"I have been purely a victim of circumstances, gentlemen," he told the jurors, speaking directly to the box.

"I have just become mixed up with those other fellows at city hall, and I don't think you will want to convict an innocent man. I'm only a victim of circumstances. I was double-crossed by Jack White and those other fellows who took advantage of my position there."

Price Takes Stand.

Taking the stand in his own defense, Price denied any knowledge of secret rebates given White by chemical companies or any other firms, and said that he had always found White "on the square up to the time this matter developed."

Price explained the city's method of making purchases, and told the jury that White, "genteel, likable and polished," had gained his way into the purchasing agent's confidence like many salesmen have done, and that he had relied upon what White said, because nothing had happened to destroy the confidence he placed in him "up to this time."

The purchasing agent explained that the department heads write out their requisitions and send them to his office. "We have to co-operate with the department heads, and it has always been my desire to co-operate with them," Price said. "This disinfectant game is some game. In it there has been keen competition, and the salesmen have given me trouble. They would go around to the different departments and find out that the departments needed stuff before I knew of it. The salesmen would get the orders, bring them by my office, and we would buy the goods asked for by the departments. Some other fellow, disappointed at not getting an order, would come by then and want to know why we did not buy his disinfectant.

Sent to Departments.

"I wanted to be relieved of this trouble by the heads of the departments, and so I arranged to refer the salesmen to the department heads, for that saved time and the departments knew best what they wanted."

White first called on him several years ago when he was working for the Selig company, Price said. He explained that the Selig salesman before White had gotten orders. "At that time," Price declared, "White was a genteel, likeable fellow. He treated me fairly. He got into my confidence as salesmen do, for I have confidence in numbers of salesmen. White was polished, and seemed to appreciate the business he was getting. I found him to be on the square and all right. I never found White would double-cross me until this matter came up.

"White had the accounts of several firms. I told the salesmen to go to the department heads and if the department heads would specify their merchandise I would buy it. I got See-Fly-Go from Selig for years, and the cheapest price was $2 a gallon. I never could tell all about this disinfectant business on account of there being so many grades. They'll make up any grade for you.

"The salesman evidently convinced Wallis in the park department, and White brought the order to my office. If a department needs merchandise it's in line for the salesman to bring the order to my office, for they have to send it there by some means or other.

Went on Commission Basis.

"After White left Selig I think he went on a commission basis, but I didn't know about that. Wallis told me that White represented his stuff to be the very best insecticide and that he would guarantee it. I did buy a cheaper grade for the dairy farm and White himself assured me that his was the highest grade.

"We issue about 24,000 orders a year, and when I issue an order that order is through as far as I am concerned unless there is something the matter with it. As for deodorizing blocks, we paid as high as $12 a set in 1924, and $10 in 1925, and then they came on down to $8. The competition sometimes forces a cut in prices, and then they get back up to the regular price. We bought blocks from all of the firms.

"Up to this time I had never discovered that White was not on the square. It has been discovered that White had gone to some manufacturers and made a deal for a rebate of $1.25 a gallon. I don't know anything about White's arrangements except that he sold the merchandise. If he dealt with the manufacturers in that way it was without my knowledge or consent.

Bought For "Quality."

"I don't know about what the county buys, though I understand the county buys a $1 grade of disinfectant. I'm buying quality. I don't care about names. I never heard of Fly-Gon and didn't buy any of it. The county has a use for the $1 grade and I buy the $1 grade of disinfectant for the dairy farm.

"Up to a few years ago I had been buying See-Fly-Go for the dairy farm, when I heard that I could have a cheaper grade of disinfectant made that would serve. Someone came to me with a sample of it. I asked White to tell Selig to make up some of it.

"Since then I've bought the $1 grade from the men who solicit the city's business. The Frederick Company never solicited business from me, and I got the idea that it was a manufacturing firm selling in bulk to the other companies. There are certain firms who don't care for the city's business, because they claim they have to sell us too close. If the Frederick Company didn't want our business there were plenty of them scrambling for it.

"Morris said that he was overloaded and would sell me $2.50 a gallon Nilate for $1 a gallon. I told him I had no requisitions for disinfectant then, but later I placed an order with him at $1 a gallon. He sent us Nilate Fly Spray and it didn't suit. I told him that it had not given satisfaction and he said he'd go out and see about it. We sent it back and he sent another drum out."

Price's Statement.

Price's statement to the jury was of a repetitive nature, the defendant time and again denying in particular detail charges that he was aware that purchases made by the city which had received his approval were not done in good faith on his part.

"I never had any idea that Jack White was an agent for any car," he asserted. "I didn't know anything about Jack White. I only knew him when he came into my office. I didn't dream that he was making big profits on things my department purchased for the city, and I wasn't interested in what he was outside."

He denied having had anything to do with White or that he had any knowledge of his commissions on city purchases of any automobiles prior to the presentments of the February grand jury.

"I didn't know a thing about the whole proposition until these trials came up," he said, "and what's more, I never made one cent out of any orders Jack White got."

He revealed that he had been cautioned by Mayor Ragsdale "not to buy any merchandise from a member of council who was interested in a financial proposition," and said that he had been guided by these instructions.

State Rests.

The state rested shortly before noon after it had returned Mayor Ragsdale to the stand and brought from him the statement that he had warned Price in 1928 not to do business with concerns in which anyone connected officially with the city of Atlanta was interested.

Mayor Ragsdale testified that his attention "was called by a certain party, someone interested in disinfectants, that a certain combination had been formed and was getting most of the business from the city," and that the party who talked to him was dissatisfied about the arrangement.

"What did you do?" Mr. Howard asked.

"I talked to Mr. Price about it," the mayor said.

"Did you warn him?" Mr. Howard questioned. Objection by Defense Attorney Frank Hooper was sustained, and Mr. Howard then asked the mayor: "What was said during the conversation?"

"I stated to Mr. Price that he should not under any circumstances pay attention to any proposition in which anyone connected officially with the city of Atlanta was interested," Mayor Ragsdale said.

Asked what Price said to that, the mayor replied that Price agreed with him. The conversation was in 1928, and he did not know that the arrangement went on ofter he had received the complaint, the mayor testified. The complaint was that Jack White was involved with a member of council in the sale of chemicals to various departments of the city government, he declared.

Under cross-examination by Hollingsworth, Mayor Ragsdale said that Price led him to believe that he was not dealing with any concern with which any member of council was interested or connected.

Pendley on Stand.

O. H. Pendley, secretary to Chief of Police James L. Beavers, testified regarding purchase of a barrel of scrubbing powder by the city. Pendley said he asked the purchasing department for the powder, and that when the powder was delivered with a bill calling for payment at 13 cents a pound, he returned it to the Puritan Chemical Company. Another barrel of powder, billed at 9 cents a pound, and, to the best of his knowledge, the same quality, was substituted, Pendley said. On cross-examination, Pendley said he did not register his complaint with Price, but took it directly to the manufacturer, who agreed to send him another barrel at 9 cents a pound or let him keep the original barrel at that price.

L. L. Holland, salesman for the Standard Oil Company, said that he solicited business from the city for three years, but was able to sell only two or three small orders for Grady hospital, and that he got the orders by soliciting the hospital authorities. Holland told the jury that he quoted the purchasing agent a price of $1.66 a gallon on insecticides in single drum lots, with a discount of 5 per cent on two drums and 10 per cent discount on five or more drums purchased in the course of a year, making the price per gallon $1.50 in five drum lots.

S. Selig, president of the Selig Company, testifying that White had been employed by his firm on a commission basis, said that during the time White sold on commission the Selig Company sold disinfectants and insecticides to the city at $2.50 a gallon, and that when White severed his connection with the firm the city business dropped considerably. Selig said White told him he controlled the city's business. Selig also testified, under cross-examination, that White was dissatisfied with the 10, 15 and 20 per cent commission paid by Selig, and he discovered White was representing other chemical firms regardless of an agreement to sell only the Selig Company's products. Selig said Price did not ask for quotations on insecticides and Price did not suggest that he solicit the department heads.

Withdrawal of Funds.

All city funds are deposited in his name and can be withdrawn only on order of the mayor and city comptroller, said J. H. Ewing, Sr., city treasurer.

W. H. Alexander, secretary and assistant general manager of the LeRoux Motor Company, told of the sale by his company of a truck and a sedan to the city. The city was entitled to a 15 per cent discount, but did not receive it as it was not asked for, Alexander said. He also testified that the company was not asked to submit competitive bids on the machines, and that Jack White received $50 on each sale.

"How much did the city lose by not getting its discount on the truck?" Mr. Howard asked.

"Eighty-two dollars and 81 cents," Alexander answered.

"How much was lost on the sedan by not getting the discount?"

"Eighty-nine dollars and 25 cents."

J. E. Kilgore, former salesman for the LeRoux Company, told of overhearing a conversation between the sales manager and York and White regarding purchase of cars for the police department. "I had been trying to sell cars to the city, and had been talking to Mr. Murphy, of the police board. Our sales manager told me to lay off Mr. Murphy because Harry York was going to handle the deal and he had more pull than I did. That was about the time I heard him tell York and White he would give them 10 per cent commission on cars sold to the police department. I was standing by the water cooler near the sales manager's office when I heard York and White talking to him in his private office," Kilgore said.

Saw White at Motor Company.

Roy Donaldson and W. C. Whitehead, former salesmen for the LeRoux Motor Company, testified to seeing York and White frequently at the offices of the motor company.

Judge Humphries overruled a motion by Attorney Hooper, of defense counsel, to exclude all evidence relating to Jack White's conduct in the sale of chemicals and automobiles to the city. Hooper said that nothing had been introduced to show Price's connection with any of the transactions or to connect him with White.

The state called one witness in rebuttal before the supper recess was declared. Councilman Wells was placed on the stand to rebut the statement of Price that he was ignorant of the "character of Jack White." Only one question was asked, which tended to show that the witness had never warned the defendant against White.

The state drew from Councilman James L. Wells, a defense witness, the admission that in 1926 or 1927, he had told Price, "in pretty strong language" that in his opinion "White is a damn crook." This was on an occasion when White, Price and Alderman Robert Pennington came to his office before Wells was in council for the purpose of soliciting members for the T.-P. A., Wells said.

By a number of witnesses, the defense sought to show that Price had no knowledge that White was getting rebates or that White was involved in any way in the purchase of automobiles by the city. Councilman Raleigh Drennon, a member of the purchasing committee in 1928; John L. Cone, first assistant city paymaster; Councilman Wells and others were questioned along this line.

Councilman Drennon was asked by Special Prosecutor William Schley Howard if he knew that White got a $50 "rake-off" in the purchase by the city of a truck. "Not that I know of," Drennon replied. "I only know of it from the papers and what I read about it."

Mr. Howard exhibited to Councilman Drennon a check for $50 to White from the LeRoux Motor Company.

"White's name is indorsed on the back of it, is it not?" he asked.

"Yes."

"Well, then. It looks like he got the money, doesn't it?" Howard pursued.

"Yes, whoever that Jack White was, he got the money," Drennon said.

Drennon testified, under examination by Defense Attorney Hollingsworth, that the only thing Price had to do with the purchase of the truck was to get the bids.

Jacks on Stand.

W. H. Jacks, assistant city purchasing agent, testified that Jack White was treated no differently from any other salesman, and that he did not know what commission White was getting. Jacks was questioned closely by the defense regarding the operation of the purchasing agent's office. Under cross-examination by Mr. Boykin, Jacks said he did not know the Ni-Late people offered to sell the city insecticides at $1 a gallon when the city was paying $2.50 a gallon for the same stuff, and he did not know the Puritan Chemical Company offered to save the city 50 per cent of the price of its products if the city would cut Jack White out of the picture.

Under further cross-examination, Jacks admitted he did not try to find out what the general public and Fulton county "were paying for the same stuff you were paying $2.50 per gallon for."

"Isn't it a fact 90 per cent of all liquid chemicals were bought from companies represented by Jack White?" Mr. Boykin asked.

"Well, hardly 90 per cent, but a good share of it," Jacks said.

"Who else did you buy from except White's companies?"

"Just three little orders, wasn't it?" Boykin asked.

"Yes, it was three orders."

"Anybody else?"

"I can't remember anybody else."

Knew White's Connection.

Judge Humphries asked Jacks: "Did you know that these three companies were represented by Jack White?"

"Yes, I knew it," Jacks said.

"And you got bids only from those companies?"

"Yes."

"Why didn't you go outside those companies to get bids?"

"We tried to follow the specifications of the department heads," Jacks said.

Asked by the solicitor-general—"You have the right to select the concern regardless of any request by a department head?" Jacks replied: "Yes, but we always try to follow such requests."

"Even though you pay $2.50 for the same stuff that other folks pay $1 for?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"Well, we thought the department heads would be better satisfied with the products."

Under questioning by Special Prosecutor Howard, Jacks said he did not know what a fleet buyers' contract is, in connection with purchase of automobiles.

"Don't you know municipalities can buy heavy trucks from nearly any automobile company in America for 25 per cent off?"

Recalled to Stand.

After the luncheon recess, Jacks was called to the stand again.

"You understood that White represented the concerns he brought in orders for?" asked Mr. Hooper.

"Yes."

"Did you have to follow the recommendation of the police department when you could have bought from others for less?" Mr. Howard asked.

"Yes," Jacks replied.

Jacks said that he desired to make a correction on his testimony during the morning. He said: "As far as I knew, when we sent out for bids, the discount on automobiles was allowed."

"Did you check the price paid and the discount against the price list to see if you got the discount?" Mr. Boykin asked.

"Not to my knowledge," Jacks said.

John L. Cone, city paymaster, told of looking over some automobiles and deciding that he wanted a Whippet and a Chevrolet "on account of the roomy build and my bulk." The majority of the members of the purchasing committee authorized purchase of the sedan, and the car was charged to the division of pay, comptroller's department, he said.

Under cross-examination by the state, Cone said he had a requisition for a Whippet but did not remember if it had the price of the car on it.

Had No Conversation.

"Did you have a conversation about it with Jack White?" Mr. Howard asked.

"No."

"No."

"No."

"Did you ever associate with York?"

"I knew him as a councilman."

Councilman Wells testified that when Cone came to his office with the requisition for the car he called up the purchasing department and asked if it was O. K. Told it was, he signed the requisition, he said. Price never suggested buying any particular car, Wells said.

"Did you know that Jack White was connected with the deal or that he got a $50 rake-off?" Mr. Howard asked.

"No."

After Mr. Wells testified he had told Price that "White is a damned crook" on the occasion when Price and White visited his office before he was in council, Mr. Howard said that the state sought to show that Price knew the general reputation of White.

"Did you warn Mr. Price about dealing with Mr. White?" Mr. Howard asked.

"No."

Judge Humphries ordered the question and answer excluded, and also excluded the statement of Wells with regard to the visit of White and Price to his office.

Last Defense Witness.

The last witness for the defense was Mrs. J. R. Dunn, of the sales department of Selig Company, with which concern White formerly served as sales representative.

Mrs. Dunn said that she had been with the Selig Company for eight or nine years and that upon frequent intervals during the last two years the city purchasing department had requested bids and specifications for disinfectants and insecticides from her concern. On cross-examination by Mr. Boykin, who produced two approved city purchase sheets for insecticides, Mrs. Dunn admitted that the Selig Company had not submitted bids on these two orders, but on redirect examination she testified that she did not keep the books or other records which would have enabled her to say definitely whether such bids had been made.

Advice of Friends Chief Baby Worry

CHICAGO, April 9.—(AP)—Pins, buttons, beads, watermelon seeds, tacks and dolls' glass eyes are less harmful to babies than aunts, uncles, neighbors and friends, in the opinion of the American Research Foundation.

The opinion was expressed in a bulletin issued by the foundation yesterday saying that fewer infants perish from lunching on misplaced knick-knacks than from following the idea of foolish advisers to mothers.

The moral, according to the foundation, is that what the baby eats should be dictated by physicians and not by neighborhood consultations.

FIFTY YEARS OF SERVICE

1,000,000 TELEPHONES

THE YEAR 1929 marked the fiftieth anniversary of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company and witnessed the installation of the one millionth telephone in the Southeastern states.

Back of these events is history and tradition which parallels the growth and progress of the South and reflects the loyalty and devotion of pioneers who had faith in the future of this great section.

More than $32,168,000 was required last year to expand and improve the Southern Bell system and 42,000 new telephones were added. The total investment in service reached the enormous sum of $216,395,785.

To build, manage and operate this great telephone system required an army of skilled men and women whose annual payroll amounted to more than $28,256,527.

There was a noticeable improvement in both local and long distance service which is now better than ever before.

Coupled with the material growth was the continued friendly interest and confidence of the public and a spirit of cooperation which encourage the entire telephone personnel in their effort to furnish the most efficient service at the lowest possible cost to the user.

Stomach Troubles Headache and Dizziness

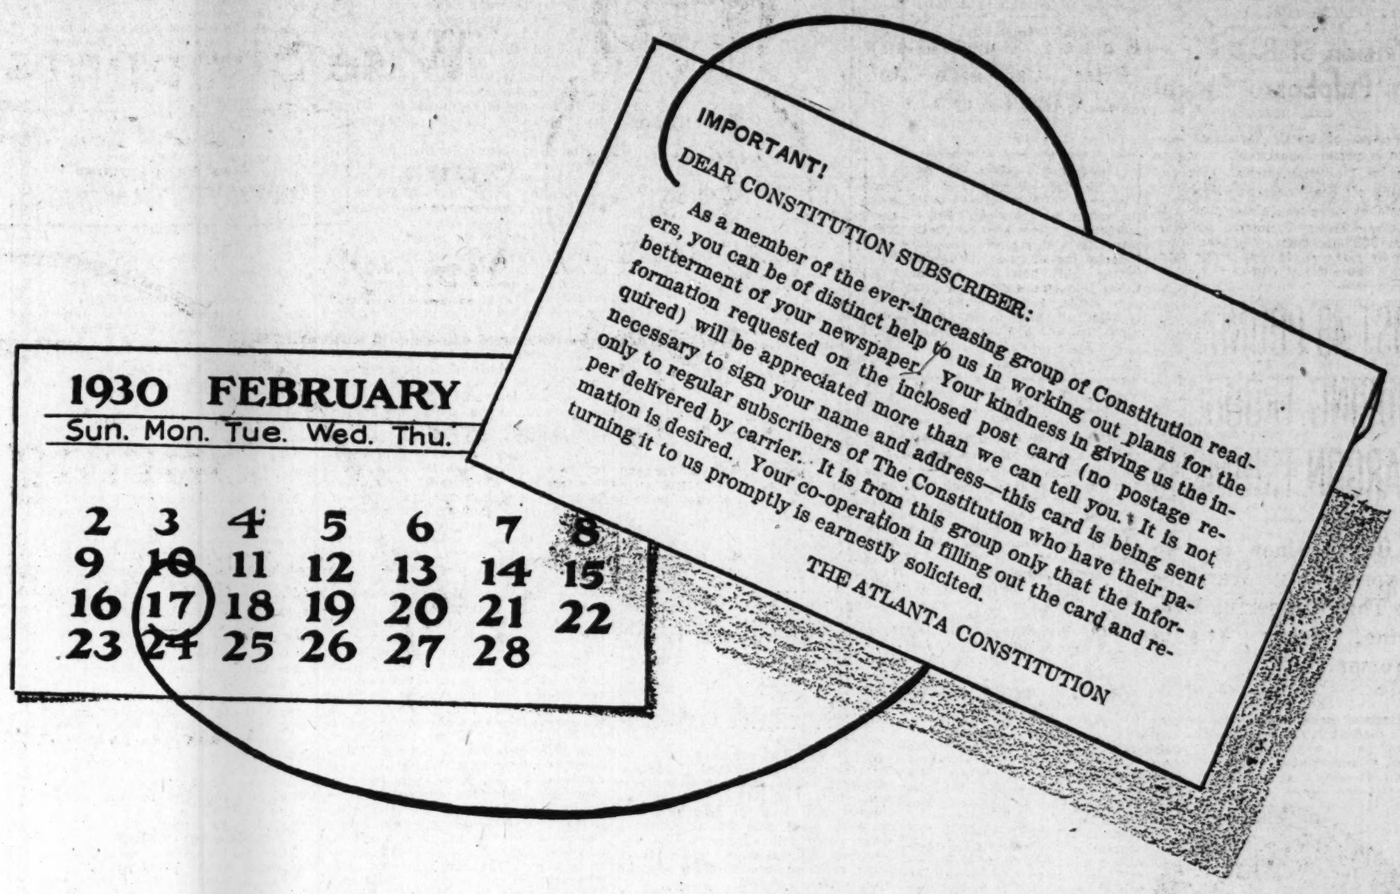

If your stomach is sick, you are sick all over. If you can't digest your food, you lose strength, get nervous and feel as tired when you get up as when you went to bed.

For 10 years Tanlac has restored to health and activity thousands who suffered just as you do—many of them right here in town. For instance, here is a letter from Mr. Nicholas Buynak, who says: "Indigestion was carrying me down at an alarming rate. One time it had me laid up in bed for six weeks. Tanlac has me eating, sleeping, and feeling fine and I don't believe it has an equal."

Let Tanlac do for you what it did for this sufferer. It corrects the most obstinate digestive troubles—relieves gas, pains in the stomach and bowels. It restores appetite, vigor and sound sleep.

Tanlac is made of roots, barks and herbs. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you. Accept no substitute. (adv.)

When you picked up your morning Constitution on February 17th, you found the envelope reproduced at the right. You followed instructions, wondering "what it was all about." But when you filled out and mailed the card enclosed in the envelope, you performed the greatest service you could possibly have rendered those merchants and manufacturers who advertise in Atlanta newspapers. You solved, once and for all, the biggest question that confronts them, "How much duplication is there in the circulation of Atlanta newspapers?"

This Was a "Red Letter Day" for Advertisers in Atlanta

. . . And now the Good News can be told!

How many families take The Constitution exclusively?

How many families take The Constitution, and one of the afternoon newspapers?

How many families take all three Atlanta newspapers?

No longer are the answers to these questions a matter of personal opinion. No longer need you, as an advertiser, be left in doubt by conflicting statements. The Constitution "put it up to" its readers, to get the correct answer. The actual facts---the returns from a poll of more than 46,000 subscribers---are now ready to present to you.

Why have we waited since February 17th, when this comprehensive survey was conducted, until now? Simply because an intelligent analysis could only be made by comparison with up-to-the-minute circulation reports---and these reports have just been compiled.

20,000 families

take The Constitution ---and NO OTHER Newspaper

This is just one of the many facts disclosed by this survey report---a report verified by a firm of certified public accountants.

Before you plan another week's advertising, ask a Constitution representative to show you the COMPLETE report.

LOST 46 POUNDS DURING TROUBLE; SARGON TRIUMPHS

"I Hardly Know How to Express My Gratitude to This Wonderful Medicine," Says Atlanta Woman.

"Sargon brought me such wonderful relief after other medicines had failed that I want to join the many other Atlanta people and tell my experience with this remarkable medicine," recently stated Mrs. S. V. Stephens, 901 Hampton St., N. W., Atlanta.

MRS. S. V. STEPHENS.

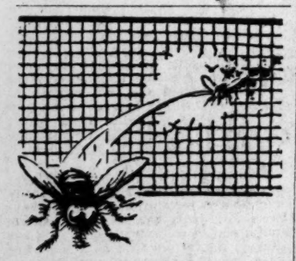

"I'd always had the strength to look after my home and eight children until about a year ago, when my health began to fail. I'd have terrible distress after every meal and I gradually lost weight and strength. I went from 164 pounds down to 118, and was so weak and tired all the time I could hardly attend to my housework. I had neuritis pains in my hands and arms—often I couldn't lift my hands to my head to comb my hair. My back ached continually—I could scarcely turn myself in bed, and I had to be up many times during the night on account of my kidneys. My liver was torpid and I had sick headaches that lasted three and four days—I'd be so blind and dizzy I couldn't stand and I often fainted 'dead away.' I was very nervous and easily excited and I slept miserably. I kept reading in the papers about so many people right here in Atlanta getting such wonderful relief from Sargon that I decided to try it.

"Before I'd finished the first bottle I was decidedly better. I've taken four bottles in all, and am feeling so well I can hardly realize I'm the same person. I have a good appetite and digest my food thoroughly; the neuritis pains are gone, and my nerves so strengthened that I sleep like a tired child. I have worlds of new strength and energy, am fast regaining my lost weight, and am so happy over my restoration to health I hardly know how to express myself.

"Sargon Soft Mass Pills put my liver to work and I no longer have dizzy spells or sick headaches.

"I've already told many of my friends about Sargon, and am glad to make this statement to the public."

Go to Jacobs' Main Store, 48 North Broad St., Grant Bldg., and meet the Sargon Man. He will give you the astonishing facts about this wonderful new medicine which is accomplishing such remarkable results all over the country. The astonishing record of Sargon is based on actual results accomplished; not empty promises. Sargon may be obtained at all Jacobs' Drug Stores throughout Atlanta.—(adv.)

LIST OF CANDIDATES TODAY

The list of candidates in The Atlanta Constitution's $25,000 prize campaign is published on another page in this issue. Look over the list and you will see the wonderful possibilities for prize-winning. All those now entered will NOT become active and your opportunity to win is equal to those already entered. Why not enter yourself and win one of the 18 fine new motor cars to be given by The Constitution?

Only 10 more days left!

Prize-seekers in The Atlanta Constitution's $25,000 offer are beginning to reckon the days before the close of the 100,000-50,000 extra credit and $500 special gold prize offers. They are working with renewed enthusiasm in getting as many $30 clubs of new subscriptions as possible before April 19, when the offer closes. It is a big bonus to add to their credit total and they are speeding up as the days slip by.

Enter Today.

Many who have delayed active effort since entering the campaign are waking up. This is their big opportunity. They are beginning to realize a fortune in prizes is to be given away and the best time to obtain the winning credits is NOW.

New nominations are coming in daily as many realize that The Constitution's prize campaign is just getting under way. Suddenly they have determined to enter and get their share of the wonderful prizes offered. A $3,120 Pierce-Arrow sedan and $1,000 in gold is the first award. A $2,835 Franklin sedan and $500 in gold is the second award. There are 16 other fine new automobiles—20 Atwater Kent radios and cash commissions for all active non-prize winners. They want to take advantage of the 100,000-50,000 extra credit offer before it is too late. A little effort now will build up a number of $30 clubs of new subscriptions and they will jump into leading positions.

No Limit to Clubs.

There is no limit to the number of clubs a candidate may turn in. Each club of $30 in new prepaid subscriptions counts for 100,000 extra credits, and each club of $30 in new contract subscriptions counts for 50,000 extra credits.

During the next 10 days there is gold to win, extra credits to get, and the opportunity of taking a winning lead in the race—an opportunity that is made so great by the little competition and activity shown so far in the campaign.

Come into the campaign today. Start right out to make some of the extra gold yours. Earn one of the special gold awards to be won by April 19. And all the time be working for one of the 18 automobiles or other awards to be given at the close of the campaign, May 31. Get into the race today. Send in your name now.

Rev. Holmes Speaks To A. M. E. at Gary

GARY, Ind., April 9.—(Special.)—The Rev. B. R. Holmes, president and founder of the Holmes Institute, of Atlanta, Ga., delivered the principal address to the A. M. E. Ministers' Alliance of Chicago and Gary Wednesday morning in the Institutional church. Rev. Holmes said the colored people in the south are not suffering for the necessities of life, as they are in this section. Every man is given an opportunity to work. The colored people are more economical with their earnings, than in the east, north and west, and are making better investments by buying homes, farms and establishing business of their own, which makes it possible for them to pass through the non-employment crisis better than those who do not save and live in other sections, continued Rev. Holmes. The colored people own more property, do more business, build more churches, schools of their own than in any other sections.

Bishop A. J. Carey, presiding bishop of the Fourth Episcopal district of the A. M. E. church, paid a high tribute to the work being done in Georgia along educational and religious lines, presided over by Bishop W. A. Fountain, head of the demnomination.

Rev. W. A. McClendon, J. A. Lindsay, G. W. Williams, C. M. Tanner and others spoke on the progress being made by the colored people in the south.

The closing address was made by Rev. Fred D. Jordan, pastor of Carey Temple A. M. E. church, who said the work of the Holmes Institute in Atlanta was worthy of the support of the people of this section.

Dairy Delivery Units Stage Street Parade

Pedigreed Dairies, Inc., staged a parade through the downtown streets and north side residential sections Wednesday afternoon, attracting widespread attention. Headed by a band, 48 handsomely painted delivery units of the company were in the procession. Starting at the corner of Luckie and Harris streets at 1:15 o'clock the parade passed through the business section and out Peachtree as far as Morningside. At all schools stops were made and packages of Pedigree ice cream were given to the students. Included in the procession were several floats portraying the varied delights of ice cream.

NO PIEBALD PARTY.

The efforts of reputable republicans to organize their party in Georgia upon a basis and principles inoffensive to the general sentiments of the responsible people of the state will be commended rather than reprehended. The state undoubtedly needs two strong responsible political parties. The Constitution has frequently pointed out that need for reasons that all good citizens can understand and appreciate.

The friction of ideas is good for political thought and stimulating to sane and progressive political action, but it is lamentably lacking in any community absolutely dominated by one unchallenged political party. In such circumstances the one party loses its energy, ceases to be constructive, and falls into the ruts of dull routine or the wrangles of personal factions.

There would be a new and wholesome birth of political philosophy and action in Georgia if we had here two organizations of the major parties, led by men of intellectual vigor and public influence, and both contending for policies of state improvement in the administration of the people's government.

The way is open in Georgia for a strong republican party capable of putting the democrats upon their mettle to hold their own; of making them reorganize their lines upon broad and statesmanlike policies; of making them frame a platform of state policy; and of making them give the people a definite party program of policies to be carried out in the state's government.

But it is too evident to be argued that a republican organization catering to the whims, idiocies and patronage hunger of negro office seekers will have no standing or appeal in Georgia.

Sensible and patriotic republicans will not offer a piebald black and white party to the suffrages of serious men and women in this state.

TOO MUCH CONGRESS.

Political students who philosophize upon the evolutions of government have started a fresh debate over the unwieldy size of the national house of representatives. It is now composed of 435 members. The last congress, in passing the census bill, decided that there should be no increase of house membership under the new count of population in the states.

Still the political philosophers contend that 435 members is too many for matured and effective legislation. It puts too many cooks around the cauldron of law mixing and making, causes too long delays in settling important national interests, and gives opportunities to too many log-rollers and vote-swappers in the processes of laying taxes and making appropriations.

Cogent arguments are drawn from comparisons between certain state systems and the national scheme, especially citing those states in which the house of the legislature is set at three-fold of the senate. That ratio applied to congress would give a house of 288 members, or three times the 96 members of the senate, instead of the four-and-a-half plus to one ratio that now obtains.

In five of the states that ratified the constitution — Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York, Virginia and North Carolina—the conventions suggested that the number of representatives be fixed in the constitution instead of being left to the discretion or caprice of congress, and be limited to the final number of 200. In consequence Mr. Madison included the idea in the second of the 12 amendments submitted by the first congress. Ten of those amendments were ratified, but the one to limit the representation lacked the vote of one state to secure ratification, and Georgia is not recorded as having ratified any of the amendments which came to be known as the "Bill of Rights."

In 1821 there was general complaint that the house was too numerous and Senator Barbour, of Virginia, submitted a resolution to amend the constitution so as to limit the number of representatives to 200, but the resolution was postponed indefinitely. But in 1842 Mr. Underwood, of Kentucky, proposed an amendment that after the census of 1850 "the number of representatives shall not exceed double the number of senators;" the resolution was adversed and killed in the house. Then in the '80's there appeared other similar proposals, naming 300, 325, 350 and 351 as the constitutional maximum number. The last of them named 250, proposed by Mr. Johnston, of North Carolina, in 1888—but the judiciary committee reported upon none of the resolutions.

The principal arguments in favor of reducing the house from its present unwieldy number is that legislation cannot be efficiently done in such a mob, and hence the necessity of having it done by committees and rushed through the house under gag rules. That is the present practice. But power once obtained is seldom voluntarily given up and the hope that the house as at present constituted will ever submit a reducing amendment is an obviously vain one.

WET AND DRY IN ILLINOIS.

The smashing victory of Ruth McCormick over Senator Deneen in Tuesday's republican senatorial primary in Illinois, marks a distinctly new step in the evolution of American politics. For the first time a woman, in a hammer and tongs campaign, wins the nomination of a major party to a seat in the senate of the United States. It is the peak point reached by a woman since the woman suffrage amendment went into the constitution 10 years ago.

All national politicians will now sit up open-eyed to see what will happen to this daring female adventurer when the ballots are cast in November. There is strong likelihood that as to this particular contest, now to be waged between Mrs. McCormick and ex-Senator J. Ham Lewis, the democratic nominee, party lines may be widely broken and the final result hang in doubt to the last tally of the state poll.

Mrs. McCormick is already a congresswoman, elected two years ago in Illinois on a state-wide vote. She is an adept politician and has not hesitated to play the boldest sort of politics by hitching her apple-cart to the Bill Thompson machine in corrupt Chicago. But she will now face a seasoned campaigner with a hot appeal to a known majority of the voters of Illinois who want a more liberal condition of the prohibition policy.

The result of this senatorial battle may well become a pointer to the lawmakers of the nation and influence them more than all the hearings and straw votes that have been had on prohibition problems. So the battle is sure to have a nation-wide interest.

STATE'S RIGHT UPHELD.

It seems that in the state of Ohio its constitution provides that "no law shall be held unconstitutional and void by the supreme court without a concurrence of at least all but one of the judges, except in affirmance of a judgment of the court of appeals declaring a law unconstitutional and void."

That provision is based upon the commonly received presumption in favor of the constitutionality of a statute, unless there is palpable evidence in it that it transgresses some provision of the constitution. In most states, even without such an inhibition as that in Ohio as above quoted the high courts are chary of declaring legislative acts unconstitutional unless the constitution plainly is contradicted by them.

Recently a case was carried from Ohio to the supreme court of the United States to have that court decide the provision in the Ohio constitution contrary to the guarantees of the fourteenth amendment of the national constitution. But the federal supreme court now decides that there is nothing in the Ohio constitutional requisition that offends against the federal amendment in question. The people of a state have the sovereign right to organize their courts as they please and qualify their jurisdictions and judgments as they please. The supreme court of the United States very properly refuses to invade the state's sovereignty over such powers in its agencies of government, and thus adds a needed support to waning state rights.

The big conundrum is, what right has any bolted democrat to complain about a democratic primary that is bolted against him?

It may be that Ghandi got his resistance policy from our American bootleggers.

It doesn't take a Rockefeller any longer to answer a census taker than it does some of us other dubs.

Do you notice that the prohibitionists did not shoot their Cannon in the congressional hearings?

Aimee McPherson has gone to the Holy Land, which should be better than going to unholy Mexico.

Dumb Skirts.

Long skirts are too noisy, too musical. This is the verdict of the microphone. Hollywood, busier than ever with sound films, is on the lookout for skirts which don't "frou-frou" and rustle. Shoes that creak are also taboo. Once it was fashionable to have "musical" shoes. The dandies of half a century ago even had their shoemaker place a piece of creaking leather in their bottines. The talkies won't have any of this. It is said that recently in turning a historical film, the star, playing the role of some grand princess, had to wear a skirt belonging to the epoch in which the intrigue took place. The director had counted without the train of the skirt. This train, fulfilling its destiny, trained. The sound of it once registered was like a subdued but sustained rumble of thunder. So that the "princess" had to do her stunt all over again, this time in short skirts. An anachronism in the name of a synchronism, one might say. From now on all wearing apparel worn by movie actors working for sound films has to be passed upon by a sound-censor. It is found that nearly all clothing makes some rustling noise. So somebody will have to go to work and invent mute skirts and dumb gowns. We will perhaps see the day when milady's handkerchief consists of a whiff of smoke and her gowns of just a little colored vapor.

Michel Angelo's Tragedy.

In a lecture at the Sorbonne, Madame Camille Mallarme, distinguished poetess, told recently of her research on the life and work of Michel Angelo. She had occupied herself lately with an inquiry on an earlier "Pieta" which the immortal master is supposed to have produced. Many previous biographers have been puzzled by this matter. What became of this earlier monument if Michel Angelo ever executed it? Madame Mallarme gave the answer. For 15 years the great sculptor, painter and architect worked on a model which he destined for his own grave. It was to represent a "Descent From the Cross," and was of huge proportions. The heavy demands which Pope Julius made on the artist's time often forced him to suspend work on the immense block of white marble. And once, when called to Rome, for another job, he exclaimed in desolation at having to leave his masterpiece unfinished: "Ah, it would have been better if I had been a simple manufacturer of matches than to have been devoured by such a passion" (to finish the "Descent"). He kept the projected monument a strict secret, however, in his workshop in Bologno. One night he called in a friend, D'Urbino, to show him the finished work. Michel Angelo held up a lantern and D'Urbino beheld "what no human eye has ever seen, or ever will see," as he writes in a letter which Madame Mallarme has just received. Michel Angelo then asked his friend to advise upon a technical question, whether or not he should take something off the sides of the Christ. D'Urbino counseled against this. But Michel Angelo proceeded to carry out the change, in spite of the advice of his friend. In doing so he discovered an imperfection in the marble. Without more ado, he smashed the entire group. In this way the world lost what was perhaps the greatest masterpiece of sculpture of all times.

Progress In Russia.

Several German and some American observers who had been to look at the way in which the famous "five-year plan" of industrialization operates in soviet Russia, declared that it would be a creditable performance even if it took 15 years to accomplish. Thanks to the enthusiasm of the people, however, it will be executed in four years, according to Marcel Lefebre, well-known French economic expert just back from Russia. "Gigantic factories are rising on all sides," he says, "entire new cities are going up and the atmosphere is electric with the fever of achievement." M. Lefebre, it should be added, is by no means a sympathizer with the soviet's ideals. To the contrary, he is one of the its outstanding opponents on economic grounds. "But," he says, "I cannot hide what I saw. Much misery yet, lack of comfort. Still they are forging ahead. If no war or other huge calamity interrupts the work, the present regime in Russia will have accomplished something of such magnitude in another three years as the world never saw, not even in America"! This is saying a lot. But if true, so much the better for the sixth part of the human race that lives in that vast empire, after years of privation, blood and struggle.

THE BACKSLIDER.

Text: "Return, ye backsliding children, I will heal your backslidings."—Jeremiah 3:22.

From the sorrowful prophet, upon the sorrowful subject of backsliding, we have herein a most gladdening text.

What is more sorrowful than a wandering child to the heart of home love?

What so breaks the father's and mother's heart as the wayward son or daughter?

Even so, a wandering child of God burdens the heart of God with sorrow unspeakable.

By His spirit, by His providence, by His word, both written and spoken, God seeks to bring his wayward children to see the enormity of their offense and to lead them to turn from it.

In astonishment He asks: "Why will ye die, O house of Israel?"

And is it not astounding that men will take the way of death when they might just as readily take the way of life?

It fatigues our thought and wearies our speech to try to express the sheer amazement of our souls at such folly in ourselves and in others.

Our text is the cry of stricken love, ringing through all the ages and calling God's wandering children home again—"Return, ye backsliding children, I will heal your backsliding!"

How pleading are the accents of the Divine Father's voice in these words of forbearing compassion?

Let us no longer presume upon his great goodness but let us be pierced with the sense of the horror of having wounded his love and, turning from the sin which has so easily beset us, let us run home to our Father's heart and house.

As He has called to us in tenderness, let us call to Him in penitent sorrow,

"Return, O Holy Dove, return
Sweet messenger of rest,
I hate the sins that made Thee mourn
And drove me from Thy breast."

As in heart-broken penitence we so cry, there shall surely be again repeated the welcome of the prodigal—"When he was yet a great way off, his Father saw him, and had compassion, and ran, and fell on his neck, and kissed him."—Luke 15:20.

Facts the People Should Know About the Evil Tax System of the State.

Another of the great problems which must be worked out for the welfare of the people of Georgia, and which it will be "a blunder equal to crime" to delay longer than it can be reasonably and scientifically accomplished, is the creation of an entirely new system of taxation.

It was a favorite apothegm of General Robert Toombs, the putative "father of the constitution" of the state, that "taxes are the sweat of the poor." That is not a precise truth. It came to the mouths of demagogues generally in a time when the aristocratic and opulent of the body politic were controlling the government of the state and were charged with unloading an undue share of public taxes upon the people who were the least able to supply them. But the facts of history do not give substance to the charge that "taxes are the sweat of the poor."

* * * *

How That Idea Got Currency.

In the earlier constitutions of the state there was a property qualification for representatives in the legislature.

By the original constitution of 1777 it was required that "they shall be of the Protestant religion, and of the age of 21 years, and shall be possessed in their own right of 250 acres of land, or some property to the amount of 250 pounds."

By the constitution of 1789 the Protestant qualification was omitted: a legislature of two branches, senate and house, established; and property qualifications required of the members of each body.

In 1798 the revised and amended constitution continued, but reduced the amount of the property qualifications.

By an amendment ratified in 1835 the property qualification for members of the general assembly appears to have been abolished altogether and has not since appeared in any of the constitutions.

It was that property requisition which excluded the non-property citizens and gave rise to the charge that they were sweated by their rich lawmakers.

* * * *

No Limit of Taxing Power.

Since it was a necessary of government that it should be supported by its beneficiaries, the old hierachial system of "tithes for the treasury of the Lord" was carried over into organized civil government, whether monarchial or democratic-republican, in the form of taxes to be laid upon the property, or occupations, franchises and special privileges accorded to individuals by the sovereign power.

In none of the constitutions of Georgia up to 1865 was there any specific provision on the subject of taxation. The legislatures acted in raising the revenues of the government under the blanket provision that "the general assembly shall have power to make all laws and ordinances which they shall deem necessary and proper for the good of the state, which shall not be repugnant to this constitution."

But in the constitution of 1865 it was provided that "the power of taxation over the whole state shall be exercised by the general assembly only to raise revenue for the support of government, to pay the public debt, to provide for the common defense, and for such other purposes as the general assembly may be specially required or empowered to accomplish by this constitution."

* * * *

Enlarged by the Radical Mob.

Under the "reconstruction" policy of congress the constitution of 1865, made by the responsible white people of the state, was largely ignored by congress, the state remanded to military rule, and General Meade, our military district commander, summoned a black and tan carpetbagger and cornfield negro convention to Atlanta to make a new and radical-satisfying constitution.

That convention concocted the Bullock constitution of 1868, which was forced upon the state by a mongrel bayonet-supported majority and remained of force until the people recovered their government and called the convention of 1877 to make a new constitution.

That radical constitution of 1868 provided that "the power of taxation over the whole state shall be exercised by the general assembly only to raise revenue for the support of government, to pay the public debt, to provide a general school fund, for common defense and for public improvement; and taxation on property shall be ad valorem only, and uniform on all species of property taxed."

It was that provision "for public improvement" which was used to foist millions of fraudulent bonds on the state which had to be repudiated.

* * * *

The Existing Tax Provisions.

The convention of 1877 changed the taxation authority to read as follows:

"The powers of taxation over the whole state shall be exercised by the general assembly for the following purposes only:

"For the support of the state government and the public institutions.

"For educational purposes, in instructing children in the elementary branches of an English education only.

"To pay the interest on the public debt.

"To pay the principal of the public debt.

"To suppress insurrection, to repel invasion, and defend the state in time of war."

And by subsequent amendment to provide for Confederate pensions, and "to construct and maintain a system of state highways."

An amendment was made in 1904 limiting the ad valorem tax" not to exceed five mills on each dollar of the value of the property taxable in the state."

That limitation amendment has been of great disadvantage to the state and the cause of much of the inability of the legislature to make the revenues sufficient for the pay-as-you-go solvency of the state.

* * * *

A Plenary Power to Tax.

General Toombs had put into the constitution the plenary declaration, that still stands there, to the effect:

"The right of taxation is a sovereign right, inalienable, indestructible, is the life of the state, and rightfully belongs to the people in all republican governments, and neither the general assembly, nor any nor all other departments of the government established by this constitution, shall ever have the authority to irrevocably give, grant, limit, or restrain this right; and all laws, grants, contracts, and all other acts whatsoever, by said government or any department thereof, to effect any of these purposes, shall be and are hereby declared to be null and void for every purpose whatsoever."

And I remember well that General Toombs was supported by the convention in his contention that no legislature and no court of the state could, under this provision, assume authority to limit or restrain the exercise of the power of taxation by the general assembly for constitutionally enumerated purposes.

The Need of Tax Reforms.

It is generally conceded that recent events and experiences of the state in the conduct of its fiscal affairs call imperatively for a reformed system of taxation—one that shall take the burdens off of the mere ownership of property that produces no income to the owner that will abolish the effete and ineffective ad valorem method and substitute classification of subjects for taxation by licenses, excises and specific taxes upon incomes and sales of any form of property, tangible or intangible.

The science of taxation has been reduced to equitable principles by experts who have studied the subject from every angle and have proven by ample experiments that a state can support itself by a scientific system that is just, equitable and unoppressive to every citizen of the commonwealth. That is the system that Georgians need and should now demand of their lawmakers.

Health Talks

THE SCANDAL OF TONSILLECTOMY. —6. SAFE DISPOSAL OF BAD TONSILS.

In several recent talks about tonsils here I have cited the report of Dr. Albert S. Welsh on the results of a pathologic study of 1,000 tonsils which he examined after their removal in a dispensary in a large city in the middle west. That report was published back in 1927. I waited over two years to make any comment on the matter here. In the interim I have sought the views of many representative physicians and a distinct reactionary feeling is unquestionably growing in the medical mind, towards the removal of tonsils and adenoids. I want readers who may have confidence in my teachings to understand that I am striving earnestly to present here, not just my personal notion—I always try to make the fact clear when I do give my own opinion about anything—but the present consensus of opinion of the best physicians. I may say that the views expressed in confidence by some excellent physicians have astonished me; especially so the candid declaration of one man of recognized ability, that he believes he sees as much trouble, both in the throat and in the general system in patients after they have had the tonsils removed by the best nose and throat specialists as these patients have had before the operation. Several other good physicians who heard this comment seemed inclined to agree with it.

Altogether I think it is fair to say that the chapter on the era of wholesale tonsil and adenoid removal has not been a proud one in the history of medicine. Indeed I should not dwell on it here, but for the fact that some of the profession seems disposed to continue it. Have you a little tin doctor in your community? A social service worker, nurse, maybe a teacher, who rounds up the children of the poor and uneducated, takes 'em to the clinic or dispensary and has their tonsils and adenoids (if any) removed? That is the kind of criminal malpractice that thrives where the general public is low in intelligence and the medical profession is correspondingly weak, and that sweet soul, Lady Bountiful, wearing a charming uniform and perhaps a pretty Red Cross symbol, takes charge of public health and what used to be private practice.

I have described in foregoing articles the modern method of obliterating infected or enlarged tonsils by diathermy (electro-desiccation, electro-coagulation). Only the better physicians in the community are prepared to give patients this boon. Even after the very costly apparatus has been installed the doctor must devote much study to the difficult technic. Finally, it is comparatively tedious work for the doctor and demands skill and gentleness and patience, unlike the crude surgical removal of tonsils. Any doctor can remove the tonsils and adenoids in a few minutes at operation; this modern way requires a dozen or more visits to the doctor's office at intervals of several days. But the modern way is SAFE, virtually painless, and when properly done leaves the throat clean and as nearly normal as the best of operations can. As for foci of infection in the tonsils, the new way obliterates and destroys them more certainly than even surgery can —AND more safely.

TOM HEFLIN DEMANDS RASKOB RESIGNATION

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(AP)—A demand that John J. Raskob resign as chairman of the democratic national committee was made in the senate today by Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama.

The Alabaman said five democratic senators who would not say Raskob should relinquish his office could not be found.

Heflin added that not more than 15 democrats in the house, outside of what he termed "the Tammany group" could be found who would not favor Raskob's resignation.

Saying the "Roman Catholic-Tammany-Raskob regime" had been working against his candidacy for renomination for the senate from Alabama, Heflin shouted:

"I'll defy them, I'll whip them in my state either in a democratic primary or out of it."

Heflin has been barred from the democratic primary because he refused to support Alfred E. Smith for president in 1928.

Referring to testimony before the senate lobby committee last Friday by Raskob that he had contributed $65,000 to the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, and that one of its objects was to elect members of congress in favor of repeal or modification of the prohibition law, Heflin added:

"We have come to a miserable pass when we have the chairman of the democratic committee giving money by the thousands to elect wet republicans and to defeat dry democrats."

Heflin charged that Raskob was attempting to injure Senator Simmons, democrat, North Carolina, who is up for re-election this year. Simmons also refused to support Smith in 1928.

'Everybody's Business'

BY JOHN F. SINCLAIR.

Eaton's Dream of Steel Empire Centering Cleveland May Come True—Niagara and Mohawk Hudson Power to Consolidate.

Sir Henri Deterding, head of the Royal Dutch Shell Oil Company, who arrived yesterday in New York, believes that the oil war is nearly over, and that the American oil companies —in fact every oil company, whether American or European—will be benefited.

Here are a few of the crisp comments he made an hour after landing:

"Restrict drilling—it is foolish to produce twice as much oil as can be sold—too much destructive competition—competition is largely a matter of vanity, don't you think?"

Sir Henri sums up the present situation in these words: "I think American oil producers are beginning to see reason. You cannot make money at present prices."

Crude oil prices in the mid-continent field are expected to advance in the next 10 days.

Cyrus S. Eaton's dream of a great steel empire, centering around Cleveland and Youngstown, may still come true.

But Mr. Eaton now has his back to the wall. He is against the merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with the Bethlehem Steel Company. He wants local control of local enterprises. The promerger forces, however, claim proxies for 870,000 shares, or 70,000 shares more than is needed to put over the billion dollar deal.

Mr. Eaton's reply is that there has been no official count as yet and cannot be until a disposition of every proxy has been determined by mutual consent or by court action. So nobody knows yet what the outcome will be.

Charges, counter charges, injunctions and counter injunctions follow in quick succession. Technical rulings fill the picture.

It's a titanic struggle between two powerful groups. Is it the beginning of a new struggle in America for industrial control? Will the steady concentration of industry continue? Or is this struggle of the giants an indication that the fight against eastern concentration has begun.

Is Mr. Eaton right when he says that unless victory comes soon to the local communities they "will be relegated to no more than mere mill towns?"

This nerve-wrecking contest may have resolved itself into just that.

The giant Niagara Hudson Power Corporation is making progress. The election of L. K. Thorne, president of Bonbright & Company and of the American Superpower Corporation, this week to the directorate of Niagara Hudson Power is another indication of the closer tieup of the Morgan interests to this new huge utility holding company.

Look at the board: Floyd L. Carlisle, chairman; Arthur V. Davis, chairman of the board of the Aluminum Corporation of America (a Mellon company); George H. Howard, president of the United Corporation; George Roberts, New York attorney; Jacob F. Schoellkopf, Jr., Paul A. Schoellkopf, Alfred H. Schoellkopf, all three of the Buffalo Niagara Power Company; Harold Stanley of J. P. Morgan & Co., and John E. Zimmerman, president of the United Gas Improvement Company.

Some board that.

This week the stockholders of the Niagara Hudson Power Company met and approved the plan to consolidate that company and the Mohawk Hudson Power Corporation. Soon the stockholders of the Northeastern Power Corporation will meet to consider the sale of all of its assets to this new huge corporation.

Another company which will be taken over as soon as plans are completed is the Buffalo, Niagara & Eastern Power Corporation.

"Not this year—perhaps not in five years. But some day the United States will be supplied with power and light by half a dozen or less huge public utility corporations. Niagara Hudson Corporation will be one of them," said a New York public utility leader to me yesterday.

So the simplification of its holding structure goes on. Yes, watch Niagara Hudson Power Corporation! It's emerging as the giant public utility corporation of the east.

Thomas E. Murray, New York inventor and engineer, who died last year, was little known outside his own profession.

Among intimate friends, he was supposed to have received large royalties from patents used in public utilities, but no one realized the extent of his fortune.

Yet this utility magnate and engineer, according to his attorneys, left an estate estimated anywhere from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000.

How many millionaires are there in the United States today? A man, whose earning assets bring him in $50,000 to $60,000 a year, is in the millionaire class. But there are many men whose professional income is from $50,000 to $100,000 a year, with little of it coming from earning assets. These men, too, are considered "living" millionaires.

Today there are supposed to be in the United States approximately 25,000 millionaires. If all facts were known, this figure might well be increased by at least 50 per cent.

Nothing is so elusive or secretive as money.

The Federal Reserve officials have been working for years to make bankers' acceptances popular with American banks. It has not had much success.

Robert H. Bean, the executive secretary of the American acceptance council, declares that American banks bought less than 6 per cent of the American acceptances created in the United States in 1929, while foreign banks absorbed more than 50 per cent.

While new in the United States, the bankers' acceptance is recognized in Europe as an excellent investment for banks. In the United States, commercial paper is more in demand than the acceptance. Why? Because it's better known.

"The foreign banker understands every angle of the acceptance; he knows about the bankers' bills as an investment; he wants security and the rate is not of the first importance," says Mr. Bean. "It's about time the American bankers face their responsibility to the bill market and to the acceptance business in its entirety and act accordingly."

Enlarging the acceptance market is one way to co-operate in the building up of American foreign trade. Fifty years from now it will be so recognized.

But today in the swift moving business panorama it is passed up as more or less incidental and unimportant.

A Stradivarius Violin Produces Only Jazz for a Jazz Player

By Robert Quillen

It frequently happens that marriage fails in the same sense that pearls fail when cast before swine.

To the gross mind the mating of a man and a woman is in no sense different from the casual mating of brutes.

It is a biological function required by nature—nothing more.

But marriage differs from mating in the same degree that men differ from cattle, and that difference has been apparent to the people of all lands in all ages.

The instinct that prompts the races of men to worship a god prompts them also to recognize marriage as a sacred contract, deserving and requiring the benediction of their religion

And true marriage is religious, for it unites two souls and blends two personalities that collaborate, with the Creator to produce a third soul that may serve as an instrument to change the destiny of mankind.

When a young man and a young woman stand before their families and friends and pledge themselves to love and cherish one another, in sickness and in health, until death shall part them, and thus devote themselves to the happy adventure of building a fortune and a family—working and growing together until in wise and compassionate old age they leave the world better than they found it, they have known the abundant life and have achieved the highest destiny of mankind.

And this sex union and experience is so natural and so necessary that to vary it in any detail is to lessen the dignity and profit and joy of it.

Those who marry secretly or furtively are cheated of some majesty and benediction, and their ability to undertake the adventure so lightly reveals a lack of understanding that will keep their union far short of the ideal.

Even those who begin their marriaed life with riches will miss much of the joy of natural marriage, for the natural way is to begin with little except hope and courage and build by helping one another.

Those who miss the joy of building a home are but one degree more fortunate than those who deny themselves children.

The artificiality of modern life robs marriage of many of its natural joys and benefits, but its dignity and sacredness remain for those who have the capacity to understand its nature.

When it is made a casual sex experience, lightly undertaken, it fails for the same reason that a cathedral fails to impress the blind.

Democrats See New Hope In Illinois Senate Contest

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(Special.)—Democrats of the national capital were turning their eyes hopefully today on the political situation in Illinois, where from the bitter republican primary contest of yesterday they see an opportunity to elect a member of their party to the United States senate for the first time since 1912.

The senatorial contest will be fought out over the much-agitated prohibition issue between Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, widow of the late Senator Medill McCormick and daughter of the late Senator Mark Hanna, of Ohio, who won a decisive victory for the republican nomination over Senator Charles S. Deneen, and former Senator James Hamilton Lewis, an equally decisive winner in the democratic primaries.

Not only because Mrs. McCormick is seeking the honor as the first member of her sex to be elected to the senate, but because of the personalities and issues involved, the Illinois contest is certain to attract as much attention nationally as any congressional or senatorial race in the country.

Although Illinois normally is preponderantly republican, the chief basis of democratic hopes for success, aside from the effectiveness of the prohibition issue in the state lies in the bitter feud which developed during the primary campaign between the McCormick and Deneen republican factions. Long before the actual date of the primaries, it was evident that the bitterness engendered was so great that a serious bolt in republican ranks was threatened, regardless of which of the contestants won the nomination.

Thus former Senator Lewis is expected to be the beneficiary of a considerable block of Deneen votes, to say nothing of the wet republican element that will be attracted to his liberal views on prohibition. Democrats and republicans alike here, those who are informed on the Illinois situation, really believe that he has a strong chance of election.

In Georgia the outcome will be watched with more than the usual political interest. Former Senator Lewis, while not a native of the state, spent much of his youth there. He received his primary and legal education at Savannah and married a Georgia girl, formerly Miss Rose Lawton, of Douglas.

Lewis, known for years to his friends as "J. Ham," alone stands in the way of the entrance of the first woman to the senate through the elective route.

For a day only, one woman has sat in the senate of the United States as a member of that body—Mrs. Rebecca L. Felton, who was appointed to a vacancy by former Governor Hardwick of Georgia. Before she took the oath of office Senator George, her successor, had been elected to the senate.

The big issue as between Mrs. McCormick and Senator Lewis is to be prohibition if Senator Lewis can make it so. Mrs. McCormick was indorsed by the Anti-Saloon League, with Senator Deenen, during the primary campaign. There are indications, however, that many wets in the republican party favored Mrs. McCormick over Deneen. He had voted for the Jones "five-and-ten" law and she had not voted on that measure.

Illinois had a refendum on the subject of permitting manufacture and sale of light wines and beer. It went "wet" in this election by something over 408,000 votes. The drys insist, however, that they did not get out their full strength in this referendum, and it is doubtful that they did. That was back in 1922.

Mrs. McCormick made her big issue in the campaign the World Court. She took a firm stand against American adherence to the court on the ground that the court is merely a "League of Nations" court. She announced that if elected to the senate she would vote against court adherence if the issue is presented during her term.

Illinois for years has been overwhelmingly republican in state and national elections. The late George Brennan, democratic boss of Chicago in 1926, running as a wet against Frank L. Smith, the republican nominee, who had the indorsement of the Anti-Saloon League, lost in the contest for the senate. Smith's lead was only 47,000 over the vote cast for Brennan. But Magill, an independent dry republican, polled 156,00 votes in the same election.

Smith was under the handicap of the senate campaign fund investigation of that year, which revealed the fact that in his primary campaign, while he was president of the state public utility board, he had accepted $125,000 in contributions from Insull and other public utility magnates. Smith was denied a seat in the senate later because of these revelations.

Lewis' candidacy, however, is a different proposition from that of George Brennan. He will have the democrats of the state more solidly back of him. He is the only democrat to have been elected to the senate for years from the state of Illinois, back in 1912 when the bull moose split occurred in the republican party. He is a good campaign speaker. The democrats will do their utmost to win with Lewis in the election.

HOOVER OIL PROGRAM GIVEN JOLT BY COURT

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(AP)—President Hoover's plan for oil conservation was threatened today in a decision of a District of Columbia supreme court justice which disapproved the policy of Secretary Wilbur in refusing permits to drill for oil and gas on public lands.

Acting in accordance with the Hoover conservation policy announced last March, Secretary Wilbur directed that no more permits to prospect for oil and gas be approved and that pending applications be rejected.

Today Justice Jenning Bailey announced that he would grant a mandamus against Secretary Wilbur directing him to reinstate the applications of Richard D. Vedder, of California, and Roy C. Barton, of New Mexico, for permits to search for oil and gas on public lands.

At the time the president's policy was announced, approximately 20,000 applications to drill for oil and gas on the millions of acres of land owned by the government were pending. The majority of these were rejected and since then Secretary Wilbur has consistently refused to grant new applications. Actions to compel the secretary of the interior were begun immediately in the District of Columbia supreme court.

After Justice Bailey's order directing the mandamus applications is handed down, an appeal by the government is expected and the litigation may go before the supreme court before it is finally settled.

In his opinion, Justice Bailey held that the laws governing oil and gas permits do not give the president or the secretary of the interior the power that has been claimed by Wilbur.

The judge said that it was true that the act provided that the granting of a prospecting permit for oil and gas be discretionary with the interior secretary "and any application may be granted or denied either in part or in its entirety as the facts may be deemed to warrant."

"It is only recently, however," he said, "that the contention had been made that under this provision the secretary may refuse to grant any permits at all. . . . I think the discretion vested in the secretary is a judicial one and not an absolute one."

W.C.T.U. WORKER HELD FOR 'SCANDAL LETTERS'

SPOKANE, Wash., April 9.—(AP) A two-year-old mystery cloaking a series of "scandal letters" to officers and others, was believed cleared up here today in a confession of Miss Lelle Jourdan, 37, secretary of the Spokane County Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Miss Jourdan's statement, Deputy Prosecutor Del Cary Smith announced, said she had written numerous letters telling officers of fictitious gambling and liquor law violations. She admitted, officers said, that a federal grand jury indictment of James Rainey and his son, Arthur, was the result of letters she had written to herself, containing obscene references and proposals. She testified before the jury to obtain the indictments. The charges against the Raineys were not pressed.

Postal authorities, however, refused to believe the two men were guilty and their investigations brought about Miss Jourdan's arrest and a subsequent signed statement. She said she started the letters first as a joke, and then, as the situation became more complicated, did not stop writing because "there did not seem to be a stopping place."

Many of the letters she said she had written to herself were reported to Sheriff Brower "just simply because I liked Mr. Brower and like to hear him and talk to him."

She implicated the elder Rainey, she said, because Mrs. Rainey told her that the man had refused to permit her to sell vanilla extract to raise funds for a Ladies' Aid Society.

Miss Jourdan was held for the United States commissioner on a $500 bond to await the next session of the federal grand jury.

WOMAN "VICTIM'S" SHOT KILLS BANDIT

CHICAGO, April 9.—(AP)—Death from a pistol bullet fired by a woman ended the criminal career, police said, of Frank De Rocco, who died in a hospital yesterday.

Instead of putting up her hands as commanded by two bandits who tried to hold up a rooming house, Miss Emily Marshall, proprietor of the place, reached for a pistol and fired. De Rocco's companion escaped.

Predicted Loan Will Make Extra Session Unnecessary

State Leaders Think With Schools Relieved Other Arrears Can Be Arranged For.

BY FRANCIS W. CLARKE.

A general feeling of relief was prevalent in state political circles Wednesday, evidently as the result of the belief that the threatened extra session of the general assembly would be averted following the borrowing of $2,500,000 Tuesday by the governor to relieve the public schools of the state.

With the proposed call being opposed overwhelmingly by the press of the state, and with opposition being expressed by most of the officials at the capitol and by practically all of the candidates who have been mentioned in connection with races for state house offices, it is felt that the probability of the call being made by the governor is much less than it was last week.

Tuesday's loan, while it will not meet the entire amount of money due to the school system, will undoubtedly relieve the present critical condition of the schools, leaving as the chief unpaid arrears the sums due the state insane asylum at Milledgeville and the pensions. With the schools taken care of, therefore, it is considered practically a certainty that the governor would not call the general assembly in extra session until every effort had been made to tide over the asylum and the pensioners until the next regular session.

Candidates Opposed.

Opposition to the proposed call has been especially pronounced among those considering the race for the governorship, the position being taken that this race would become badly involved in the situation if the legislature were in session during the heart of the race.

These possible candidates based their position on the argument that there would undoubtedly be considerable difference of opinion between the members of the legislature and that they as candidates for governor would be expected, and would have, to present their views on the subject of state finances, with the result that they might drive from the ranks of their supporters those with whom they did not agree. This would, of course, result in a switching of support, which would make it difficult for a candidate to know anything definite about the condition of his race.

Opposition Hinted.

Determined opposition to the policies of the governor also was hinted Wednesday when it was authentically learned that Governor Hardman planned to include the so-called consolidation bill, providing for the reorganization of the state government, in his call.

Governor Hardman has seen several members of the special commission who agreed on the terms of the consolidation bill introduced and defeated at the last session of the legislature, sounding their views as to the possibility of such a bill passing at the projected extra session.

The chief executive, it was said, considers the consolidation program which he has advocated as intimately and unseverably bound with an economical administration.

Certain groups of the legislature are known to be antagonistic to the consolidation scheme. One member called into conference with the governor later frankly stated that he would be opposed to the bill unless it could be shown that the change would increase efficiency and economy, and would not mean that present office-holders would be "legislated" from their offices.

Many members of the legislature are also known to have expressed disapproval of an extra session call, while business interests generally throughout Georgia oppose it if the state's finances can possibly be tided over until the next regular session.

For all of these reasons, therefore, opinion generally Wednesday was that the action of the governor in negotiating the $2,500,000 loan to relieve the schools from their distressing condition, would undoubtedly create such a relief in the state's financial embarrassment as to make it possible to avoid the extra session.

Quiet Committee Meeting.

It was also predicted Wednesday at the capitol that the approaching meeting of the democratic state executive committee in Atlanta would be one of the quietest and shortest on record. It is probably that the committee may meet, adopt rules and regulations for the September primary practically the same, or exactly the same, as those which governed the last primary, pass a few resolutions of an unimportant nature and adjourn after a session of less than an hour.

Only two suggestions have been made that would have caused a wrangle in the session of the committee, these being a possible slap of some kind at the Hoovercrats and the proposal that the entry lists for candidates be kept open for a much longer time than heretofore. Since neither of these suggestions have met with support it is considered doubtful if they will come up at the meeting of the committee.

The feeling is general that the Hoovercrats should be accorded a warm welcome back into the party and the suggestion made as to the keeping open of the entry lists met with a storm of disapproval, this disapproval being based on the ground that the suggestion would permit certain candidates to jockey around until near the end of the campaign before making known their intentions. The campaigns of the candidates who had formally entered would therefore be kept in uncertainty, since later announcements might deprive them of elements of strength they could otherwise count on.

All in all the comment in local political circles Wednesday was all of a nature that was enheartening in allaying somewhat the feeling which has existed that Georgia this summer was to have one of its longest and warmest political campaigns, further complicated by an extra session of the legislature.

Crawford Addresses Foreign Trade Club

Importance of finished manufactures in the American export trade was stressed Wednesday by Lindsay Crawford, field agent for the National Foreign Trade Council, New York city, in an address to the Atlanta Foreign Trade Club.

"The chief feature of the American export trade is the important part that finished manufactures play as a stabilizing influence," Crawford said.

Discussing what he termed the recent "repercussions of the securities market," Crawford said that the finished manufactures exported in January of this year represented 47.5 per cent of the total exports as compared with 44.7 per cent in January, 1929. The proportion in February had risen to 55.3 per cent, he said, showing that exports of finished manufactures were an important factor in maintaining the national standard of living.

The speaker, who was the first trade commissioner for the Irish Free State in the United States, said that there were indications that business "is turning the corner" and that continued enterprise in the foreign field would bring its own reward.

STATE COLLEGE HEADS TO GATHER HERE TODAY

Problems Involving Institutions To Be Discussed. Hardman Silent on Session.

Immediate financial difficulties of the state public school system having been cared for through a $2,500,000 loan, problems involving colleges and higher educational institutions of Georgia will be considered by Governor Hardman today.

While the governor stated that Chancellor C. M. Snelling, of the University of Georgia, had arranged the session, he was silent on the names of those invited. Further conferences with heads of departments and of other state institutions, including charitable and eleemosynary institutions have been arranged, the executive indicated.

No word was forthcoming from the governor, however, in regard to the extra session of the legislature, which has been advocated in some circles as a means of meeting financial difficulties. The governor, following a conference with house and senate finance committee heads on Saturday, said the sentiment of the meeting seemed to point toward an extra session, although he had not as yet decided what to do. At that time the governor said he was opposed to exercising his borrowing power unless absolutely necessary.

It was pointed out at the state capitol that the governor had a $500,000 emergency fund upon which to draw for state needs if he so desired.

17 MORE SCHOOLS IN GARDEN CONTEST

Estimated That More Than 10,000 Children Are Now Busy at Work on Garden Plots.

In less than a week 17 schools have joined the 65 already enrolled in the health garden contest being conducted by the Georgia State College of Agriculture, with the backing of The Atlanta Constitution and the Southern Cultivator. This makes a total of 65 schools which are seeking the prizes to be offered by Atlanta merchants, with more than 10,000 children busy at their individual garden plots.

The unsettled financial condition of the county schools as a result of the state failing to meet the appropriations for the school fund has caused many schools to close and in others the teachers, expecting to have the schools closed at any time, have been hesitant about entering their students in the contest, but, notwithstanding, every mail is bringing additional requests for enrollment blanks. It is expected that with the payments to the schools which will be made out of the loan negotiated this week by the governor, the entries will grow by leaps and bounds.

Reports from state college officials also tell of interest in the contest in adjoining states. From Walhalla, S. C., Mrs. Hayne Jones, teacher in the Walhalla Mill primary school, wrote: "My little boys and girls have started vegetable plant growing and the culture of flowers as an extra curricula activity and I would like all the literature possible." Mrs. J. S. Martin, Sandy Springs, S. C., has written for copies of "Gardening for Health" for use in her better gardens class.

Requests for this same bulletin which is being used in the schools of Georgia have also come from many people in towns and cities in South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi and Virginia. L. Duncan, of Hollywood, Ala., wrote: "While not eligible for the contest, I wish to ask that you forward me the 'Bulletin.' I think this is a great work that has been undertaken and know it will be highly successful."

To Reach Adults.

Part of the objective of the health garden contest is to reach the adults. H. W. McWilliams, secretary of Young Farmers' Club, Griffin, wrote that he had told agricultural leaders that they have gotten the older people in trouble, for they have simply gone crazy on gardens and poultry. J. M. Hargrove, Sycamore, Ga., said: "Ten years ago I quit taking medicine and began paying more attention to my diet, and have not had to take medicine but twice since." Such letters as the one from H. D. Reid, Temple, Ga., we appreciate. He wrote: "I am very much interested in garden work and vegetable raising as I am the father of six children and am very much interested in their health."

"Gardening for Health," bulletin No. 380, published by the Georgia State College of Agriculture, Athens, Ga., is intended primarily for use by the boys and girls in the Georgia health garden contest being sponsored by that institution. The Atlanta Constitution, Southern Cultivator, the public school systems, public health boards, county agents and home demonstration agents; but this bulletin will be sent free of charge to others who request it.

EMPRESS' DEATH LAID TO UNTIMELY BATHING

LONDON, April 8.—(AP)—An Addis Ababa dispatch today to the London Daily Mail said that a bath while she was suffering from diabetes was the immediate cause of the death of Empress Duditu (Judith), of Abyssinia last Wednesday.

The empress became seriously ill a fortnight ago, the dispatch said. She allowed nobody but the priests to attend her. They prescribed a bath, and furnished holy water for the ablution. European physicians were called only after it was too late.

The Abyssinians were converted to Christianity in the fourth century and since have retained their conection with the Alexandrian church.

INDIANA MAN DIES IN AUTO ACCIDENT

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 9.—(AP)—William Lindsay, of Hammond, Ind., died tonight at a local hospital from injuries received on the Coastal highway five miles north of Ridgeland, S. C., in an automobile accident.

He suffered internal injuries and a severe compound fracture of one leg. His wife, who was driving the automobile at the time of the accident, received a severe shock and a bad gash in her scalp.

Sheriff Ben F. Spivey, of Ridgeland, who investigated the accident, reported that a large sedan was going at approximately 70 miles an hour when the light roadster in which Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay endeavored to pass. Both cars were north bound. Before fully clearing the sedan the driver of the roadster started to cut back to the right of the road, Sheriff Spivey said he had learned, and a sideswipe occurred.

Continuing along the edge of the pavement, the roadster went on 90 feet, began to overturn, doing so four times and came to rest down a six-foot embankment. Mr. Lindsay was pinned under the car in water and would have drowned within a few minutes had not persons extricated him.

Occupants of the sedan have not been identified. Lindsay is said to be a salesman and resided at 22 State street in the Indiana city.

CORNELIA FESTIVAL SET FOR APRIL 17

CORNELIA, Ga., April 9.—The date of north Georgia's picturesque apple blossom festival here was announced as Thursday, April 17, here today. Committees on decorated floats to take part in the big parade report the promise of more than 50 individual beautifully decorated floats, many of them of historical interest. It is likely to be the finest pageant ever seen in north Georgia.

The actual date of the festival will be determined by the opening of the apple blossoms, which time can be anticipated early enough in advance to give the public several days' notice of this gala affair.

Much enthusiasm is being manifested throughout this section in the Queen's contest. Among those entered are Miss Elizabeth Cooley, Clarkesville; Miss Jessie Cathey, Clayton; Miss Katherine Neel, Cornelia; Miss Emilie Towner, Cornelia; "Miss Kiwanis," Gainesville; Miss Dorothea Reynolds, Gainesville; Miss Susie Ritchie, Piedmont College; Miss Mildred Brown, Toccoa; Miss Sudie Cawthorn, Toccoa; Miss Zenith Sisk, Toccoa; Miss Louise Addison, Toccoa.

ROME, Ga., April 9.—The Floyd county grand jury, in a report to Judge James Maddox, Wednesday, censured the Floyd county board of commissioners of roads and revenues for the methods in which county affairs are being handled. The jury recommended that the chain gang camp be abolished with the exception of county prisoners, which it is necessary to keep.

Among other recommendations made were those that a modern up-to-date accounting system be installed with a view to determining definitely the expense incident to each department of the county, and particularly with reference to the road work, and that some responsible qualified man be named to make all purchases for the county.

Know Your A-B-C's And You Know You Are Right

"Officer, where can I get a drink in this town?"
"You see that church over there? It's about the only place where you can't get it."
—and that's about the situation in any Georgia town.

Is this the real Georgia?

Does vice, hypocrisy, official corruption and general drunkenness—in the saddle for ten years of Prohibition—really represent your State?

GEORGIA, first community in the western world to experiment with Prohibition! Georgia, with its high traditions of public and private honor; its great rural population, its undiluted American blood—the ideal laboratory for the noble experiment! What are the results?

READ Walter Liggett's great fact-finding article, "Georgia—Godly but Guzzling"—when you know the ghastly truth, you cannot remain indifferent.

The same depressing tale of total failure and moral ruin that you find in every American town that has tried it—except that in Georgia liquor is cheaper and more plentiful. Nay, more; Georgia has pasted up new records of crime and drunkenness for the world to shoot at!

This is not an indictment of Georgia's citizens but of the system they have permitted to flourish, till like the fabled Upas-tree it poisons the very air.

Georgia is wringing wet! Georgia swarms with bootleggers, moonshiners, rum-runners, hi-jackers and corrupt enforcement agents!

Walter W. Liggett tells the whole appalling story in the May PLAIN TALK. He nails it down with facts and figures, supplemented by interviews with people all over the state who are in a position to know—lawyers, judges, clergymen, police officials, bootleggers—every walk of society!

Here are some high-lights in this hair-raising article . . . ATHENS: educational center of Georgia; a still captured in one of the fraternity houses; two automobiles kept busy hauling student drunks away from a football game! . . . AUGUSTA: sets up all-time record for drunkenness; "hip-pocket" bootleggers infest populous corners; "boss-bootlegger" laments lowering of ethical standards! . . . SAVANNAH: "I was offered a quart of Scotch for $8.00 less than ten minutes after my arrival in the city;" a rousing business of supplying tourists with imported liquor! . . . MACON: Chief Watkins says "they are making it everywhere on the farms and you can't keep people from buying it . . . I know there is more drinking among young folks and women!" . . . ATLANTA: delinquency among juveniles more than trebled since Prohibition; dry judge tries to cover up public records revealing frightful conditions; Chief Beavers says "bootlegging is increasing by leaps and bounds"; you can buy all the corn liquor you want for $2.50 a gallon (it cost $25 during the war); both sons of titular head of Georgia Anti-Saloon League sent to penitentiary for moonshining!

It is natural for a patriotic citizen of Georgia to suppose that the evils he sees around him are exceptional. They are not! They are universal! Read the raw facts as set forth in Walter W. Liggett's fearless, fair, factual article. It's a challenge to the pride and patriotism of the real Georgia, a State of honorable men and women who have been beguiled, deceived and betrayed.

A maze of debris was tossed into the air 200 feet when 100 pounds of dynamite, placed by blasting experts, was touched off at Alligator Lake, Millen, Ga. It was the state's work in reclaiming a large area of farming lands and dealt a blow to malaria by draining the lake, which had long been a haven for the anopheles mosquito. At the left below is a group cheering as a ditch, half a mile long, was opened prior to the blasting of the hill between the lake and the Ogeechee river. Lower right is a view of the lake which spreads over an area of 700 acres.

'Tourist Crop' Nets Florida 150 Million During Past Year

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 9.—(AP)—Edward W. Lane, of Jacksonville, Fla., chairman of the board of the Atlantic National Bank of that city, said here today while attending a bank meeting that Florida's "tourist crop," as he termed it, brought that state $150,000,000 last year.

The "tourist crop," said Mr. Lane, is profitable for any state and has been of enormous benefit to Florida. Some idea of the value of it, he said, could be obtained by comparing it with the cotton crop in Georgia, which brought in approximately the same amount but based upon a per capita return Florida's benefit would be twice that of Georgia because of the difference in population.

Florida's citrus crop was as profitable as it has ever been, he said, in spite of the embargo on the exportation of fruits into certain states.

The great boom of several years ago put Florida 25 years ahead, Mr. Lane said, and what remains for the future now is for Florida to digest what it has. The improvements are there to stay, he emphasized.

Biggest Portion of State's Task in Draining Haven of Anopheles Mosquito is Completed at Millen.

MILLEN, Ga., April 9.—(Special.)—One of the last stands in Georgia of the anopholes mosquito, carrier of the germs of that bane of southern states, malaria, Wednesday began to disappear as the result of a huge program of blasting carried on at Alligator lake, when water from 700 acres of swamp surged through a cut blown out of a hill with the aid of dynamite.

Everything had been made ready when the spectators were ordered into a safety zone and the engineers prepared to push in the plungers that detonated the dynamite. After the explosive hurled earth 200 feet into the air, a rush of water through the cut began, as the dank, scummy swamp water sought a lower lever.

For more than half a century the waters of Alligator lake have boded ill for the persons living in that vicinity. As it was impossible to properly oil 700 acres of water surface and eliminate the mosquito larvae, the dreaded malarial pests multiplied until even the 'Geechee negroes, hardened to the disease by the blood of their African forefathers, suffered seriously from the plague of mosquitoes. And when a 'Geechee "nigger" suffers from malaria, it's practically sure death for a white person to live in that vicinity.

About the only things that thrived in Alligator lake were the mosquitoes and the swamp cypress, whose sturdy trunks rose above roots firmly imbedded in the black loam over which the black mosquito breeding waters were stagnant for many years.

Ditch First Cut.

A ditch of half a mile in length was cut first. Then, with a hill standing between the lake and the Ogeechee river, dynamite was sunk into numerous holes, and, in one grand explosion, the hill was removed as an obstacle to passage of the waters, with the result that water from the 700-acre tract began to pour into the Ogeechee with a speed that spells draining of the area within at least two weeks.

The main body of water, ranging in depth from 5 to 20 feet and covering 200, acres, was reached by Wednesday's explosion. The work of blasting has not been concluded, but the greatest portion of the job is out of the way.

Progress of the blasting was hindered by the unexpected presence of a tough stratum of pipe clay, making it difficult for the borers. The work is under the direction of L. M. Clarkson, chief engineer of the state board of health. Belief was expressed that the successful draining of Alligator lake will also mean draining of Duke's pond, covering between 2,000 and 3,000 acres, thereby ridding Jenkins county of its two major breeding places for mosquitoes.

Dr. S. H. Haddock, health commissioner of Jenkins county, said last year that 11,000 of the county's 15,000 population were malaria victims. Dr. Haddock said he is well pleased with the results of a campaign begun a year ago to introduce preventive methods in the county.

An effort of a former owner to drain Alligator lake before the War Between the States with slave labor failed when the pipe clay stratum was encountered, it was said.

Bed Made in 1790 Stolen From Home

ALBANY, Ga., April 9.—(AP) Officers today were advised that an antique four-poster bed, made in 1790 by slaves, and a mahogany table had been taken from a Dougherty county home by a man and a woman, posing as furniture repairers.

Robert Slappey, owner of the furniture, said the couple called and told an aged negro caretaker, at the home alone, that they had been sent by Slappey to get the furniture for repairs. The visitors produced a bed wrench which they said the owner had given they to unscrew bolts on the bed to take it apart.

Slappey said the family had treasured the furniture as heirlooms and frequently had rejected offers of antique furniture dealers for the pieces.

COLUMBUS, Ga., April 9.—The course of military lectures for the regular and national guard company officers' classes at Fort Benning will be completed next Thursday.

Captain John W. Rodman Saturday morning discussed the operations of the first division in the second phase of the Meuse-Argonne offensive, October 4 to 31, 1918. Major Hardin C. Sweeney told of his observations of the operations of Company C, ninth machine gun battalion, third division, in the vicinty of Cunel, in the second phase of the Meuse-Argonne offensive, October 7 to 11, 1918. Captain William C. McMahon gave a talk on the operations of the first army (U. S.) in the third phase of the Meuse-Argonne, November 1 to 11, 1918. Major Alexander N. Weyand gave an account of his personal experiences during the capture of Hill 310, south of Rembercourt, in the Woevre by the second battalion 34th infantry, 7th division, on November 1 and 2, 1918. All of these discussions were in Kriz hall, academic area.

Wednesday Captain Harry J. Collins discussed Jackson's Shenandoah Valley campaign. Major Leonard R. Boyd was the second speaker and related his personal experiences while serving with company D, 16th infantry, 1st division in the Aisne-Marne offensive.

Thursday morning Captain Hurley E. Fuller will relate his personal experiences while serving with the third battalion, 47th infantry, 4th division, on the Vesle river, August 5 to 12, 1918. Captain Nathaniel E. Callen then will discuss the operations of the 3d battalion, 117th infantry, 30th division, with which he served during the British offensive toward Mabeuge October 5 to 8, 1918. This will be the last of the monographs for this year.

Target Practice Schedules Arranged.

Target practice schedules for the 1930 season have been announced at Fort Benning. They are so arranged as to insure the maximum use of all targets on the ranges assigned in order that the practice of each unit will be completed within the allotted time.

The 29th infantry will conduct its practice with the pistol, automatic rifle, rifle, machine guns, howitzer weapons and will have anti-aircraft (rifle) and musketry problems from June 16 to September 13.

Rifle practice for the 24th infantry will be held in two periods from July 1 to 19 and from August 4 to 23.

The first battalion 83d field artillery will conduct its practice from June 16 to July 19.

The 2d battalion 1st tank regiment will complete its practice with tank weapons in the period June 16 to August 16, and will conduct its pistol practice from April 1 to April 30.

Rifle practice for the infantry school detachment will be held from July 21 to August 2, and pistol practice of the military police section of the infantary school detachment from July 1 to July 19.

The 17th and 82d ordnance companies will fire the rifle from May 1 to May 31.

Company A, 7th engineers, will hold its rifle practice from August 25 to September 13.

Pistol practice for company C, 1st chemical regiment, will be held from May 1 to May 31.

Practice of the infantry team squad from which the infantry team will be selected for the national matches began on March 26 and will be completed at Fort Benning on June 15. Additional practice for the infantry team will be held at Camp Perry, Ohio.

The program for the military motor show at Fort Benning April 23 and 24 has been announced by Major Sereno E. Brett, commander of the second battalion of the first tank regiment.

The tank regiment is sponsoring the automotive show, which will include military and civilian entries.

Two general classifications of entries, military and civilian, are listed. In the military classes each organization, office, or activity, which uses government motor vehicles, will enter at least one of each type. In addition the military exhibit will comprise all classes of motor propelled weapons and cargo-carrying or troop-transporting vehicles.

The civilian entries will comprise exhibits of the newest models of passenger cars and commercial vehicles entered by local automobile dealers.

A special program of field events or stunts has been arranged. The first of these will be a handicap tank race, in which five types of tanks will compete. Handicaps in this event will be awarded in proportion to the speed and size of the respective entries.

Another event which is expected to afford considerable amusement to the spectators, is that which is open to the oldest and most decrepit car which will run under its own power.

A light tank loading contest which will demonstrate the method of loading and transporting the light tank on specially designed tank-carrying trucks will be run over a 50-yard course.

A woman's obstacle race, which is open to ladies of the garrison, will demonstrate the skill with which the army women can pass obstacles without crushing fenders. The only penalty in this event is a loss of two seconds for each obstacle struck.

A section embussing contest, which will demonstrate the loading of a section of infantry with full field equipment aboard a truck, a tire-changing contest, a wheel-changing contest, a motorized machine gun competition, polo bending, with tanks as mounts, a salvage contest for light tanks and an acceleration contest, will complete the list of special events.

OFFICERS SEARCH FOR MISSING YOUTH

ROME, Ga., April 9.—Bud Stancell, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Seaborn Stancell, of Silver Creek, Ga., has been missing from his home since 8 o'clock Tuesday morning and searching parties have been unable to locate him. He lived with his wife and parents near Silver Creek. He left his home Tuesday morning, taking a pair of mules out in the field to do some harrowing. He has not been seen since that time. He did about an hour's work and his mules were found grazing in the field. Tracks led to a thickly wooded section and all traces were lost. There is no known cause for his disappearance and a wide search is being made in this section to locate him.

Police Search For Missing Man

COLUMBUS, Ga., April 9.—(AP)—Police in a number of south Georgia towns today joined in the search for A. Harry Haddock, Columbus typewriter salesman, who left here on a business trip last week and has not returned. He was expected back last Saturday.

Haddock was in Pelham, Ga., when last heard from. He wired his wife Saturday morning that he had been delayed by repairs to his automobile after an accident and that he would return Saturday night.

An investigation begun when he failed to come home, revealed that his car was seen in Albany, Ga., Saturday afternoon. It was identified by the name of the local typewriter firm, police said.

Two Injured In Auto Crash

WAYCROSS, Ga., April 9.—Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Berry, of Dayton, Ohio, were injured, the latter seriously, when their automobile crashed into a concrete culvert opposite the Dixie Rabbit Farms, three miles south of Waycross. They were taken to a Waycross hospital by ambulance. Mrs. Berry, who is in a critical condition, had not regained consciousness late Wednesday. Her left leg was fractured, and she suffered serious bruises, having been thrown out of the car by the impact. Mr. Berry is suffering from an injured leg, and painful cuts about the face and arms.

The Berrys were returning to their home in Dayton after a visit to Daytona Beach, Fla. Mr. Berry is unable to explain why he lost control of the car, as he was not running, he says, at an excessive rate of speed. He struck the culvert a glancing blow, shattering the culvert and practically demolishing his automobile. The accident is one of five serious smashes which have occurred here in less than two weeks and caused three deaths.

ALABAMAN ARRESTED IN COLUMBUS BOMBING

W. S. Bloodworth, of Phenix City, Is Held for Questioning.

COLUMBUS, Ga., April 9.—(AP) W. S. Bloodworth, a barber of Phenix City, Ala., tonight was held in the Columbus jail on a technical charge of suspicion in connection with the bombing of the haberdashery store of D. L. Metcalf here late last night.

Bloodworth was arrested on information of persons who reported seeing him near the store shortly before the explosion, which wrecked the lobby of the building and shattered windows in nearby establishments.

Metcalf said today the damage to his store would amount to about $500. He said he did not believe the blast was intended for him, as there was no disloyalty in his organization.

Police believe the explosion was caused by a stick of dynamite with a fuse wrapped in paper and placed in the corner of the lobby. After Bloodworth's arrest they continued search for others who might have been connected with the bombing.

Stating that he "greatly deplored the explosion," O. E. Petry, president of the Georgia Federation of Labor, said he realized "there will be some who will accuse labor" because the blast occurred near a non-union barber shop, and "because of recent trouble in local theaters."

"I am confident," Petry said, "that no member of organized labor was responsible for the cowardly deed. We countenance no such methods, and the Georgia Federation of Labor and the Columbus labor assembly will do everything possible to apprehend the guilty persons."

The Coca-Cola company alledges the defendant has placed a drink on the market similar in taste and appearance to Coca-Cola and is using Coca-Cola bottles and crowns.

CASH IN ON YOUR SPARE TIME

A Few Hours a Day Will Pave the Way to A Fine New Motor Car and Extra Gold All Your Own

Get into The Atlanta Constitution's $25,000 prize campaign and make your spare time pay you BIG by winning one of the valuable awards to be given shortly after May 31. There never will be a better time to enter this great campaign than right at this moment. If you have been turning over the idea in your mind, now is the time to act.

In order to win one of the awards offered by The Constitution, all that is necessary is to obtain credits and these are given for obtaining renewal and new subscriptions to The Constitution. The huge list of awards will be given in the divisions and districts to those securing the greatest number of credits.

You can very easily become a prize winner if you take advantage of this offer and start NOW. The campaign is just getting under way and the 100,000 and 50,000 extra credit offers afford all an opportunity to set a pace in the credit getting. The extra credits provide all who enter now with the opportunity of immediately placing themselves up among the leaders and, with a little extra effort, of establishing themselves in an enviable position during the balance of the campaign.

Your spare time can pay you big dividends if you act now. Just think what it will mean to win the $3,120 Pierce-Arrow Sedan and $1,000 in gold (total value $4,120), the $2,835 Franklin Sedan and $500 in gold (total value $3,335), or any one of the other 16 automobiles in LESS THAN EIGHT WEEKS' TIME during your spare time!

This is NOT a puzzle contest. At no time during the campaign are there any puzzles to solve and in case of a tie for any of the awards, those tying will be given duplicate prizes.

If you are active in the campaign, you are BOUND to be rewarded for your efforts, as liberal cash commissions will be paid to all active non-prize winners.

Credits are all you need to win and these credits are given you for securing renewal and new subscriptions to The Atlanta Constitution. You may get these subscriptions anywhere and from anyone and two plans are offered you for obtaining them.

You can take subscriptions by contract, whereby the New subscriber signs to take The Constitution for a period of 6 months or 12 months and they pay the carrier each week for the paper. You do not collect any money whatever for these subscriptions.

Or you can take prepaid subscriptions from both Old and New subscribers and they pay in advance.

The Atlanta Constitution's plan of taking ONLY contracts on New subscriptions and paid-in-advance on both Old and New makes it fair for all candidates as it precludes any possible chance of an agent or carrier to turn over to a candidate hundreds of Old subscribers' contracts which would be very unfair to those working for their subscriptions. The subscriptions are verified—bona fide—and the workers receive the rewards.

$500 in Gold—Special Awards

By entering the campaign today you have a wonderful opportunity to share in $500 in gold to be given as special awards to the seven candidates turning in the highest amounts in New subscription business during the period starting March 26 and ending at 9 p. m., April 19.

First Prize	$200	Fourth Prize	$50
Second Prize	100	Fifth Prize	25
Third Prize	75	Sixth Prize	25
		Seventh Prize	$25

These special gold awards are given in addition to the regular awards and the winning of one will in no way interfere with your winning a regular award, too. Both New contract and New prepaid subscriptions apply on this offer and these same subscriptions will count in the 100,000 and 50,000 extra credit offer.

How Prizes Will Be Awarded

To the candidate securing the highest total of credits during The Atlanta Constitution's $25,000 Prize Campaign will be awarded the $3,120 PIERCE-ARROW SEDAN (First Grand Prize and also $1,000 in gold); to the second highest candidate in credit standing will be given the $2,835 FRANKLIN SEDAN (Second Grand Prize and also $500 in gold). These awards will be made irrespective of the divisions or districts from which the winners may be entered.

After the two grand prize winners have been elminated from further consideration, the three candidates highest in credit totals in the City Division (First Division, Districts 1 to 5, inclusive) will be determined and to them will be given, in the order named, the $1,615 NASH SEDAN, the $1,150 CHRYSLER BROUGHAM and the $935 ESSEX COACH. In like manner the three candidates highest in credit standings in the Outside Division (Second Division, Districts 6 to 10, inclusive) will be decided and to them will be awarded, in the following order, the $1,495 REO SEDAN, $1,295 MARMON-ROOSEVELT SEDAN and the $935 PONTIAC SEDAN. These division car awards will be made regardless of district boundaries in each division.

After the two grand prize winners and the six division prize winners of cars have been eliminated from further competition, next will be determined the three candidates highest in credit standing in each of the ten districts. To the leader in each district will be awarded one of the five $685 CHEVROLET COACHES or one of the five $608 FORD TUDOR SEDANS. The five $685 CHEVROLET COACHES will be given to the five highest of these ten candidates and the five $608 FORD TUDOR SEDANS will be given to the remaining five winners of district automobiles. The second highest candidate in credit standing in each district will be given a $174.50 ATWATER KENT RADIO, and the third highest candidate in credit standing in each district will be given a $146.50 ATWATER KENT RADIO.

In case of a tie for any of the prizes, the tying candidates will receive duplicate prizes.

No candidate can win more than one of the above listed prizes. All candidates not winning a regular prize will be paid a cash commission of ten per cent on all new prepaid subscriptions and five per cent on all new contract subscriptions turned in by them, providing they remain active from time of entry and turn in at least $50 in new subscriptions.

The campaign ends May 31, 1930.

TWENTY-SIXTH INSTALLMENT.

"Instruct sector captain in charge," came an order, "to report the arrival of Zone Officer 3-A, and put him through to me on X radio. Get in touch with Divisional Chief A. Reassemble dispersed units in their own zones. All units will stand by. Move."

The red light went out.

From the darkness of a wall an illuminated map sprang suddenly into view. It was a map of New York city and its environs. And it was covered with an intricate network of concentric circles, each split up into divisions and subdivisions. It was the much sought zone map—the map for which more than one wealthy man would have sacrificed a big slice of his fortune. It showed, variously colored, the notorious zones of the giant criminal group which enveloped New York . . . and it revealed what so many were seeking, the location of Head Centre.

Presently the formidable genious who had created and who controlled this dreadful and secret weapon against society was studying it from where he sat.

But there was no sound to indicate his presence. And suddenly the map disappeared as mysteriously as it had appeared. . . .

"I am sure there is someone moving about this house," said Madame Czerna.

Dawn was eerily creeping over the countryside. Stopford was at one of the windows, peering along the road.

"There is a car parked north just by the bend," he reported in a low voice, "and another south."

The woman laughed drearily.

"We are surrounded," she replied. "I know it. And some of them are inside! I am safe. I am one of them. But they will never let you go free, for they will not know what you may have learned. Listen! Don't you hear it?"

Out of an electric silence:

"Yes," Stopford admitted. "There is some bloke prowlin'! But it may be the house servants."

"There is just one hope," Madame Czerna went on monotonously. "One of the men who got away with me from the penal settlement is now my superior officer in the Zones. I think he might help me."

"I'm not keen on his help," drawled Stopford.

"You are mad! Surely you know that your life would mean no more than"—she snapped her fingers—"if you stand in their way."

"True enough," Stopford admitted. "But what's to do?"

"I must try to rouse someone. There is no all-night telephone service here. I can call the Divisional chief . . ."

"What about Head Centre?"

She crossed the room and took up the telephone. Sounds of furtive movements in the corridor became unmistakable.

"Quick," she said, "lock the door!"

Someone turned the door handle, as:

"Yes! Yes!" Madame Czerna whispered. "Please connect me with the exchange! Thank you."

Faint footsteps receded in the corridor outside. It was growing rapidly lighter. Stopford could see Madame's slender fingers twitching nervously. He crossed to the window, then pulled up, as:

"Exchange?" said the woman.

She asked for a number, of which Stopford made a careful mental note. Someone passed in the road, just below the window, walking slowly, then:

"Zone 2 A," said Madame Czerna. "Please connect me with Divisional chief . . . What is that? . . . He is on service? . . . Get him by X at once and tell him to call—wait a moment."

She put her hand over the mouthpiece and turned to Stopford.

"Your torch, quick!" she whispered. "What is this number?"

A ray of light shone out. It showed the beautiful pale face of the woman holding the instrument as she stooped to read the number. She nodded, and Stopford switched the light off.

[illegible] the mouthpiece and repeated the [illegible]mber twice.

"Yes," she said. "Is it clear? Get h[illegible] at once and give him my mess[illegible]. Good-by."

[illegible] the half-light Stopford nodded.

"What's this bloke's job of work in[illegible]he world? I mean, ostensibly."

"Will you promise to keep my confi[illegible]ce, if I tell you?" she asked.

"Yes. I suppose I must."

"My divisional chief in private life is well-known businessman."

"Good heavens," Stopford murmured. "No wonder Roscoe has been so h[illegible] up against it! What a gang! An[illegible] did I gather that the gentleman w[illegible] out on business?"

"He is away on Zone work—yes." "[illegible]ou mentioned 'X.' What, exactly[illegible]s 'X'?"

"All the officers above the rank of gro[illegible] master," she explained, "are pro[illegible]ded with a portable radio apparatus, a secret invention of Head Centre. Mine was left behind when I [illegible]n away. It is in my manicure ca[illegible]"

"Then this midnight sportsman will be[illegible]lled up right away from his divisio[illegible]l headquarters?"

"Yes. He may communicate at any mo[illegible]ent . . ."

There came a loud bang on the do[illegible]

Stopford threw the door open. Four me[illegible] entered. All wore black half-mas[illegible]s and carried repeaters. A fifth ma[illegible] came in behind the quartet. He looked toward Madame Czerna and dre[illegible] aside the lapel of his topcoat. The[illegible] was a glitter of diamonds.

"There is a car waiting for you," he [illegible]d tersely. "Head Centre's orders."

"Poor bloke," Stopford murmured. "Th[illegible] would be the night porter. Efficie[illegible], but unpleasant."

"H. Q.," a voice announced. "Report from one Officer 3-A in charge of party covering road house. He has obtained access in the usual manner, with firing group. Group master is covering night porter. Road held by Groups 3 and 4, Sector 3-A1. All in order. Dr. Stopford detained. Time 5:25. Report ends."

"Report of Divisional Chief A."

"Report to hand. Chief A is proceeding to road house in accordance with instructions. This report by X radio. No time. Report ends."

"Report of H. Q. patrol covering."

"To hand. Patrol reports that two groups hold all approaches, and that Zone Officer 3-A with third group has entered the road house. Divisional chief has just arrived. Timed five twenty-eight. Report ends."

Silence ensued for the space of a minute or more; then:

"Advise divisional chief," an order was rapped out clearly, "to bring Dr. Stopford direct to H. Q., entrance seven. Zone Officer 2-A will report to me here immediately. Instruct Zone Officer 3-A to withdraw acting units to their zones. All units standing by to be dismissed. Move."

The red light went out . . .

"Very interestin'," said Stopford, as the masked man replaced the receiver. He glanced at Madame Czerna, and then addressed the leader of the group: "You have certainly 'obtained access,' although I don't know what 'the usual manner' may be."

He stared through his monocle at the armed quartet silently standing by, and:

"I take it you're a 'firin' group,'" he said, "and while I can't agree that 'all's in order,' it's painfully obvious that I'm 'detained!'"

From some place below came a soft whistle. The man whom Stopford had addressed glanced toward the open door. Madame Czerna started.

Georgia Tech Debaters Are Defeated by Duke

Georgia Tech debaters Wednesday night were defeated by a forensic team from Duke University, the decision of the judges being unanimous. The subject was, "Resolved, that the principle of the Baumes law providing life imprisonment for habitual offenders against the criminal laws should be adopted by all of the states of the American Union."

Tech championed the affirmative side and was represented by C. B. Tompkins and H. A. Ellison, while Duke was represented by Jennings King and Everette Weatherspoon. The judges were Professor Paul Bryan, Frank Settles and R. B. Eleazer. M. L. Brittain, president of Tech, presided.

Use of Natural Resources Urged by Dr. Harrison Howe

Natural resources of the south could be used to even greater advantage if examined, evaluated and exploited by the scientific methods of chemical research, declared Dr. Harrison E. Howe, editor of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, in an address on "Chemistry Comes South" at the Shrine mosque here Wednesday night when he pointed out that while great strides had been taken in building up industries here there remained much to be done in making use of materials already at hand.

His talk was the last event on Wednesday's program of the convention of the American Chemical Society and the Atlanta public was invited to attend. Some 1,500 jammed the assembly hall in the Shrine building and loud speakers were utilized in order that the speaker's voice could be heard by all. He was introduced by William McPherson, president of the society.

Products Exhibited.

On the platform Dr. Howe had assembled samples of scores of products which now are being manufactured in the south, including dry ice, Epsom salts, tires, rayon, glass, enamels, aluminum, leather, cement, naval stores, powder, cottonseed oil and by-products and many others. He stated that his exhibit did not pretend to be complete but merely to give an idea of what is actually being done. In each case he pointed out where chemistry and industry, always inseparable, had worked together either to make an entirely new product from material which had previously been thrown away, or else had developed better and more economical methods of manufacture.

He declared that the utilization of pine trees for the manufacture of strong white paper was a field which had not yet been fully developed here and was one that could possibly be of vast importance in future years due to the fact that pulp wood can be grown in this section much faster than in other parts of the country. In naval stores also he pointed out that while raw material now was being shipped abroad for manufacture into various products, this could be done just as well in the south.

Forests Great Assets.

"Forests are among the greatest assets which the south possesses," he declared. "The cost per cord of pulp wood is lower here than anywhere in the United States; it grows faster and at the present time the south has 30 per cent of the standing timber in the country," he said.

Nitrogen fixation is another highly important industry which the speaker said would eventually be centered in the south, breaking for good and all the Chilean monopoly on this important commodity.

In connection with all this work, the speaker described the chemical laboratory of today as the greatest single contribution to the progress of the world, calling them the "temples of the future," and closed his talk with a plea for adequate support of chemical science by improving facilities for study in educational institutions, enlarged libraries, and adequate training of men who understand and sympathize with the problems peculiar to this section of the country.

remembered that no one has ever determined just how far the granite formation extends underground and how much territory it covers. The words "try and get it," however, are still considered exceedingly apt.

As a means of demonstrating the power of radium, Dr. Piggot declared that one-half gram would drive an ordinary automobile for a year. Figured, however, at the cost of $70,000 a gram, it is not thought that this method will be pressed into service within the near future.

War on Carbon Monoxide.

The eternal warfare between the scientist in his laboratory and death-producing agents in every day life has been carried to still another front.

The reports of the American Chemical Society joint committee of atmospheric pollution by auto gas, submitted Wednesday by Chairman Alexander Silverman, of the University of Pittsburgh, announces that this group has decided to conduct extensive investigations on the problem of carbon monoxide problem with a view to developing a positive means of detection of the insidious gas and if possible, some means of eliminating this compound.

"The committee has been collecting information regarding devices for eliminating carbon monoxide from exhaust gas and it has decided to prepare an article on the subject," the report states. "We expect to recommend a procedure for detecting the gas and will also submit a study of the efficiency of using ozone in garages," it was stated.

Dr. Edward Levy, medical officer of the Holland Tunnel in New York city, where the carbon monoxide problem for a time presented serious difficulties, has been added to the membership of the committee. Other members include W. P. Yant, secretary of the United States bureau of Mines; Dr. H. C. Dickinson, American Automobile Association; H. P. Anderson, American Petroleum institute; Dr. George A. Soper, American Public Health Association; T. D. Pratt, Motor Truck Association of America; Walter S. Laird, National Association of Texicabs; Dr. Leonard Greenburg, National Safety Council; T. A. Boyd, Society of Automotive Engineers.

New Insecticide Found.

Experiments are under way at the present time to make feasible for field use a comparatively new and highly effective insecticide as another step forward in the eternal struggle against the innumerable bugs of every description which make the farmer's life a burden, according to John Glassford, of the McCormick company, Baltimore, Md., in his address before the society here. It is hoped that it will supplant arsenic as being less expensive and more suitable for use in many cases.

"Pyrethrum," a vegetable substance, which is said to be non-poisonous, is the name of the compound and it is derived from plants.

Although the bureau of plant industry of the United States department of agriculture has been studying the native cultivation of pyrethrum for some years, they have not yet been determined the necessary conditions for its commercial production in this country, it was pointed out, but it is hope that this handicap can be eventually overcome. A great saving over the cost of arsenic is predicted in the event that it can be raised here in sufficient quantities to make its use feasible in the field.

It has been used for some years against household pests, it was pointed out, but only recently have its values as a field insecticide been realized.

Vitamin G Discussed.

A clue to premature old age found in the newest vitmin, G, was reported Wednesday to the health section of the American Chemical Society.

Growing of heavier cotton that can compete with trees in supplying the world's cellulose was forecast at a general session.

Only about one year old in the recognized family of diet principles, vitamin G was introduced to the chemists as possessor of special controls over growth. These newly found qualities were described by Professor H. C. Sherman, of Columbia University, in whose chemistry laboratory they are coming to light upon rat subjects.

In these animals the vitamin is directly connected with growth. Lack of it, said Dr. Sherman, may retard growth, stop it, or in extreme cases cause death.

In some rats the shortage caused premature old age. Loss of hair is one of its most commonplace danger signals. Its lack is suspected as a cause of pellagra, and Dr. Sherman said it "is presumably identical with the pellagra preventive diet discovered by Goldberger."

"The growth requirements of rats," he said, 'presumably apply to other mammals also. Vitamin G must play a prominent part in any adequately comprehensive conception of food values from now on."

Still another member of the vitamin family is suspected to be hiding behind G. Dr. Sherman called it the "new factor," stating that it too is important for growth, and that evidences of its presence have been detected by several other laboratories in addition to Columbia.

Abundant in Milk.

This new factor is abundant in milk and presumably in meat. Vitamin G is abundant in milk and leaves, such as spinach, kale and cabbage. It appears moderately, Dr. Sherman said, in meat and eggs.

Forecast of cotton's future was made by Dr. H. E. Howe, of Washington, editor of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, who told how "Chemistry Comes South." He spoke to an audience many of whom a short time previously had eaten the "meat substitute" made from cotton seed by David Kesson, of Montclair, N. J.

"Present tendencies," said Dr. Howe," would indicate a time when cotton may be grown for weight rather than for length of fiber, and its cost of production decreased with the aid of machinery to the point where it will compete successfully with cellulose from wood.

"A possible change in the traditional activities of the south will offer further chemical opportunities. The center of cotton production is moving westward and is accompanied by a certain inflow of farmers from north central regions who see opportunities for stock raising and dairying in the south. The cotton seed industry may be expected to follow the cotton crop, but we must look forward to the time when dairy products and meat packing will take its place."

Those elected were as follows: W. B. Stewart, W. M. Weaver, Jim Wood, William Krum, I. B. Wilson, W. G. Smith, Jr., and Gordon Fretnell.

a population of 255,400, according to the federal census bureau, and there were 9,486 arrests for drunkenness. That makes 371 arrests for each 10,000 population. In other words, the arrests for drunkenness per 10,000 population have increased 138 per cent under ten years of federal prohibition and the number of arrests has increased 202.5 per cent. Crime in general has kept pace with the increase in drunkenness. In 1906 there were 21,702 arrests in Atlanta, and in 1919 the number had increased only to 22,966. But in 1920—the first year of federal prohibition—the arrests climbed to 26,269 and they have been climbing ever since. Last year there were 37,224 arrests for all causes in Atlanta."

According to Mr. Liggett, since 1919 the liquor problem in Georgia has revolved around the native moonshiners. "Georgia has but few big manufacturers and little industrial alcohol," he says. "None is needed in the state. All the Georgia crackers raise corn and most of them know how to make fairly good liquor. When cotton prices were high they didn'd bother with moonshine. But when the bottom fell out of the cotton market and the boll weevil came, they set up their stills and proceeded to cash in on their corn crop. And a surprisingly large proportion of them have been cashing in ever since."

AUGUSTA CONFIRMS LIGGETT'S CHARGES.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 9.—(Special.)—Walter W. Liggett's article in Plain Talk, released for publication tomorrow, in which he makes the assertion that Augusta is the wettest city in the country is substantiated by records at police headquarters.

This statement was made by Chief of Police G. E. W. Britt today, who explained why this city was setting such a record. The chief said that Augusta is just as clean as any other city in the Union and if the police department was not so active in hauling in drunks off the streets then Liggett would never have arrived at his conclusion in placing Augusta in the front ranks as a wet city.

The chief cited several cities in Georgia where drunks are hardly noticed by members of the police departments, and also said that drinking was going on in those cities the same as it is here.

Chief Britt, backed by a militant dry police commissioner, has done a great deal in the past year toward curbing the sale of whisky here. He admits readily that he knows of at least 100 persons engaged in the whisky business here. He estimates that there are at least 400 or 500 persons engaged in the business in counties adjoining Richmond county, many of whom peddle corn whisky in this city in wholesale lots. Despite his activities in closing up speakeasies they continue to flourish and the business must be good for last month's police records show that 243 persons, men and women, white and black, were hauled in on "plain" drunk charges.

The bootleggers in this city and section are matching wits with the enforcement officers and while it is very easy to get a drink here they manage, to a great extent, to bar the officers from their places of business. They have now gone to second and third story buildings to conduct their illicit business and safe behind barred doors they easily evade the toils of the law. In the event that the door is battered down the whisky men manage to "dump" their supply before the officers gain entrance to their place of business.

Liggett's criticism of Augusta is taken as a matter of course and there has been no great hue and cry over his article, not even from the Chamber of Commerce. The churches have taken no action regarding his accusation, nor has any great drive been launched to rid the city of whisky. It is very doubtful if this could be accomplished.

Most of the whisky coming into Augusta is from adjoining counties, as federal officers and Richmond county deputy sheriffs have been very active during the past few years in destroying stills in the county and today this county boasts of comparatively few stills.

Most of the bootleggers here are crying out against the increased number being added to their fraternity. They claim that too many bootleggers are spoiling the business and that the price has been cut down and also inferior corn is being dished out to the consumer.

ATHENS DIVIDED ON LIGGETT CHARGES.

ATHENS, Ga., April 9.—(Special.) Comparison of liquor conditions in the days of the famous Athens dispensary and now was being made on all sides here tonight as a result of publication of Walter Liggett's article on prohibition enforcement in Georgia in which he asserted that there were fewer arrests for drunkenness during the dispensary days than under prohibition.

At police headquarters it was learned that Liggett's statement about the greater number of liquor arrests now than in the dispensary days was based on actual reference to the records. The entire period of the dispensary days and since prohibition was not checked, but some time ago, to settle an argument on prohibition, the best year of the dispensary—that is, the year it sold the most liquor—and a year under prohibition were checked and it was found that arrests for drunkenness under prohibition exceeded those under the dispensary.

This is not to report, however, that Liggett's reference toward prohibition goes unchallenged. An official of the university, who would not allow his name to be used in connection with a statement, asserted that conditions are much better among the student body now than under the dispensary system and an ex-city and county policeman, Aex Saye, who was with the city police force 15 years, nine years as captain, and served on the county police force as investigator for the courts and arresting officer for 15 years, declared that conditions under the dispensary were considerably worse than since prohibition went into effect.

Policemen Go Dry.

Mr. Saye declared that during the dispensary every member of the police force carried a hip flask except two. And he has known the time when firemen couldn't answer an alarm because they were too drunk for duty. 'You never smell whisky on the breath of a fireman or policeman now," he said.

On the other hand, two men connected in an official way with the county government, pointed out that during the dispensary days people got drunk and didn't care who knew it while today they buy their liquor and hide their drinking.

Chief of Police Henry W. Beusse confirmed Liggett's statement that the Athens police force does not catch 10 per cent of liquor vendors. Chief Beusse said that he doubts whether the force catches 5 per cent, although they make an effort to enforce the law.

Replying to Liggett's assertion about liquor conditions in Athens, Rev. George Stone, who has been a resident of Athens all his life, and has observed conditions under the dispensary and now declared that drunks were considerably more numerous then than since prohibition was established.

Boy Guilty of Theft Of Brother's Auto

Ralph Brown, 19, and Henry Dutton, 24, Wednesday were sentenced by Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy, of Fulton superior court, to serve 12 months each on a charge of larceny of an automobile belonging to Brown's brother, W. C. Brown, of 23 Virginia place.

The brother told the court that Ralph Brown and Dutton took the car on February 23 without his knowledge or consent, and that he did not know the car had been taken until his mother called him on the telephone and asked if his automobile was missing, informing him that Ralph and two other boys had come home with a similar car. Mrs. Brown told Judge Pomeroy she had tried to raise her boys right and that Ralph had fallen into bad company and she could do nothing with him.

Turner Reindicted To Correct Error

Re-indictment of Alderman (Dr.) J. E. Turner and Bruce Baxter, superintendent of the city garage was returned Wednesday by the Fulton county grand jury. The true bill involves the same transaction on which Turner and Baxter were indicted recently, its return being necessary because of an oversight in preparing the original bill, it was said. The transaction involved was that of the alleged receipt by Turner of a sedan value at $650 as a reward for obtaining an order from the city for overhauling and repairing ten Federal motor trucks. The second count charges Turner with receiving $550 in the same connection. Baxter is charged with aiding and abetting Turner in getting the contract.

The grand jury held a lengthy session Wednesday and adjourned to meet again at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

Veterans Will Ask Room in City Hall

A committee of representatives of all veteran organizations in Atlanta will soon call on city council to ask that a room be set aside at the new city hall in which meetings of their respective organizations may be held.

This committee will be the outgrowth of a resolution passed Wednesday night at the regular meeting of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Greater Atlanta Post No. 390, at the Hotel Ansley. Commander H. D. Shaddeau presided and heard reports on the national membership campaign now in progress. A number of applications for membership were received.

The negro, Leonard Philpot, was carried to Atlanta in an automobile by Sheriff H. N. Brady, a county policeman and two city police officers. They used three cars and drove at top speed from LaGrange to Atlanta.

Threats of Lynching.

The negro was taken to Atlanta following threats of lynching which began when eight negroes were jailed here following four attempted assaults within an hour last Saturday. The first was one in which a negro forced his way into the home of his intended victim and pursued her into the back yard. Attracted by her screams, neighbors appeared and the negro fled.

While police were at the home investigating the attack a call came from the home of a physician, where a similar incident had occurred. A negro forced his way into the home through a side door. The wife of the owner of the home ran to the home of a neighbor who fired at the negro. Thirty minutes later it was reported to the police that a negro had attempted to attack the wife of a mill operative.

Eight Negroes Jailed.

Eight negroes were arrested Sunday and Monday, but on Tuesday five were released. A group of men gathered at the jail Tuesday night, but the mayor dissuaded the leaders from violence, as the assailant had not been identified.

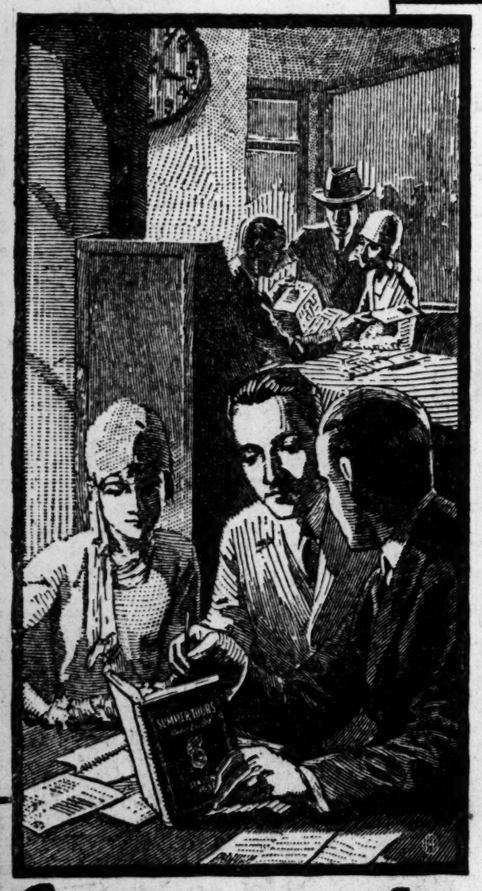

Wednesday afternoon one of the women went to the jail and the rumor spread that she had identified one of the three negroes as her attempted assailant. More talk of mob action started and the negro presumed to have been identified was taken to Atlanta.

High Museum Students Exhibit At Local Store

Keep Free from FAT in excess; it's easy now

Modern science has found that excess fat is largely due to an under-active gland. Starve as you will, exercise as you will, you are bound to fail unless you correct the cause.

That gland largely controls nutrition. When it is weak, too much food goes to fat, too little to fuel and energy. So modern physicians, in treating obesity, supply the gland substance which is scant.

That is the method employed in Marmola prescription tablets, prepared by a famous medical laboratory. People have used them for 22 years—millions of boxes of them. Anybody, in any circle, can see what a change has come. Excess fat is disappearing fast. New youth and beauty, new health and vitality, are conspicuous everywhere.

If you are abnormal in your weight, a certain gland is abnormal. Try Marmola. Feed the factor lacking. Watch the pounds go, the new vitality return. You will be amazed and delighted. But the formula in each box of Marmola will tell you the reason. To people who know, there is no excuse today for obesity. Start to remedy that ill condition now.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 a box. Any druggist who is out will gladly order for you.

If it were not for those dainty cookies, wafers, sweet crackers and cakes made by the great baking companies of this country and sold at grocery stores everywhere—what would ladies do at their teas and bridge parties—what would we do for desserts?

Alluring indeed are the creations of these bakers. And the marvel of it is that they come to us with all their oven-fresh goodness. What a tribute to the careful way they are made, packed and delivered.

There is a place in every balanced diet for these inviting inexpensive cookies and cakes. They round out the meal and make everybody satisfied and happy. For variation, serve them with stewed or fresh fruit or ice cream.

Too many of our meals are lacking in enjoyment because sugar has been left out. Try a dash of sugar in the essential foods, such as vegetables, fruit and cereals, and see how much better they taste. Doctors and dietitians heartily recommend this use of sugar as a flavor. The Sugar Institute.

Right Idea!

This seven-year-old athlete is the son of Mrs. M. C. Thompson, 1005 Eighth Ave., So., Birmingham. She says: "Eldon's wonderful condition shows my idea is right.

"Whenever he's the least cross or upset, or has a cold, I give him a little California Fig Syrup. It always brightens him up; regulates his stomach and bowels; gives him a hearty appetite. I have used it with Eldon since he was a year old, and it has never failed to help him promptly."

All children love the rich, fruity flavor of California Fig Syrup. A pure vegetable product, it doesn't gripe or sicken. It always acts gently but thoroughly to cleanse the system of bilious, headachy, constipated children. Doctors say it tones and strengthens weak bowels. Try it with your child. See how bad breath, coated tongue or feverishness disappear!

The name California marks the genuine, famous for 50 years. So look for it when buying.—(adv.)

Mr and Mrs. Strauss Celebrate Twenty-Fifth Anniversary Today

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar R. Strauss, Sr., will keep open house this evening at their home, 1372 Fairview road, in Druid Hills, in celebration of their silver wedding aniversary. No invitations have been issued but a large number of friends of this prominent couple will call during the evening to congratulate them.

Assisting Mr. and Mrs. Strauss in entertaining the guests will be their son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar R. Strauss, Jr., and their daughter, Miss Claire Strauss.

Mr. and Mrs. Strauss are very well known in Atlanta, having resided here for many years. The wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Strauss took place in Atlanta, April 10, 1905. The Atlanta Constitution of April 11, 1905, carries the following account of the marriage:

The marriage of Miss Rubye Cecile Rich and Mr. Oscar Strauss took place last evening in the Temple, Rabbi Marx officiating, and the ceremony was deeply impressive, while the handsome young couple, surrounded by their attendants, made an ideal picture.

The decorations were unusually elaborate and artistic, and included palms, smilax, carnations and lilies. At the ends of the aisles were arches of the smilax, the center arch hung with a wedding bell of carnations and lilies, under which the bride and groom stood.

The bride entered the church with her brother, and was preceded by her matron of honor, maid of honor, and the bridesmaids in couples.

The ushers were the first to enter the church, and were followed by the groomsmen, who formed a semi-circle.

The bridesmaids stood within the circle and awaited the bride who was met at the altar by the groom and his best man.

After the ceremony the young couple and their attendants and the family connection were entertained at an elegant dinner at the Kimball, the dinner followed by a reception to a large contingent of the young friends of the bride and groom.

At the end of the cafe the bride's table was a hollow square in the far side of which guests sat. Facing the other guests who were seated in parties of eight at the twelve smaller tables, the bride's table was fringed with smilax and had as the central decorations an elevated plateau of white carnations and lilies of the valley.

The bride's gown, a superb creation was made of white messeline satin and point lace net of exquisite texture and design. The long trained skirt had its front panel of point net and a jabot of the lace extending its full length. The corsage was of the pointed design and had its yoke of lace and full elbow sleeve of the same lace outlined with seed pearls. The matron of honor, Mrs. Jack Hirsch wore an elegrant toilette of green chiffon cloth fashioned a la princess. The maid of honor, Miss Valerie Rich wore white chiffon and point lace and the bridesmaids, Misses Florence Strauss, Sadie Gans, Bernice Catz, Fannie Rich and Annie Josephson, wore white chiffon gowns over green silk and trimmed in valenciennes lace. They all carried Easter lillies.

The groomsmen were Messrs. Leo Strauss, Leonard Haas, E. K. Kaufman, Milton Hirsch, Melville Strauss, and the ushers were: Messrs. Herman Rosenheim, Lester Rich, Herbert Haas, Jack Hirsch and Ben Weisburg. Mr. David Strauss, the groom's brother, was best man, and Mr. William Adler was master of ceremonies.

The bride, as Miss Rich, has since her debut been one of Atlanta's loveliest and most attractive young women. She is bright, talented and cultured, having finished her education abroad. She is the eldest daughter of Mrs. Emanuel Rich and a niece of Messrs. Morris and Dan Rich.

"Triumph" Tulip Is Pride and Joy Of Mr. and Mrs. McBurney's Garden

Tulip time in Holland is a world wonder. Tulip time in the garden of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. McBurney, of 1206 Peachtree street, is also a thing of beauty.

Mr. and Mrs. McBurney, who have collected tulip bulbs throughout a series of trips to the old world country, have one of the finest collections in Atlanta. The back yard of the home—a matchless combination of the formal and informal garden exploiting old boxwood hedges blooming azaleas, cement statuary and garden seats, rock walkways and a pool—is alive with color, rose, magenta, dark cerise tipped with ash, velvety white and old rose. Several thousand Pride of Holland have been planted in perfect plots. The Triumph, one of the rarest and most recently procured, is believed to be the only such variety in Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. McBurney have planted behind the rows of hedges and crimson azalea bushes the Chicago, a deep red blossom; the Thucana, orange petals enclosing yellow stamens; the Astoria, a delicate orchid; the Hypperion, a pinkish purple tulip with a yellow center; the Mehbuda, a pure white flower that by contract with the darker shades, adds a pleasing touch of variety to the whole.

The Timmermann, a choice bulb in Mr. and Mrs. McBurney's garden, is a velvety rose color; the Hydra is crimson; Professor Noble has reddish orange leaves tipped with yellow. Among the wide-open cups, blending perfectly against dark masses of green, is the Pollut, a lavender flower; The Florida is rose colored, the Wega, magenta with faint flecks of ash at the petal ends. The pure white Kansas, the red Stockholm, ash-tipped with yellow stamens; the pink and yellow Los Angeles; the pinkish white Thormat, the reddish purple Johnnes Back and the lavender Valentine, blend perfectly in a band of rainbow hues across the yard. Mr. and Mrs. McBurney's last visit to Holland was made last spring.

Lee Family Heirlooms Displayed in New York.

Atlantans and Georgians interested in the foundation raising fund to restore Stratford Hall, the birthplay of General Robert E. Lee, will evince further interest in the Lee family heirlooms on display in New York city from April 14 to 19. Portraits, photographs, furniture and manuscripts of General Robert E. Lee and members of his family will be on exhibition in the Lucy Lamar galleries, 36 East Fifty-seventh street, under auspices of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation. The week has been designated as "Stratford Week" by the foundation, which is raising a fund to complete the purchase and restoration of Stratford Hall, the birthplace of General Lee, on the Potomac river, 90 miles below Mount Vernon.

The exhibits will include portraits of General Lee and his father, Light-horse Harry Lee; Richard Henry Lee and Francis Lightfoot Lee, both signers of the Declaration of Independence and William and Arthur Lee. One heirloom from Revolutionary days is a harpsichord that was owned by Matilda Lee. Among the manuscripts is the original copy of General Lee's farewell address to his Confederate soldiers.

CHICAGO COMEDY HIT COMING TO ERLANGER

Atlantans having definitely expressed themselves through the box office of the Erlanger theater this week as strongly favoring comedy fare for their legitimate stage, the Erlanger Theater Players are now busy rehearsing "Your Uncle Dudley," outstanding comedy hit of the Chicago season, for next week's presentation. Tickets for all of next week go on sale at the box office this morning.

Never has Atlanta enjoyed anything the stage has given better than she has enjoyed "Nancy's Private Affair," the clever three-act comedy from the Vanderbilt theater, New York, which is this week's offering at the Erlanger. With Helen Louise Lewis leading her fellow players through the sparkling commentary on modern women and the methods—age-old—of an average wife to win back the love of her husband, "Nancy's Private Affair" has proven nothing short of a historic delight.

There will be a bargain matinee this afternoon as well as the usual performance tonight and indications are that capacity houses will greet the production for the balance of the week.

SPECIAL SEX LECTURE FOR BUSINESS WOMEN

In order to meet many requests from women employed in business and the professions, Dr. M. Sayle Taylor, noted sexologist now appearing twice daily at the Rialto theater, will give a special performance of his production, "Married Love," at 6 o'clock Friday night.

This week Dr. Taylor has been speaking to women only every afternoon at 2:30 and on Friday night at 8:30, while his audiences are composed of men only every night except Friday. Many women engaged in business during the day, however, have written asking for an opportunity to hear "Married Love" after business hours, but not late in the evening. They point out that they hesitate to come downtown unescorted and go home alone late in the evening, which is almost unavoidable when the attractions is for their sex only.

Hence Dr. Taylor's arrangement to give three performances tomorrow, all for women. The first will be at 2:30, the second at 6 and the third at 8:30. Each presentation is about two hours in length.

"HIGH SOCIETY BLUES" STARS IN RICH ROLES

Up 'til now, when Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell have been co-starred in a picture, either she has been rich and he poor, or he rich and she poor. They've never been on an equal footing. But in "High Society Blues," the Fox Movietone musical romance now running at the Fox theater, they both are children in wealthy families, although there is a wide gap in their relative social positions.

Miss Gaynor, a society debutante, doesn't let her social superiority interfere with her interest in Farrell, despite the fact that his name is not in the social register. Their mutual interest in ukuleles brings them together and begins a romance, which, like the story books, ends happily, although for a while things look a bit uncertain.

William Collier, Sr., Joyce Compton, Hedda Hopper, Louise Fazenda, Lucien Littlefield and Gregory Gaye form the supporting cast, which has been proclaimed as just about the most perfect seen on a local screen in months.

Four new song hits are featured in "High Society Blues," which is playing to near-capacity houses all this week.

JIMMIE HODGES SHOW AT MET FAST, CLEVER

Whatever the title of the piece may indicate, put this performance down in your note book as emphatically good. One or two commentators had spoken in slightly disparaging terms of the show, hence the visit to see for myself. Hence the surprise. The commentators were wrong.

Jimmie Hodges has a gang of good-looking chorus girls, some really clever male and female hoofers and at least three people who can really put a song number over—not excluding himself. His line of chatter as master of ceremonies is typically Hodgean wit, which means it is always interesting and frequently sparkles.

His girls dance with precision and vigor and his whole show goes with a snap that bespeaks hard work at rehearsals and lots of energy all the time. Of course, if you're looking for much drapery in the costumes, you'll be disappointed. The costumes are highly abbreviated but are quite attractive—what there is of them.

As a matter of fact, if Atlantans had traveled to New York and visited some famous—or notorious—night club and saw the identical show that Jimmy Hodges is giving at the Metropolitan this week, they'd come back home and tell their friends about it with glowing enthusiasm.

—RALPH T. JONES.

Sidney Catts Enters Florida Congress Race

DEFUNIAK SPRINGS, Fla., April 9.—(AP)—Former Governor Sidney J. Catts is definitely in the race for congress for the third Florida district, he announced at his home here today.

Mr. Catts confirmed a recent newspaper story that he had decided to run for the office in the democratic primary next June, but declined to amplify his announcement with a statement of his platform at this time. He has not as yet qualified.

The former governor will seek the office now held by Tom A. Yon, Tallahassee, who is serving his second term. J. Harvey Bayliss, Pensacola mayor, has also announced for the place.

CATTS UNDER INDICTMENT.

TAMPA, Fla., April 9.—(AP)—The wartime governor of Florida is under a federal court charge of complicity in a counterfeiting scheme, records show. A mistrial resulted from his first hearing several months ago. He was called for a second trial last February, but it was postponed until the next term of court after his attorneys asked for a continuance because of their client's ill health.

Mr. Catts has been under treatment in a hospital because of his left eye. The sight of his right eye was lost when he was three years old. Nearing 70 years of age, his health has been reported as failing in the past few months. No date was set for his retrial.

Mrs. Lewis Barrett To Present Pupils.

Mrs. Lewis Barrett will present her pupils in a recital Saturday afternoon, April 12, 3 o'clock, at Rich's schoolroom. Those taking part on the program will be Anne Seitzinger, Loree Bartlett, Katherine Smith, Alice Barrett, Emmie Parham, Mildred Leathers, Mary Parham, Oneta Thurmond, Charlotte Williams, Genevieve Barrett, Ben Aycock, Mary Bartlett, Betty Aycock, Bill McFee, LaVerne Parham.

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAM,
Associated Press Market Editor.

CHICAGO, April 9.—(AP)—Expecting the government crop report would prove bearish, wheat traders went slow in buying today, only to find after the close that official figures on domestic winter wheat showed the crop condition was only 77.4 per cent. The average private estimates had been 81.4 per cent. Apparently this means that an unexpected cut of 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 bushels in the 1930 probable yield of United States winter wheat has been made.

Closing prices on wheat today, registered before the government crop report was out, were firm at 3-8 to 7-8c a bushel advance over yesterday's finish, but 1c to 1 5-8c under today's top level. Corn closed 1-4c to 3-4c up, oats unchanged to 1-4c to 3-8c advanced and provisions unchanged to 10c down.

News that France was withholding permits to export wheat was largely responsible for the topmost upturn in wheat prices today. The action of the French government shuts off one of the most important sources of supply for other European countries, but late reports indicated that the refusal of export permits would not be permanent, which tended materially to curb bullish enthusiasm. Another drag on the market here was the fact that export business in North American wheat today lacked volume, the total being only 400,000 bushels, mainly from Canada.

Relative firmness of the Liverpool wheat market and persistent widespread dearth of moisture from Oklahoma into Canada, however, tended to lift prices here. In some districts southwest drought conditions were described as the worst in 35 years. Late advices were to the effect that a large portion of the winter wheat crop of the United States was nearing irreparable damage.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat upturns, despite progress of corn planting in the southwest and of plowing in the more northern sections of the corn belt.

Provisions showed themselves responsive to downturns in the value of hogs.

Associated Press Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP)—A revival of speculative interest in share feature bonds, inspired by the stocks they represent, enlivened the bond market today. Investment bonds, particularly the rails, firmed to a trifling extent but the general tone was again little more than steady. Net changes in higher grade obligations were small.

The high flier for the day was the Shubert Theaters 6s, which soared 9 points to equal its year's high at 64. General Theaters Equipment 6s scored a maximum gain of 5 1-2 points, closing at 149 for a net advance of 4. Warner Bros. Pictures 6s, Pathe 7s, Loew's 6s displayed marked strength, but finished below the top for net improvements of about 1 to 2 points.

American Telephone convertible 4 1-2s succeeded in pushing past their 1930 high, touching 193 3-8. The advance for the day, at the final price of 192 1-4, was 4 1-2 points. International Telephone 4 1-2s moved up a point. Texas Corporation 5s were active but failed to move.

Rails Recover Ground.

Many of the rails that had lost ground in the Tuesday trading recovered on average inquiry. The firmer issues included Santa Fe general 4s, Canadain National 4 1-2s, Central of Georgia 5s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4 1-2s, Delaware & Hudson 4s, Lehigh Valley of Pensuylvania 4s, New York Central general 3 1-2s, Northern Pacific general 3s and Wabash "B" 5s. Soft spots persisted, however, and St. Louis San Francisco 4 1-2s, Wabash 4 1-2s, Northern Pacific 6s, Pennsylvania 4 3-4s, and Rock Island 4s, among others, closed half a point lower. The recent issue of Pennsylvania 4 1-2s made its debut on the New York Stock Exchange and led the rail group in activity, climbing about a point above the offering price. The new Erie 5s were also busy but clung to 95 1-2, at which figure they were marketed yesterday.

Utilities Firm.

Utilities, mostly firm, found the market rather narrow. American Telephone 5 of 1965 sold off to 102 3-4 against their high of 105 1-4 a few weeks ago. Consolidated Gas of New York 5 1-2s, International Telephone 5s, Federal Light & Traction 6s, North American Edison 5 1-2s and Postal Telegraph 5s improved. There was only light trading in industrials, but the average for 10 bonds of this group remained at its 1930 high of 94.5.

It was a quiet day for the liberties and treasuries and the largest turnover in the group was only about $55,000, par value. Prices closed slightly higher.

Foreign bonds were still irregular and quiet. The few new highs for 1930 included Peru 7s and Hungary Municipal 7 1-2s, each up a point. British 5 1-2s trade briskly, but closed a shade lower. Kreuger & Toll, with warrants, touched a new top on vigorous buying.

New financing scheduled for tomorrow is substantial. Heading the list is a $50,000,000 issue of Argentine government six-month 5 per cent treasury notes, to be offered at par. This is the largest price of short term financing by a South American country in seven years. Other offerings included the $10,000,000 Starrett Corporation 20-year 5s at 92; an $8,000,000 issue of Calgary Power Co., Ltd., first 5s at 94, and a $4,000,000 issue of City of Dublin, Ireland, 5s at 95 1-2.

STEEL MERGERS FATE DOUBTFUL

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, April 9.—(AP)—Determined that there will be no billion-dollar merger of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation despite reports of a merger victory, the opponents today won a temporary injunction to restrain the counting of 51,038 shares of Sheet & Tube stock which are favorable to the merger.

As a result of the decision the fate of the merger was cast in doubt. If the injunction becomes permanent it will seriously diminish the amount that can be voted favorably for the merger. It also may encourage further court action over contested stock.

Sheet & Tube officials, however, claim a victory by 79,000 majority.

The order was issued against the Sheet & Tube merger proxy committee and the stock inspectors by Judge C. S. Turnbaugh who earlier in the day had refused Otis & Co. of Cleveland, owners of the stock, an injunction to restrain the voting of the stock.

The injunction was granted upon request of Myron C. Wick, Jr., of Youngstown, member of the opposition proxy committee and holder of 720 Sheet & Tube shares.

The petition, differing from that upon which Judge Turnbaugh denied action earlier in the day, asks an injunction on the grounds that Wick, as owner of the 720 shares, has participating interest in all the stock of the company.

Otis & Co. had brought the previous suit as owners of the 51,038 shares, but the judge ruled that the company had no right to bring it because the stock was purchased on exchanges with the understanding that the voting power was withheld.

Hearings on the injunction probably will be held tomorrow, the judge said.

Count on the merger vote was expected to be announced at the stockholders' meeting tonight. If the merger wins, Bethlehem, according to agreement with Sheet & Tube directors, will begin acquisition of Sheet & Tube properties immediately. The agreement provides that the stockholders must approve the merger by April 30, or it shall fall. Litigation in the courts might delay the completion of the merger count until after that time.

Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier and opposition leader, declared today that there will "be no stones left unturned" to frustrate the merger.

Suits, such as that filed by Wick today over protested proxies, is the form the litigation is expected to take.

Shipping Board Grants Loan to Dollar Lines

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(AP)—Two loans not to exceed a total of $1,000,000 were awarded today to the Dollar Steamship Lines, Inc., by the shipping board.

One loan, not to exceed $580,000, was for reconditioning the steamship President Fillmore. The other was for not more than $420,000 to be used in improving the steamship President Johnson.

The loans were made under the Jones-White Merchant marine law. Work on the two steamships already has been done.

Sugar.

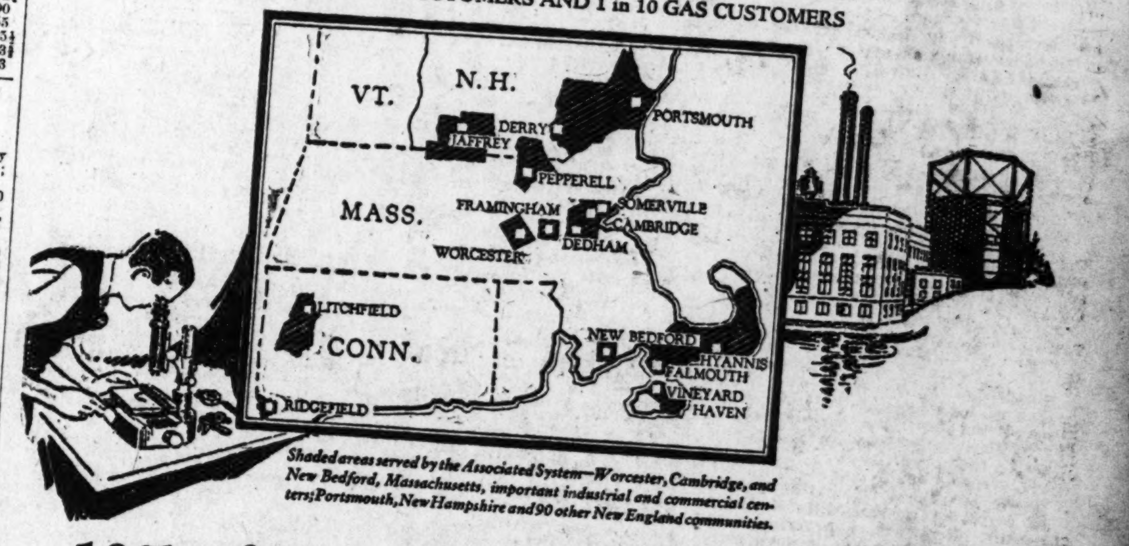

NEW YORK, April 9.—Raw sugar was steady today and although prices were unchanged a better demand was reported with holders asking higher levels. There were sales, however, subject to the dissolution of the single selling agency of about 46,000 bags of Cuban for April arrival at 3.39 to local refiners.

Raw futures were firmer on increased covering and some buying of distant positions by houses with European connections, closing with net gains of 3 to 6 points. The recent decline had evidently strengthened the technical position and some of the buying may have been for a reaction, although on the whole business was only of moderate proportions.

The market opened unchanged to 4 points higher on covering and some new outside buying which probably was promoted by the increased demand in the spot market but houses with Cuban connections sold on the upturn and there were partial setbacks following the call. The offerings were not particularly heavy, however, and the market firmed up again in the late trading and at one time was 4 to 7 points above the previous close. Realizing checked the upturn in the late trading and final prices were a little off from the best of the session. Approximate sales 32,300 tons. No transactions were made in the No. 2 contract but prices were nominally higher, closing at advances of 4 to 5 points. Closing prices: No. 1, May 1.62; July 1.65; September 1.72; December 1.80; January 1.81; March 1.83; No. 2: July 3.53; September 3.62; December 3.70.

There were moderate withdrawals reported for refined, but no new business and prices were unchanged at 4.90 for fine granulated with second hands available at 4.75.

Thrift means wealth which in turn means buying power and markets. Per capita savings in New England in 1929 were $570 compared with a national average of $235.

With an uninterrupted industrial growth of 250 years, New England has a greater number of individual craftsmen than any other comparable area. Here abundance of skilled labor and ample power, combined with location on the Atlantic seaboard close to the great European and American markets, provide numerous advantages for industry.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, 5 points down at 16.30.

Receipts, 71; shipments, 856; stocks, 87,001.

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP)—Continued nervous and irregular fluctuations in cotton today seemed to originate chiefly in the evening-up of the near positions which were again relatively easy. May sold off to 16.21 or 21 points net lower, but recovered part of the loss, closing at 16.36, while the new October contract after declining to 15.25 or 11 points net lower, rallied to 15.42 and closed at 15.40. The general market closed firm at a net decline of 8 points to a net advance of 8 points.

The opening was steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 11 points under overnight selling orders supposed to include some further liquidation of near months. The early offerings were quite readily absorbed and prices worked up a few points during the early trading, but the bulges seemed to be meeting increased offerings and the market weakened again during the middle of the day. July was relatively easy, selling off to 16.17 or 28 points net lower and 4 points under the price of May, and there seemed to be some selling of July against purchases of May by spot house brokers. New crop positions held relatively steady but gradually yielded with the old December, selling off to 16.54 and the new to 15.38, or about 10 to 12 points net lower.

The decline brought in more demand, which was supposed to include some buying of July by the leading long interests and the market stiffened up on covering during the last hour. At the close, May was 2 points under July and about 96 points over October compared with 108 points the previous day, while there was not much change in the difference between May, in New York and New Orleans.

The weekly report of the weather bureau attracted very little comment and the attention of the trade again seemed to be absorbed by the near month situation. Conflicting opinions were expressed as to whether leading long lines in May or July were being gradually reduced or held intact and general business was supposed to be restricted by an inclination to await more definite developments in this respect.

Liverpool reported that trade calling and continental buying had been supplied by liquidation and said speculation was dormant.

Exports today 14,035, making 6,006,023 so far this season. Port receipts 14,373. United States port stocks, 1,791,484.

SPOTS FLUCTUATE AT NEW ORLEANS.

NEW ORLEANS, April 9.—(AP)—The cotton market was rather quiet today and the price trend proved reactionary although fluctuations were neither frequent nor broad. New crop months were comparatively steady while old crops were inclined to be easier. The premium of July over October narrowed to under 70 points compared with 90 points earlier in the week.

July contracts after opening unchanged at 16.09 declined to 15.92, then rallied and closed at 16.03, or 6 points net lower for the day. The general market closed steady, 3 points net up to 9 down.

Liverpool cables were relatively steady but the local market opened at easy, net unchanged to 3 points down. New York, however, showed a better response to the foreign market, and local prices rallied after the start in sympathy with the northern center. May traded up to 16.06, July 16.12, and October 15.41, or 5 to 10 points above yesterday's close.

Later the market turned reactionary on realizing and gradually eased off until active positions showed losses of 14 to 20 points from the top. October showed the minimum decline, selling only to 15.26, while May traded off to 15.91, and July 15.91.

In final trading shorts covered particularly in new crop position and the market rallied 6 to 13 points from the bottom. May closed at 15.97, or 9 points down while October closed at 15.39 and December 15.53, or 1 to 3 points net up.

Receipts 7,942; for week 30,310; for year 8,023,857; last year 9,006,255. Exports 14,035; for week 46,167; for year 5,864,863; last year 6,795,986. Stock 1,851,496; last year 1,635,215. x—New highs.

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER, Associated Press Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP)—Speculation for the rise was aggressively resumed in the stock market today, and the general level of share prices recorded another new altitude record for the year. Although business news was none too cheerful, powerful speculative interests remained committed to the rise, feeling that the market had solidified its position during the unsettlement of the past two days. Total sales again exceeded the 5,000,000-share mark.

Some reports from the steel industry bore out earlier predictions that mills would have difficulty in maintaining last week's rate of operations. Iron Age stated that U. S. Steel's operations had fallen from 81 to 77 per cent of capacity this week, and production for the country at large from 78 to 76 per cent. There was some disagreement on this point, however, Iron Trade Review estimating operations generally had gained about 1 per cent this week.

Iron Age attributed the falling off to smaller business from the railroads and for heavy construction. Some recession in railroad buying had been looked for at this season, but better demand for building and construction is generally expected, in view of the huge volume of heavy construction under contract or contemplated.

Building Operations.

A survey of building operations by Standard Statistics Company said the gain in contract awards in March was such "as to bring almost unhoped for encouragement to the industry." Furthermore, automotive steel requirements are expected to gain during the next few weeks.

The weekly freight car loadings figures continued rather unsatisfactory. While a moderate gain was shown over the previous week, this resulted largely from an increased movement of coal. Loadings of miscellaneous freight fell off somewhat, and total was the lowest for the corresponding period in several years. The American Petroleum Institute's weekly crude oil production figures showed a substantial increase, due largely to the bringing in of a gusher in Oklahoma. Earlier estimates from other sources had indicated a further decline.

J. I. Case was a buoyant feature, rising 11 points on top of yesterday's 17 to 301, a new top. Earnings for the first quarter are unofficially estimated at $16 a share. Food shares generally were strong, with Borden, Gold Dust, Beatrice Creamery, and Penick & Ford selling up 1 to 4 points. Gold Dust is said to have placed its inventories in a highly favorable position during the recent depression in commodities.

General Electric Rises.

General Electric was again a leader, rising about 4 points to a new 1930 high. Utilities were buoyant on further merger gossip, and shorts were sent to cover in the merchandising shares. Other issues reaching new 1930 peaks included Associated Dry Goods, Consolidated Gas, Air Reduction, du Pont, General Gas, General Motors, Public Service of New Jersey, Skelly, Standard of Kansas, Sparks Withington, and Worthington Pump, the last named rising 6 points. In the low-priced issues, Universal Pipe sold up about a point to new high ground, reflecting report that a banking group had purchased controlling interest from George Whelan and favorable building outlook. Steels and rails were sluggish, United States Steel and New York Central losing about a point. American Can, United Aircraft and Fox Film also eased.

Credit conditions were unchanged, call money again ranging from 4 to 3 1-2 per cent. There is some talk of a further reduction in the Bank of England rate tomorrow, but no change is expected in the New York Reserve rate. Another substantial gain in brokers' loans is generally forecast. Foreign exchanges were practically unchanged, with Sterling Cables holding at $4.86 3-8.

Commodity markets were little changed. Wheat and corn futures sold up fractionally on dry weather complaints.

STOCK INCREASE VOTED BY SOUTHERN PACIFIC

ANCHORAGE, Ky., April 9.—(AP)—An increase of $200,000,000 in the capital stock of the Southern Pacific Company was authorized at the annual meeting of stockholders here today. The railroad's additional stock would be divided into shares of $100 par value each.

Wall Street Briefs.

NEW YORK, April 9.—The R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. has placed its cigaret plants on a 10-hour day schedule. Previously the factories were operated on a 9-hour schedule.

Richard Whitney, head of New York Stock Exchange firm bearing his name, will be officially nominated president of the exchange next Monday as the successor of E. H. H. Simmons, who has been president for six terms, an unprecedented record in exchange history. Mr. Whitney is a member of the governing committee and vice president of the exchange.

Despite the cold period which affected a number of the principal markets of the country toward the end of March, demand for bituminous coal during the month was very slow, according to Coal Age. This sluggishness resulted in a sharp curtailment in running time in most of the major producing fields.

Net earnings of the Empire Gas & Fuel Co., which with its subsidiaries constitutes the principal oil producing unit of the Cities Service Co., for the year ending November 30, 1929, amounted to $30,717,000, compared with $25,566,000 for the previous year. Leaseholds, oil and gas properties, pipe lines, refineries, service stations, etc., are carried at more than $300,000,000.

The American Bankers' Association Journal says there has been further recovery in business in the last month and that confidence is general that the improvement will continue. The steel industry expects to hold schedules around the present 75 to 80 per cent of capacity, the review says.

The Reynolds Metals Co., of Louisville, Ky., has purchased the assets of the Midland Metals Co., of Chicago, the name of the Chicago company will be changed to the Midland Foil Co. and operated as a division of Reynolds Metals.

Insurance Company Hikes Capital Stock

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 9.—(AP)—Following upon a recently announced program of premium buying interests in other southern and middle western companies, directors of the Inter-Southern Life Insurance Company today voted to increase capital stock from $1,250,000 to $3,500,000.

This stock, which has a par value of $1 a share, will be placed at $3.75 a share, Cary G. Arnett, president, said. The company has a capital and surplus of approximately $10,000,000.

Rogers Caldwell, Nashville, head of Caldwell & Co., investment brokers, who obtained control of the Inter-Southern three years ago, attended today's called meeting, along with a brother, Meredith Caldwell, banker, and others from Nashville.

Plans for the purchase of other companies have not been concluded, Mr. Arnett said.

Issue Sought.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(AP)—Authorization to issue $653,000 of 4 per cent refunding mortgage gold bonds and $631,000 of 6 per cent consolidated mortgage gold bonds was sought today by the Seaboard Air Line railway in an application to the interstate commerce commission.

General Strength Shown; Trading Volume Expands

BY STANLEY W. PRENOSIL,
Associated Press Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP)—Prices on the New York curb market gave a rather impressive demonstration of strength today as trading again approached the 1,500,000-share mark. Spectacular advances in a few high priced specialties were the features, although good accumulation also was noted in a number of public utility, oil, motor and aviation issues.

Deere & Co. (new stock) ran up more than 10 points to a new high above 160 on unofficial estimates that earnings for the current quarter would run about $9 a share, but eased to 158 on profit-taking. The old stock soared 35 points to 781, and retained all but a point of its gain. Aluminum Company of America jumped 10 points and Aluminum Limited soared 13 points to a new high at 225. A. O. Smith jumped 14 points, Neisner Bros. preferred 12 3-4 and Parker Pen 6 5-8.

In the public utility group, General Gas & Electric convertible preferred jumped 7 points to a new high at 105 and retained all but a fraction of its gain, in anticipation of an unusually favorable annual report. Niagara Hudson Power, which is expected to absorb Consoligated Gas of New York in the next few months, was again turned over in large volume, but the net gain was fractional. Revival of activity in Electric Bond & Share carried that stock up more than 3 points but about a third of the gain was lost on realizing. Brazilian Light & Traction, Empire Gas & Electric 7 per cent preferred and United Light & Power "A" also moved into new high ground.

Big Turn Recorded.

Canadian Marconi was turned over in enormous volume, crossing 8 to a new high record, on reports that a new radio plant would be built in Canada by that company with the backing of Radio Corporation of America, Westinghouse Electric and General Electric. Polymet, which recently has received several important contracts from radio manufacturers, crossed 17 to a new high. Driver Harris, which manufactures nickel alloys, jumped 6 points to a new high at 82, on reports of large current business, and retained most of its gain. Ford of Canada crossed 38 to a new high on the publication of an exceptionally favorable balance sheet by the parent company.

Mexico-Ohio Oil, which more than doubled in price, was one of the features of the oil group. Cosden jumped more than 6 points and retained all but a fraction of its gain. International Petroleum sold at 24 for the first time this year. Other oils held fairly steady, the increase in crude oil production last week being offset by the announcement of higher gasoline prices in New York and New England territory.

Aviation Corporation of the Americas and North American Aviation, both at new highs, led the airplane shares.

Stock Letters.

FENNER & BEANE.

NEW YORK, April 9.—A sharp bulge in utilities coincident with discussion of prospective important mergers in the eastern territory. Strength in the group inspired an upturn in utilities following early irregularity. While oils were consolidating their recent gains, another contribution to the accumulating evidence of improvement in the industry was furnished by the report of a 931,000-barrel decrease in gasoline in storage in the week ended April 5.

Sentiment in the steel industry is somewhat less confident. Ingot production for the industry as a whole declined to slightly below 75 per cent last week, compared with 76 per cent the week before. Operations of United States Steel Corporation were reduced 4 per cent to around 79 per cent.

An apparently substantial short interest lends technical strength and has thus far operated to defer a correction which appears logically to be anticipated.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

NEW YORK, April 9.—Encouraged by the relative steadiness of stocks yesterday in the face of a powerful bear drive against the steels, professionals and public alike were disposed toward the buying side today. Stocks were in steady demand throughout the session and practically free from reactionary tendencies of any kind. Most of the market's vitality was derived from the urgent bidding for leading utilities, principally for American Telephone & Telegraph, which gained 5½ points, Consolidated Gas which gained 3¼, and Public Service of New Jersey, which gained 5¼ points. American Telephone & Telegraph, of course, is discounting the forthcoming issue of rights as well as its brilliant long range prospects, both in the communications and general electrical field. The buying of Consolidated Gas seems to be based on expectations of impending merger developments of a highly important nature in the eastern public utility industry. The general expectation is that some sort of a deal will be made with Niagara and Hudson as a result of which the bulk of electric power in New York state will be under one control.

JACKSON BROS., BOESEL & CO.

NEW YORK, April 9.—Recent sessions have been attended by a great deal of profit-taking and professional selling. Our view that the market was in an over-sold condition proved correct, and many of the sharp advances which occurred yesterday were due to a short covering.

We look for an earnings statement by Gillette Safety Razor for the first quarter which will far exceed the expectations of the Street.

There is a large short interest in the merchandising stocks, particularly in Montgomery-Ward and Sears Roebuck. If our analysis is correct the month of April will show a sharp recovery in gross and net earnings. The fact that Easter falls in April this year instead of March, as was the case last year, will make comparative results look particularly favorable.

Would keep long on United Corporation, United Gas Improvement, Electric Power and Light, Electric Bond & Share and Consolidated Gas. We see good buying in Krueger and Toll.

The technical position in Texas Pacific Land Trust is good and buying indicates an advance in the trust certificates.

Cotton Letters.

FENNER & BEANE.

NEW YORK, April 9.—Old crop months ruled easy and lower today due to liquidation for switching to the new months, while new held comparatively steady owing to a rather unfavorable review and buying of these positions by interests which were switching. There was considerable selling of July in New York against purchases of new December and selling of May in New Orleans against purchases of October.

The farm board was credited with selling May in New York and buying July and new crops. Rumors were in circulation that farm board may be swapping its May for July and that spot interests are supplying the contracts.

As a result there seemed to be a general easing of the situation in May in both markets though it is possible that the liquidation in old crops came from speculators.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.

NEW YORK, April 9.—The action of yesterday's market appeared to have created considerable uncertainty as to the further attitude of the old crop long interest and this uncertainty was reflected in the erratic fluctuations in May and July today. While there was some scattered coverings there was comparatively little outside buying. The principal activity was the undoing of straddles who were long the old crop months and short the fall months.

Until there is some certainty of the attitude of old crop trade interests, there is little advice one can give as new crop prospects are not a factor. Liverpool futures are due tomorrow, May 8.28, July 8.36

LIVINGSTON & CO.

NEW YORK, April 9.—Today's market was comparatively quiet. Old crops closed 7 to 8 points lower with new crops showing a net advance of 4 to 5 points. May and July reflected scattering liquidation in small lots while late months acted somewhat oversold and their relative firmness was doubtless in response to scattered covering and buying inspired by the weekly weather report which indicated the need of rain in Texas and Oklahoma and that Georgia and Alabama had too much rain for field work. There is no indication that there has been any material change in the position of co-operatives in May and July.

ORVIS BROS. & CO.

NEW YORK, April 9.—Covering demand this afternoon caused a spurt in cotton prices with the result that new crop contracts show a gain over last night. Undoubtedly the drought in west Texas and Oklahoma is highly important. Until rain is had over that territory, the crop outlook is greatly menaced. On the other hand the weekly weather report spoke favorably of developments elsewhere in the south except Georgia, where there has been too much rain. Demand for goods continues highly unsatisfactory and the price at which mills are selling, is at least 2 per cent per pound below the current cost of cotton according to statements given us by manufacturers. May and July contracts were again today relatively easier. If there is any evidence of crumbling values in those positions, the cotton market would undoubtedly decline. We believe the market is a trading affair and would give preference to the selling side as the spring season in the south is going fine with the exception of a few localities.

October Liverpool due, 8.30.

Exchange Holidays.

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP)—The board of governors of the New York stock exchange today voted to close the exchange on Cood Friday and the Saturday following, April 18 and 19. Most of the commodity exchanges have announced similar decisions.

The following information has been summarized by Messrs. Tom M. Girdler and E. T. McCleary, Chairman of the Board and President, respectively, of Republic Steel Corporation, from their letter dated April 8, 1930, copies of which may be obtained upon request, and is subject to the more complete information contained therein:

THE COMPANY

Republic Steel Corporation is the third largest producer of steel in the United States, with an annual ingot capacity of more than 4,900,000 tons. The Corporation, organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey, owns or has acquired, by merger or purchase, substantially all of the assets (subject to liabilities) of Republic Iron and Steel Company, Central Alloy Steel Corporation, Donner Steel Company, Inc., The Bourne-Fuller Company and The Berger Manufacturing Company, pursuant to a Plan and Agreement dated January 15, 1930. Subsidiaries of the Corporation include, among others, Steel and Tubes, Inc., Union Drawn Steel Company and The Trumbull-Cliffs Furnace Company. Important recent acquisitions by constituent companies include the properties of Witherow Steel Company and Interstate Iron and Steel Company.

The Corporation's activities include all the important steps in steel making, from the mining and treatment of ore and other raw materials to the manufacture of a diversified line of finished products, the percentage of steel output converted into highly finished products and manufactured articles being greater than that of any other of the large steel companies. Large reserves of iron ore, coal and limestone are owned by the Corporation.

CAPITALIZATION

The capitalization of the Corporation, based upon the pro forma consolidated balance sheet, as of December 31, 1929, referred to below, is as follows:

	Authorized	Outstanding
Funded debt (including subsidiaries)		$58,335,800
6% Preferred Stock of Subsidiary	$ 5,000,000	5,000,000
Serial Preferred Stock—$100 par value	150,000,000
6% Cumulative Convertible Preferred Stock (this issue)		60,000,000
Common Stock—without par value	5,000,000 shares	1,985,212* shares

*In addition, 12,073 shares are in the Corporation's treasury, and 600,000 shares of common stock are reserved for conversion of this preferred stock. There are also outstanding options to purchase 200,000 shares of the Corporation's common stock at $75 per share and warrants or rights to purchase approximately 1,400 additional shares at varying prices.

EARNINGS

The following statement, prepared by Messrs. Ernst & Ernst, certified public accountants, shows the combined earnings of the constituent companies and their subsidiaries, for the four-year period ended December 31, 1929 (including, for the full period, earnings of the Corporation's present subsidiaries and earnings of companies whose properties have been acquired since the beginning of such period), after interest, depreciation and Federal Income Taxes, and deduction of annual dividend requirement of $300,000 on the preferred stock of a subsidiary, and reflecting certain minor adjustments resulting in a net charge against earnings.

1928	14,982,846
1929	19,997,453

Net earnings, as shown above, averaged $14,193,810 per annum, equivalent to approximately 3.94 times the maximum annual dividend requirement on this issue of preferred stock. Such earnings for the year ended December 31, 1929, were over 5.55 times such requirement. Although general business depression resulted in a curtailment of operations in the steel industry during the first quarter of 1930, such earnings of the constituent companies and their subsidiaries for that period, as indicated by preliminary figures, were substantially in excess of such preferred dividend requirements for the period.

ASSETS

The pro forma consolidated balance sheet of the Corporation and its subsidiaries, as of December 31, 1929 (prepared by Messrs. Ernst & Ernst on the basis of the balance sheets of the constituent companies as of said date and adjusted to give effect, among other things, to certain transactions in connection with the consummation of the Plan and Agreement and to the issuance of the outstanding preferred stock and common stock of the Corporation shown above), shows net tangible assets, after deducting all liabilities and reserves, equivalent to more than $370 per share of this issue of preferred stock outstanding. Current assets of $87,875,211 exceed the combined current liabilities and funded debt; cash and call loans alone being in excess of current liabilities of $16,514,621.

The common stock of the Corporation is listed on the New York Stock Exchange and the preferred stock has been approved for listing on said exchange on official notice of issuance and distribution.

We offer this stock, less approximately $47,218,000 par value accepted by, or reserved for, stockholders of the constituent companies in accordance with the above mentioned Plan and Agreement, when, as and if received by us, and subject to approval of legal proceedings by our counsel. It is expected that delivery will be made on or about April 22, 1930 in the form of temporary or definitive stock certificates.

Price $95 per share and accrued dividends, to yield over 6.30%

By R. L. BARNUM

Tendencies in the Steel Trade During Past Week Were Mixed With the Market Lacking a Definite Trend.

NEW YORK, April 9.—General Electric, Chrysler, General Motors, Case Threshing, Warner, Gillette and a few other stocks were higher in the early trading, but the market generally was irregular and with the volume smaller. In the noon hour the rate on call money dropped to 3 1-2 per cent against the opening of 4 and the stock market became strong and active.

Steel common was reactionary on the news that the company's operations the past week were down to 79 per cent capacity against 83 a week ago, 80 two weeks ago and 98 a year ago.

Tendencies in the steel trade the past week were mixed, with the market lacking a definite trend, according to the weekly review by the Iron Age. Open weather brought a rise in seasonal demand and further expansion is seen in automobile requirements. But specifications of the railroads are being curtailed and railroad contracts in some cases suspended. Heavy construction work is subnormal. Smaller freight car loadings are tempering the hopes of the steel industry for large railroad steel buying. For the past six months railroad buying has been the backbone of the steel industry.

Spokesmen for the steel industry state further that fabricated steel awards are not impressive. Counter influences are expanding business in gas and oil pipe lines, an increase of 10 per cent on automobile steel buying and a large amount of prospective highway and other public work.

President Carlton, of Western Union, told the shareholders of his company at their annual meeting today that revenues so far this year are 7 per cent below 1929, adding: "But that 7 per cent is where the main profits are. The company is not run to see how much money it can make, but to see how good service it can give, on the theory that if this is right money will follow. I believe that despite the unfavorable results for the first quarter of this year the results for the first half will show the dividends earned."

Arriving here on the Bremen, Managing Director Deterding, of the Royal Dutch Company, expressed the belief that most American producers of oil were making an honest effort to set the industry in order and that their efforts are appearing to bear fruit. He added that there was still much to be accomplished, but that broad, intelligent reasoning should prevail.

Ford 1929 Profits Said $81,797,861

BOSTON, April 9.—(AP)—The balance sheet of the Ford Motor Co., as filed with the Massachusetts commissioner of corporation today, indicated profits for 1929 of $81,797,861, as contrasted with an indicated loss of $72,221,498 in 1928.

The indicated profit is equal to $473.79 a share on 172,645 shares of stock, all of which is held by Henry Ford and his son, Edsel B. Ford. The sharp upturn in earnings is understood to reflect the going into production of the new models, the cost of which was probably reflected in the 1928 balance sheet.

The balance sheet showed total assets of a book value of $761,077,996, against $688,909,348 at the end of last year. Cash totaled $346,937,496, as increased during the year from $275,926,656. Inventories showed a slight gain at $118,883,082, compared to $102,773,704 a year previously. Real estate was carried at $154,320,351, a reduction of $1,918,856, and machinery and equipment at $138,923,264, a reduction of $13,998,102.

Profit and loss surplus was $664,427,424. Accounts payable were $73,056,929.

1,000 Cases of Liquor Found in Waste Paper

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., April 9. (AP)—Suspicious of a freight car billed from Port York as containing waste paper, United States customs officials across the Niagara river opened it and discovered more than 1,000 cases of rare wines and cordials hidden under a layer of waste.

The liquor was dumped into the river from the lower bridge to the great delight of boat owners. Word quickly spread that liquor was being thrown over and many persons rowed down under the bridge and salvaged bottles which had not broken.

CHECK ON RAIL HOLDING UNITS BY I. C. C. URGED

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(AP)—Legislation to restrict operations of railroad holding companies to such as are approved by the interstate commerce commission was recommended today by Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman before the house interstate commerce committee.

On the stand for the second day in the committee's railroad ownership investigation, he said various railroads were evading governmental supervision over the issuance of securities by operating through "dummy" holding companies. The commissioner urged the committee to include that phase of the problem within its inquiry.

Legislation was needed, he said, to remedy the present situation in which the commission governs the issuance of securities by railroads but is helpless to interfere with the securities of the holding companies.

The investigation was undertaken at the instigation of the commission in an effort to determine upon legislation necessary to define more clearly the status of holding and investment trust companies, and to facilitate prosecution of the commission's plan to consolidate the railroads of the country into 21 gigantic systems.

The commission's jurisdiction over railroad securities has been "invaded" in some instances through the use of holding companies, Eastman testified. He cited the Pennsylvania company, a holding company organized by the Pennsylvania railroad; the Special Investment Company, formed by the Nickel Plate system, and the Virginia Transportation Company, organized by the Chesapeake & Ohio.

In each case, he asserted, the railroad turned over stock to the holding company, which in turn used the stock as collateral in securing loans, all without the approval of the commission.

Victim of Dry Guns Succumbs to Wounds

DETROIT, April 9.—(AP)—Walter Grund, 30, died today from wounds suffered January 22 when he was shot by customs border patrol inspectors.

After the shooting last January, Roy Fountain, a companion of Grund, made a statement that he and Grund were fired upon while bringing a load of liquor across the Detroit river in a rowboat.

The inspectors who figured in the shooting were Clare B. Hooper and William H. Redford. They stated they had ordered the boat to halt and when their orders were ignored had opened fire.

Man, Wife Suicide In Locked Auto

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 9. (AP)—E. H. Lewis, former city commissioner and director of public works here, and his wife were drowned here today when their automobile plunged over the quay at the port of St. Petersburg into 28 feet of water.

Despite that Magistrate Casey Thigpen pronounced the case double suicide, relatives of the dead man, including his mother and brother, tonight were reticent to believe that such was the case and expressed indignation that Magistrate Thigpen had rendered a decision without an inquest.

Lewis, who resigned his post as director of public works last week, end his wife had planned to leave for Indianapolis Thursday morning where he expected to sell some of his realty holdings there and to develop others.

Boy's Arrest Ordered For Mutilating Body

CHARLOTTE, N. C., April 9.—(AP)—Solicitor Henry Fisher, of county court, announced this afternoon he would issue a warrant at once for the arrest of Watson Wharton, of Smithfield, former Davidson college student, on a charge of mutilation of a dead body. He said a negro's head had been discovered in the student's room at Davidson.

Wharton withdrew from school at the request of college authorities several weeks ago. His father, Dr. L. D. Wharton, said this afternoon he did not know where his son is now.

Negroes recently discovered the grave of Will Johnson, near Davidson, had been opened and the body decapitated. Clyde Johnson, son of the dead man, saw the skull in Wharton's room and immediately told other negroes. Feeling ran high and college authorities took quick action.

Young Wharton, son of a physician and interested in medicine, was said by college authorities to have admitted taking the head for scientific and experimental purposes.

The father of the boy described it as a "thoughtless, boyish prank."

Golf Match Decides Municipal Election

SCHUYLER, Neb., April 9.—(AP)—Politicians should brush up on their golf if they would be successful like K. M. Folda, who won the position of city treasurer here yesterday 9 up and 7 to go.

When ballots failed to produce a winner at the recent election because Folda and Joseph M. Rogers were tied with 371 votes each, they agreed to let a 36-hole golf match decide the issue.

Folda won on the 29th hole.

CRAWFORD MEMORIAL SOUGHT IN CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(Special.)—The war department would be directed to erect at Crawford, Oglethorpe county, Georgia, a suitable memorial to the memory of William H. Crawford, under the terms of a measure laid before the lower house today by Representatives Charles H. Brand, of Athens.

In offering his resolution, which called for an appropriation of $1,000, Representative Brand declared that the proposed memorial was intended for one of the most distinguished Georgians of the early part of the nineteenth century. William H. Crawford, he reminded the house, was a United States senator and president pro tem. of that body, as well as secretary of the treasury during the administration of President Monroe. Later he pointed out, he was United States minister to France.

BY WILLIAM O. KEY.

This is a sad story because it nearly broke a mother's heart. It is the story of an Italian woman whose chubby bambino was almost wasted away before her eyes by chemical science.

Dr. Allen Winter Rowe, of New York, tells it. Dr. Rowe is in Atlanta with his division of medicinal chemistry and majors in endicronology. In New York he has a clinic where he makes a specialty of experimenting with cases of acute obesity.

To the doctor one day came a young Italian who was of circus proportions and who spun the scales around the 412 pounds. Dr. Rowe immediately began "working" on this young tonlitter champion.

In a short while the doc had the bambino down to exactly 312 pounds—just a round century below his normal avoirdupois. The young fellow was feeling plenty good, too; and wasn't kicking. Because Dr. Rowe doesn't believe in letting 'em starve to knock down the old fatting average. The young Italian, on the contrary, had been well-fed and hadn't a growl in the world. Then his mother came to visit him.

For the first time since the treatmen began they met, these two warm-blooded Latins. Then the mother's eyes grew round in horror, and hot compassionate tears welled in her dark eyes as she rushed to her bambino. In the Italian equivalent she gushed out her grief:

"My poor boy! You are so thin—just a shadow of yourself!"

And speaking of eating and diets reminds us that it's going to be a long time before a man with an empty stomach is going to amblbe out into a cotton field and pluck himself a table d'hote luncheon. This, notwithstanding the astounding revelation of Wednesday afternoon that a substitute for meat has been invented from cottonseed oil and the staple seed bran. Dr. David Wesson, of Montclair, N. J., was hostess at this unique luncheon, and the place was piled amply with tempting-looking sandwiches.

Oh, they looked all right—the nice evenly-cut slabs of fresh whi.e bread with their dark filler promising a mysteriously toothsome surprise. But somehow we lost our gastronomic nerve and refrained politely from biting deeply into one. Instead, it was considered more discreet and probably as informative to ask a more heroic type a bout 'em.

On good authority we learned all about those cotton sandwiches. First place, they looked darkish and seemed to spread with the same consistency as caviar. Our informant divulged that the "meat" therein was of just about the same masticative resistance as deviled ham. And that it tasted rather spicy, that they really weren't at all bad . . . but, "No thanks," he said, as the second helping hove in sight.

Who makes the beautiful silk "photographs" that come from the town of Leon, in France, that Dr. Charles E. Mullin, of Clemson College, is collecting? Dr. Mullin is down here with the chemists, and he revealed a number of them—together with the information, or mystery, that he hasn't been able to find their point of origin so far as the artist or method is concerned.

They are silken portraits and they look as smooth as a photograph. Nor are they printed. Believe it or not, he says, they are woven and not painted or "toned in" on the fabric, yet they have the identical smooth surface of a fine photograph. In size they range from 8x10 to 4x6 inches, and Dr. Mullin has a large number of them, which he says he picks up around Leon on various trips to France.

What is more fitting for the oldest member of the American Chemical Society attending its 79th regular meeting than to celebrate his own 79th birthday during one of the best gatherings in its history? That's what happened to Professor A. H. Sabin, of the National Lead Company, New York city, Wednesday. Professor Sabin holds the distinction of being the oldest member attending the present sessions and the oldest in length of continuous membership. He was graduated from Bowdoin College in 1876 and joined the society in 1884. Among his many other attainments, Professor Sabin is an author of note.

At least one Atlantan came back to his old environments incident to the convention here this week. That is D. H. Jackson, advertising manager of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, published by the society and edited by Dr. Harrison E. Howe, who spoke here last night.

Mr. Jackson was born in Milledgeville but was "raised" in College Park, and he has a sister, Mrs. H. B. Horsey, who still resides here.

A lot has been heard about the movement of electrons in the atomic structure, and most of us don't know what it's all about. But down in the ground floor areas of the chemistry apparatus exhibits they've got a machine that shows you exactly what happens on the inside of an atom. Which, by ordinary reasoning would argue that the atom has been split—which isn't the case. But science has at least found out what goes on inside of this mysterious atom that is never let alone by mere man, and what's more, has invented a regular instrument to show the student what's going on.

This instrument was designed by Professor R. R. Ramsay and is a homely-looking, though neatly-constructed, thing. It consists of an upright electro-magnet above which like a saucer, only it's level, is a circular tray. The tray is shallow and sits perched a few inches above the electro-magnet, to which electrical current is connected.

Now here's how they figure it out: Into the little tray a small quantity of mercury is poured. Turn on the "juice" and drop into the mercury one little steel ball, like a bearing in a roller skate. At once the little steel ball begins describing geometric courses through the mercury. But wait!

Drop a second little ball into the the tray. Then watch. The second ball disturbs the perfect course of the first and the two set out on different but still geometrically perfect circuits around and about in the mercury. A third will set up a separate orbit, a fourth and fifth; and so on up to the eighth. But when you put a ninth ball into the mercury, it right away creates dissension in the individual ranks and the two divisions of tiny balls form "parties" much like the democrats and the republicans. Occasionally the ninth ball will adhere to one group in its swirls around the tray; then to the other.

That, they tell us, is just what goes on among the electrons of an atom.

People who have never been south before certainly must have read a lot of melodramatic swosh about us folks in this neck of the woods. Either that or they've been brought up on a steady diet of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." When you talk with them they have almost a ritual of prefacing each confab with observations of surprise that you didn't rush up to greet them with a drawling "How're you-all!"

A lot of the visitors here at the convention have remarked that Atlanta doesn't seem a deep-south, slumbering cotton center at all. It's quite a bit Yankee, they will tell you. Some town! But when they tell you that, you feel they are just trying to be nice; that actually they are a little bit disappointed.

Maybe they expected to see tall, mannerish colonels with milk-white moustaches, and nifty goatees; and long, slender stogies. Or broadcloth coats and trousers revealing knee boots beneath. At any rate, that's what they seem to be missing—on the alert, however, to obscure their disappointment. . . .

Perhaps it'd be a right good idea to have an official group of "greeting colonels" along that order. . . . Just to make the strangers feel to hum!

Light Power Glider Completes Long Hop

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., April 9.—(AP)—Stanley C. Huffman, of Cincinnati, landed his little power glider at Roosevelt field at 5:10 p. m. today to complete a flight from the Ohio city.

He left Cincinnati at 7 o'clock this morning and was an hour later in arriving here than he had anticipated.

MISSISSIPPIAN IS HELD FOR MERCHANT'S DEATH

HERNANDO, Miss., April 9.—(AP) G. H. Blackwell was held in jail here today on a charge of murder for the death of W. C. Beloat, well-known merchant of Lake View, fatally wounded in front of his store late yesterday by Blackwell after an argument over a load of lumber.

The two men had been enemies for six years, Mrs. Beloat, who witnessed the shooting, said. She told officers her husband and Blackwell argued over possession of some lumber and that Blackwell shot her husband with a shotgun as he stepped from his store.

The mechant died in a Memphis hospital last night.

ACTION ON JONES LAW CHANGE IS DEFERRED

Proposed Amendment to Measure Deadlocks House Committee.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(AP)—Deadlocked on the Stobbs bill to amend the Jones law to limit penalties for first and casual dry law offenders, the house judiciary committee today deferred action until next Wednesday.

While the committee was seeking to agree, Attorney-General Mitchell, who opposed the measure, urged the supreme court to hold that a person ordering liquor shipped to him guilty of conspiracy to violate the dry laws.

The attorney-general filed a brief with the supreme court in a government appeal attacking the decision of the circuit court of appeals that Alfred E. Norris, a New York banker, was not guilty of conspiracy to violate the dry law in ordering liquor shipped to him from Philadelphia.

The government brief charged that Norris became a conspirator through his cognizance of illegal transportation of liquor by a prior agreement. The contention was made that if a purchaser in New York could order liquor from a bootlegger in Philadelphia without being subjected to penalties of conspiracy to violate the dry laws, such a ruling by the court would contribute to the defeat of prohibition enforcement.

Although of divided opinion, the house judiciary committee had planned to decide today the fate of the law enforcement commission's bills to broaden the power of United States commissioners to conduct juryless trials and to authorize state officers to seize automobiles transporting liquor in violation of the federal statute. Neither these nor the commission's measure to define slight and casual offenses to permit district attorneys to try offenders on a felony charge after trial before a commissioner were reached.

Friends of Beer Win In New York Senate

ALBANY, N. Y., April 9.—(AP)—The New York state senate today rejected a motion to discharge from committee and bring to the floor of the senate for a vote the Post-Sheridan bill calling for manufacture and sale of 6 per cent beer and 15 per cent wine by the state, the sale to be made under a permit system. The vote was on strict party lines, 27 republicans opposing and 22 democrats approving.

The bill is predicated on the theory that the 18th amendment and the Volstead act do not specifically prohibit states from manufacture and sale of beer or wine, inasmuch as the statutes place the prohibition only on "natural persons."

In a prolonged debate, proponents of the measure cited decision by the United States supreme court to prove that the state could not legally be considered a "natural person" and therefore was beyond the pale of the prohibition law.

Tenth-Inning Spurt Gives Petrels Second Victory Over Jackets, 5-3

Teams Battle Into Night Again With Score Tied at 3-All.

By Herb Clark.

Oglethorpe's Petrels took the edge in the "city baseball series" yesterday afternoon, walking away from the Rose Bowl with a 5-3 decision over Georgia Tech.

Georgia Tech and Oglethorpe played eight innings of baseball at the Rose Bowl field at the Flats Wednesday afternoon. The score was tied at 3-3.

They played another inning in the gathering dark and fogs of the lowlands. The score was still tied.

Then, as the street lights were turned on, the Jackets and the Petrels kept on playing ball. The Jackets and the Petrels had no lights. The Petrels kept their hits on the ground. One of the efforts went for a single. Three were saved by errors. Two Petrels crossed the plate. The Jackets could do naught but hit into the air. And even a baseball could be seen in the air, so the Jackets were eliminated handily.

A GOOD BALL GAME.

Up until those later moments it had been a good ball game. Ray Brosnan, who pitched a good game for the Jackets, got into trouble in the first inning and gave up two walks, two hits and two runs. He lost two hits and a single run in the third inning. He gave up eight hits in all, walked two men, and turned in six strike-outs for a satisfactory record.

Meanwhile the Jackets had been doing just about as well as their foes. Pitcher Mitchell had been touched for a single hit and a run in the second inning. He had been rudely treated in the third inning, but after four cracking hits had rolled off the Tech bats for two runs he whiffed Jimmy Frink on three balls.

MITCHELL SAVED.

Glenn Gardner saved Mitchell a lot of trouble and a ball game in the fifth inning. Isaacs, batting first for the Jackets, was safe on Mitchell's error and stole second a moment later. Pullen followed him and worked Mitchell for a pass. McKee grounded out to Holcomb at first base, both Isaacs and Pullen advancing. Then, with the stage all set, Duck McKee unlimbered his big bat. He had tripled on his previous trip to the plate.

Gardner got in his work then. He raced over to get into the path of the ball. He went forward with a mighty lunge to grip it and pulled up with the ball firmly in his grasp. Isaacs and Pullen had started with the crack of McKee's bat. The hit looked good for two bases. Gardner snapped the ball to third base. Isaacs had gotten back. Herrin, at third, threw to second. Pullen had not gotten back. It was a double play. And Oglethorpe had been saved.

PETRELS HAPPY.

The Petrels drew happy breaths. They were properly grateful to Glenn Gardner, and when the powers decreed that the ball game must go on, they took advantage of the opportunity to show their gratitude.

The two teams will meet again this afternoon at the Flats at 4 o'clock. Nothing will be at stake, save the pride of the Jackets. The Petrels already hold the "city title."

U. S. B. and G. M. A. In Clash Today

University School and G. M. A. will play a postponed baseball game at 3 o'clock this afternoon on the Cadet campus in College Park. The game was scheduled to be played Tuesday afternoon but the annual government inspection caused a postponement until today.

Coach Burbage's Cadet team has played only one game thus far out of four scheduled. The first two were rained out and another was postponed because of the government inspections. The postponed games will be played within the next week, Coach Burbage stated Wednesday afternoon.

Uncle Mat Looks Good in Workout

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 9.—(UN)—J. R. Devereaux's Uncle Mat turned in a sparkling performance in a workout for the Kentucky Derby today, stepping three-quarters to 1:14 3-5 handily. It was the best effort of any of the three-year-olds now training in Kentucky for the classic.

In a spirit of merriment, Robert T. Jones, Jr., executive vice president of the Crackers, put the business manager, R. J. Spiller, in the grease (to use a highly technical term) at the Wilbert Robinson dinner the other night.

The executive vice president, recalling the 15 to 1 defeat suffered that afternoon by the Crackers at the ruthless hands of Mr. Robinson's Robins, made it clear that he was not coming around the ball park for a while. The executive vice president said he was going to Europe for the early part of the Southern league campaign while the Crackers were getting started.

Then along in July when the Crackers were leading the league he was coming back home and claim them. But during the trying period the executive vice president was going to let the business manager take the fall, if any.

AWAITS SAILING DATE.

Bobby Jones is ordering all his business affairs, including his duties as e. v. p. of the Crackers, preparing to sail for England late this month on the most pretentious golfing campaign of his career.

Some of those at the dinner were wondering what Bobby's chances are in the British open and amateur championships, not to mention the two national championships back home later in the season.

In talking it over one can say assuredly that Bobby is playing his game as well as ever. In some respects he now has a better command of his shots than ever before, those who have followed him closely declare.

AN AVERAGE OF 70.

Bobby has played in two winter open championships within the past two months. Horton Smith beat him one stroke at Savannah; he distanced Smith and the field 13 strokes at Augusta.

For the eight rounds of medal competitive medal play Bobby has averaged a fraction over 70 per round. In 144 holes he has carded 563 strokes—13 under 4s. That sounds very much like good golf.

the leading professionals who have campaigned the winter courses from California to Pinehurst have averaged 73 strokes per round, if you care for meaningless comparative figures.

Bobby Jones is in fine health and presumably in an excellent humor over the prospect of foreign competition. He has manifested no signs of being over-golfed. He should do well overseas in the open.

And if he can remember what Stewart Maiden told him over the radio about the proper mental attitude toward 18-hole matches, he will have his brightest chance of winning that monstrous British amateur championship, which is an eternity of those 18-hole executions.

OR, MAYBE I'M WRONG.

Attendance at exhibition baseball games in Atlanta is nothing to brag about. We prefer to blame it on the weather which has been windy, chilly in spite of the sunshine—and on a certain sophistication in the populace.

A crowd of 7,167 paid to see the Giants play the Chicks in Memphis the other day, proving that a major league ball club still is a novelty in some sections.

One of these days the Cracker bosses may discover that it is better to keep their club away from home until opening day. Our town craves contests and does not care much for shadow boxing, or so it seems.

LONG DROUGHT COMING.

Now they are playing varsity baseball. McEver is the best all-around baseball player on the squad, they say.

Knoxville should enjoy those boys. Three such talented athletes do not occur often on the same campus. Not oftener than once in two decades.

As the opening of the Southern league season gallops down on us, the boys around the circuit are beginning to commit themselves in print on "first division" and all that.

Freddie Russell, in Nashville, says the top four will be Nashville, Birmingham, Memphis and Chattanooga.

HANK CRISP.

Dr. Mike Denny and the other University of Alabama authorities made a fine start toward reorganizing the athletic staff at the Capstone when they selected Hank Crisp as athletic director to succeed to Wallace Wade's portfolio.

Coach Crisp is a young man of broad vision, rare tact and has a deep knowledge of football, basketball, baseball and track athletics. What is more essential a qualification, he has the confidence and admiration of the young men with whom he is associated.

It is understood a head football coach will be selected later, after long deliberation. But in elevating Coach Crisp to the directorship, the Alabama folks got off on the right foot.

Inman Park Meets Northwest Atlanta

Inman Park Baptist, one of the strongest teams of the Piedmont league, will furnish opposition to the Dixie league champions—Northwest Atlanta—in their opening game of the season Saturday afternoon at Edmand Park. Both teams are in midseason form and are capable of playing a fast brand of ball. A small admission fee will be charged to defray the expenses of the game. Three o'clock is the starting time.

Washington, Miami Drop Series Plans

MIAMI, Fla., April 9.—(UN)—The city of Miami and the Washington Senators failed to agree on the question of an annual series of exhibition games here today and the project was definitely dropped.

Flint Rhem Weds Teacher at Sumter

GREENVILLE, S. C., April 9.—(AP)—Flint Rhem, pitcher on the St. Louis Cardinal staff and former Clemson College star, and Miss Lula Dillard, were quietly married at Sumter tonight at 6:30 o'clock, according to word received by Mrs. W. L. Dillard, of Greer, mother of the bride.

The couple left immediately for St. Louis.

Mrs. Rhem was graduated from Anderson College, Anderson, S. C., last year, and has been teaching at Union High school, in Williamsburg county, near the home of the Cardinal twirler.

Father Wins.

Dr. O. R. Austin, of Aberdeen, Wash., once an athlete at Michigan, and his son, Harold, a University of Washington graduate, hold an annual family sprint championship. Father has won 8 of 10.

JOHNNY DAWSON LOSES AMATEUR GOLF STANDING

U. S. G. A. Rules Star Ineligible as He Withdraws at Pinehurst.

By Dixon Stewart.
United News Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, April 9.—(UN)—Johnny Dawson, of Chicago, one of the six best amateur golfers of the world, was declared ineligible for amateur competition by the United States Golf Association today.

While disclaiming any connection with Dawson's sudden withdrawal from the north-south amateur tournament at Pinehurst today, H. H. Ramsay, vice president of the U. S. G. A., announced through the United News that Johnny's connection with a sporting goods house had cost the Chicagoan his amateur standing.

INELIGIBLE.

"Under our rules, Dawson is not eligible for amateur competition," Ramsay said. "We had nothing to do with his withdrawal from the tournament at Pinehurst. That affair is not under our jurisdiction and is no concern of ours.

"The United States Golf Association has had no communication with anyone at Pinehurst concerning Dawson's amateur standing or his appearance in the tournament there."

Dawson's unexpected withdrawal from the north-south amateur, after he had tied for the qualifying medal with C. Ross Somerville, former Canadian amateur champion, led naturally to the conclusion that the U. S. G. A. had taken a hand in the matter. The statement of H. H. Ramsay disclaims that. But the association took the occasion to go on record to the effect that Johnny no longer can compete as an amateur in championships under its jurisdiction.

ONE OF BEST.

"It has got to a point where Dawson is one of the six best amateur golfers in the world," Ramsey admitted. "It seems to us, therefore, that his employment by a sporting goods house is fostered by his golfing skill. That makes him a professional under our rules."

Dawson was employed by the house in question before he displayed any golfing skill and prior to his entrance in competitive tournaments. He continued to work for this firm with only one interruption during his entire business career, and it was not until he became recognized as one of the outstanding golfers of the world that his amateur standing was questioned.

STARS IN ENGLAND.

He was Americas' leading representative in the 1929 British amateur tournament, reaching the semi-final round. Upon his return to the United States, he entered the national amateur tournament at Pebble Beach. His sensational play in practice rounds established him as one of the favorites for the championship, but at the suggestion of H. H. Ramsay, Dawson withdrew from the tournament.

Dawson understood that if he voluntarily withdrew from the national amateur tourney he would be allowed to compete in all other tournaments and that no question would be raised regarding his amateur status. Ramsay declares that the U. S. G. A. had no such intention and made no agreement to this effect with Dawson.

QUITS TOURNEY.

The Chicago star competed last week in the southeastern championship in Florida, winning the tournament. He entered the north-south tourney at the request of the Pinehurst tournament committee and played through the two qualifying rounds. His withdrawal was announced prior to the start of match play today.

The stocky built, blond curly-haired Chicagoan is one of the west's most popular competitors, and is, highly regarded as a player and sportsman. He was kept out of competition in 1927 by a broken ankle but since then has been a prominent figure in tournament golf.

In 1928 he took medalist honors in the western amateur tournament at Chicago and tied for eighth place in the qualifying round of the national amateur, being eliminated in the quarter-final round by T. Philip Perkins, British amateur champion.

Young Jackets Beat Boys' High Tankmen

Winning six out of seven first places, Georgia Tech freshmen swimmers defeated Boys' High, 41 to 25, Wednesday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. pool.

Captain Williams, of Tech, former Rome High athlete, was high point man with 12 points. He won the 50-yard free style, and the 100-yard free style swims and was a member of the winning relay team.

In the 100-yard free style swim, Williams set a new Y. M. C. A. pool record of 56.4 seconds.

John McGraw Seeks Douthit, of Cards

Hard Worker.

John Niggerling, Toronto recruit, likes work. He finished every game he started in the Mississippi Valley league last year. He won 15 and lost 4. He played 20 games at short, 24 at second.

There It Goes!

Nick Cullop, former Cracker outfielder who sought to be made a free agent during the winter, claiming the Crackers had "covered him up" in a deal with Brooklyn, returned to Spiller field yesterday with the Minneapolis club. In five times at bat he walked once, tripled once, struck out twice and grounded out once. He is shown above in batting practice before the game taking a look at a high one that has just left his bat. Photo by Bill Mason, Constitution staff photographer.

KAYE DON HOPES TO RACE TODAY

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., April 9. (AP)—With beach conditions better than at any time since Kaye Don, British racing car driver, has been here for an attempt at a new world speed record, it appeared fairly certain tonight that he would be able to make a trial at low tide tomorrow morning, officials of the meet said.

Don has been here since early in March with his Sunbeam Silver Bullet automobile in which he hopes to lower the present world speed standard of 231 miles an hour, now held by Sir Henry Segrave, also of England.

On several attempts at the record since March 15, Don has experienced considerable minor motor trouble and adverse beach and weather conditions.

His trials tomorrow, if he is able to make them, will be with his car in perfect condition for its maximum theoretical speed of some 250 miles an hour, he said, and with the beach course in better condition at low tide today than it has been in a month.

So far the best mark he has been able to establish under existing motor and beach conditions has been 189 miles an hour for the measured mile.

Aged Pilot Dies.

BRIGHTLINGSEA, England, April 9.—(UN)—Captain Edward Sycamore, 74, who piloted Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock II and Shamrock IV in races for the America's cup, died here today.

'Pinochle Gus' Glad Carey's Trip Is Over

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP)—Gus Nordstrom, pinochle sparring partner of Bill Carey for 30 years, is glad that the six-week trip of the Madison Square Garden president to South America is over.

"We wore out 14 pinochle decks and I lost $7.50," Nordstrom complained upon their return from negotiating a $100,000,000 railroad contract in Brazil. "The last day out Bill won most of my clothes, but I got back all but a few neckties."

Pro-Amateur Play Scheduled Today

Howard Beckett, professional at Capital City Club, and his amateur partner, yet to be selected, will play Gilbert Cornett, Candler Park professional, and a Candler Park amateur this afternoon at Candler Park in a postponed match of the pro-amateur golf league.

Beckett and an amateur will play J. C. Jackson, Stockade pro, and his amateur partner Friday afternoon at Capital City Club in a regular match of the league.

Tommy Wilson, Ansley Park professional, and Harry Stephens, Druid Hills professional, are scheduled to play another round in the league Friday afternoon on the Ansley Park. A one-day blind par tournament for visitors attending the annual convention of the American Chemical Society will be played today over the Druid Hills golf course. Harry Stephens, professional of the club, will be in charge of the tournament.

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Md., April 9.—(UN)—A horse entered in the second race at Bowie today threw two jockeys and returned to the paddock, yet those who backed it received $56.70 for each $2 investment in the mutuels.

E. F. Sanford's Chemin Des Dames unseated Jockey S. Renick so abruptly that the rider was injured and unable to remount. Jockey J. Serio was substituted, but he, too, was thrown heavily and Chemin Des Dames was withdrawn from the race.

Because Chemin Des Dames had been in the hands of the starter, bets on the Sanford entry stood. Chemin Des Dames was one of the field horses, and another field horse, Miss Dinwiddie, won the race and paid better than 27 to 1.

Millers-Crackers End Series Today

Minneapolis and Atlanta end their two-game series this afternoon at Spiller field. The game will begin at 3 o'clock. Joe Kiefer and Don Brennan are scheduled to pitch. The Millers owe the Crackers a ball player or cash on the Nick Cullop sale. Dobbs is mildly interested in one player but no player deal is expected. On Friday and Saturday the Macon club is here for games that will end the exhibition series.

By Ralph McGill.

Had it not been for a triple play Wednesday afternoon at Spiller field the fan flock might have gone away with a very pediculous opinion of the Crackers in their 8-to-1 defeat at the hands and bats of the Minneapolis Millers.

As it was, there was considerable elation over that play, which occurred in the third inning, and the slump of the Crackers received secondary consideration. A triple play is worth any man's 75 cents.

Bull Rauch, Cracker right-hander, had been shelled for four runs and a like number of hits in the first two innings. He started the third very badly. Jim Battle dropped a pop fly that left Emmer on first. Hack Miller walked and Cotter got his ribs in the way of a fast one.

UNEXPECTED PLAY.

The bases were full and the stage set for the triple play, which was, truth to tell, entirely unexpected.

Hughie McMullen lined to Frank Walker, the gray-eyed man of destiny, in center field. Walker came in fast, took the ball on the dead run and fell forward. He held to the ball for a step and clung to it further until he hit the ground. It was plainly a caught ball. As he rolled over, however, the ball fell from his glove.

Walker leaped up with the ball and threw to Jack Sheehan at second. Hack Miller was on his way home, never thinking the ball would be caught. He was doubled off first. Lee Cotter was running to second and arrived just in time to be tagged for the third out.

FLABBERGASTED FANS.

The fans were very flabbergasted and didn't really realize what had happened for a moment. That play gave them something to talk about, and the Crackers thereby escaped no end of harsh comment.

Minneapolis, in its victory, appeared to be brisker than any club Mike Kelly has brought through Atlanta in some time.

A couple of ex-Southern leaguers had quite a little to do with it. Delmar Lundgren, who threw for the Vols last season, stopped the Crackers in all their efforts to reach the plate across a span of four innings. In the fifth Arch Yelle hit a long drive into the Republican grandstand in left field for a home run. There wasn't a soul on base at the time. That was all. And Nick Cullop was some help afield and at bat.

GOOD PITCHING.

Del Lundgren, who has been going in fine fashion for the Millers, allowed but four hits in five innings. Which was nothing at all to what Morgan did. He followed Lundgren to the rubber and in the last four innings he had only 12 men face him and not one even looked like a base runner. Not a hit and not a run and not a man on base was his record for the last four innings.

Meanwhile, the Millers, after hammering Rauch for four runs, got to Lefty Wierman for a couple more and four hits.

Red Bates came along to finish the game for the Crackers. Had it not been for Umpire Johnston, who ran ahead of Yelle as he tried to get a foul pop, there would have been one less hit off him. And had it not been for two errors in the ninth the Millers would not have scored off him. As

GOODRICH GETS CHICAGO FIGHT

Atlantan Will Face Duke Tramell on Monday Night.

Ted Goodrich, the Atlanta welterweight, who is to fight the famous Sammy Baker here the night of April 22, will show himself in Chicago next Monday night in a bout with Duke Tramell.

The bout will be in the nature of a warm-up scrap for the Baker scrap here and a bow to big-time boxing in the Windy City. Goodrich decided the scrap would be valuable training; gymnasium work proves tiresome and he has had no fight since he knocked out Joe Dundee in such a hurry here recently.

"Chicago is Jackie Fields' home town," L. C. Warren, manager of Goodrich points out, "and I expect Ted to finish Tramell in short order and introduce himself favorably in the champion's own backyard. We would like nothing better than eventually to fight Fields in Chicago for the title."

Max Abelson, who is directing the Goodrich-Baker fight here April 22, plans to open a downtown ticket office some time in advance of the scrap. He is anticipating a record crowd when Goodrich goes after Sammy Baker.

Chicks Buy Vick; Waddey Wins Job

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 9.—Sam Vick, outfielder who made his professional debut here in 1917, is back in the fold of the Tribe. Vick was purchased from the Chattanooga club today and will join the Chicks at once.

With New Orleans in 1926-27 and '28, and with New Orleans and Chattanooga last season, Vick hit well over .300 each year. He was purchased because he is a right-handed hitter and on account of a preponderance of left-handed hitting outfielders on the list. Vick makes six outfielders, of which only four will be retained. The others are Frank Waddey, left-handed hitter, and Tex Jennes, right-handed hitter, who are certainties; Dick Tangeman and Joe Hutcheson, left-handed hitters here last season, and Peck Hamel, a right-handed hitter last season with Charlotte, of the South Atlantic league.

LOCAL SQUADS BIG FAVORITES TO WIN EVENTS

Many Strong Teams Entered Promise Plenty of Competition.

By Herb Clark.

Dixie's high and prep school athletes, playing second fiddle to the collegians in the eighth annual southern relay carnival at Grant field Friday and Saturday, nevertheless intend to make that second fiddle a most important and entertaining one.

The youngsters are to have the field at the Flats to themselves Friday. And they plan to make the most of their chances for fame and fun.

The field entered for the program is a large one and seems on the surface to have just as much class in its way as the college crowd has.

Tech High, Boys' High, McCallie, Baylor, Charlotte Central High, Darlington, Monroe A. and M., Berry and R. E. Lee High, generally regarded as the year-in-year-out class of the young field, have all entered strong squads for Friday's card and are expected to carry off their usual share of the honors.

Stars in the individual events are hard to pick. There is a large entry list for each event, with the implied idea of hot fights for the winning places and the natural thought that, in view of the fights, records may easily fall.

In the relays the battle is also expected to rage wildly. Titleholders and record-holders around in the entry lists and will be determined to hold fast to their laurels. And the opposition forces will be just as determined to steal the honors.

Morristown, champion in the two-mile relay, will be back. Its fight for retention will be opposed strenuously by Tech High and Berry school among others in the field of nine.

The half mile and mile relays are to be split into three sections for prep schools, Class A high schools and Class B high schools, the high school division being made on a basis of enrollment.

Baylor, holders of the prep title, will find their defending task made difficult by a strong team from Monroe A. and M. Six teams will go to the post.

R. E. Lee High's Jacksonville lads will be in another six-team field with Tech High and Boys' High as the outstanding competition.

U. S. B. and Martin institute seem to be the class of the nine quartets who are to travel the distance in the B race.

Baylor also holds the mile prep title and record and again hopes to prove their claims to supremacy. McCallie and Brewton-Parker should do most of the pushing in the seven-team race.

The "A" high school mile relay looks like a fight between Atlanta's major representatives, Tech High and Boys' High. The Smithies hold the present crown but the Purples will present a strong lineup which may end the Tech High reign. Five teams have filed for the race.

Morristown and Griffin seem to have an edge over the other six teams which will start in the B mile relay.

The sprint medley relay, an open race, is seen by the coaches as the hottest race of the day. Berry, R. E. Lee, Tech High and Boys' High all have speedy squads and are expected to battle for the money places Friday.

Hospital Reports Rockne Improved

ROCHESTER, Minn., April 9.—(AP) Knute Rockne, Notre Dame's football master mind, today was at Mayo brothers' clinic for a complete physical checkup.

Bronzed by the Florida sun during his two months' rest at Miami, Rockne enthusiastically looked forward to being up and around soon. He arrived here accompanied by Dr. C. J. Barborka, of the Mayo clinic, who was called to Florida to examine the noted coach. The physician said Rockne was completely recovered from an acute attack of asthmatic bronchitis, and was making progress in convalescence from the ailment in his right leg.

MIKE M'TIGUE REAL MYSTERY OF PRIZE RING

By Frank Getty.

NEW YORK, April 9.—(UN)—Reports from the southland tell of another crushing defeat administered to old Mike McTigue by a fifth-rater.

With all due respect to our elders, this McTigue business has been going along just about long enough.

Here is a venerable old gentleman, a church member and practically a grandfather, who insists upon cutting in upon a pastime obviously designed for the young and vigorous.

It is not that Mike McTigue needs the money. He has salted away plenty during his more than a quarter-century of ring activity. There never was anything free and easy about Michael where money was concerned, and if he hasn't the first dollar he ever earned he has 95 cents change.

This week Mike went down to defeat before a boxer known as Bob Godwin, the affair having been dragged in to draw attention to that popular health resort after Kaye Don decided to abandon his assaults upon the speed record of the world. This is far from the first defeat that has been inflicted upon the former world's champion since he lost his grip and started to fade.

Why does he go on fighting! Even his best friends can't tell you. McTigue made a lot of money in more than 25 years of fighting, and kept it. His is not a parallel case to that of Johnny Dundee, another ex-champion who has to go on with the game for his coffee and cakes—or the coffee and cakes of the bookmakers, which, in the sporting world, so unfortunately and so frequently amounts to the same thing.

Mike McTigue was, and the tense is intended, one of the most remarkable boxers of all time. He started his career as a youth with something of a reputation as a slugger, developed into the cleverest big fellow since Jack Johnson's prime, and wound up in a blaze of glory with a rejuvenated knockout wallop which amazed the fistic world. If Mike only had been cantent to stay wound up, he would have gone down in fistic annals as one of the best. But what is one to think of a fighter who goes on, apparently slightly goofy, seeking matches with set-ups who turn upon him and do everything but rend him limb from limb, a fighter who could beat the best of them in his prime and now is an easy knockout victim at the hands of the first fifth-rater who catches up with him.

If McTigue needed the money, the thing would be comprehensible, but investigation shows that he has more than plenty of "the ready," as they still call it in parts of his native Ireland.

Helen Wills Off For Tennis Wars

NEW YORK, April 9.—(UN)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, woman's tennis champion, will defend her English and French titles this year and will play for America in the Whitman cup matches against Great Britain, it was announced here tonight.

Mrs. Moody left San Francisco for the east tonight and will sail for England on the S. S. Berengaria, April 22.

Mansfield Battler Arrives in Atlanta

Ray Newton, Mansfield, Ohio, lightweight, arrived in Atlanta Wednesday night following a series of fights in Ohio and in Pennsylvania. Newton is managed by Sam Sobel and in his 120 fights, he has won more than 100 decisions.

Included in this list are victories over Phil Goldstein, of Philadelphia; Eddie Kid Wagner, C. Gordon and California Joe Gans, the colored lightweight, who was beaten recently in the city auditorium by Bob Lawson.

Alekhine, Capablanca Train for Big Match

Leading Chess Players Working Out Daily in Paris; Battle Slated for U. S.

PARIS, April 9.—(UN)—Alexandre Alekhine, world's chess champion, and Jose Capablanca, Cuban master, have started intensive training for their title match in the United States next winter.

Capablanca, the challenger, has the hardest workout. He must dicker with New York chess clubs to see which offers the best arrangements for the match.

Alekhine, on the other hand, has canceled all formal matches so he can concentrate on the big tussle with his old rival, and in his off-moments he gives friendly lessons to chess students.

So far neither of the players has lost any weight, although they have been kept on the jump dodging each other at the cafe. When Alekhine, exchanging pawns with a "sparring partner," is informed of the approach of his Cuban rival from whom he took the chess throne in Buenos Aires in 1927, he quickly leaves the chessboard and switches over to a game of contract bridge while one of his followers jots down the position of the men on the board. The game usually is played off later over a dinner table.

With all the cafes in Paris, it may appear odd that the Franco-Russian terror and the Havana wizard should both frequent the same place. But that is because Napoleon once played here before he took Europe for a chess-board, and a tradition has grown up about it. The table on which the little Corsican general worked out his gambits is still there, but it is now only a relic protected with brass railings. Then, too, the beer is good.

Both Alekhine and Capablanca believe in physical exercise as a means of becoming a good chess-player, because when a game goes over 60 moves, and many of them do, it is important to have the body in good condition to overcome nervous strain. Alekhine goes in for daily dozens when he gets up in the morning while Capablanca prefers a brisk walk before breakfast. They both get in at lease nine hours sleep daily, not counting naps between moves.

It is going to be a real match when they meet and people had better bring bedclothes along because it is sure to last all night.

All Records Broken; Made Course in 1

By Al Demaree,
Former Pitcher New York Giants.

Making holes in "one" has become a popular pastime but making an entire 18-hole course in one shot is something that doesn't happen every day in the week.

My old friend Jimmy Stahlman, of Nashville, Tenn., tells me a member of the Belle-meade C. C. of that city, hooked his drive off the first tee, hit a tree and his ball shot off and bounced on the 18th green and trickled into the cup for an ace. The member picked up his clubs and retired to the clubhouse and the 19th hole, saying he had enough glory for the day, shooting one course in 17 under even "ones."

Ring Lardner once made an ace on a 570-yard hole under similar conditions. Driving off on a par 4 hole his tee shot sliced and hit a tree and bounced into the can of the long hole, that was almost at a right angle to the tee from which he was driving.

"What are you going to do now?" he asked.

Two T. H. S. Boxers Are Knocked Out

As the semi-final round in the first annual Tech High school boxing tournament draws to a close, the boys are showing some real stuff. In the six fights Wednesday afternoon two knockouts were registered. Both of those came in the second round. Another of the fights went four rounds and the referee had to decide the winner after the judges failed to agree.

Edwin Booth knocked out Johnny Hadley, an end on the Smithie football team last year, in the second round. Both fighters had given all they had and were apparently out when Booth caught the football star on the chin for a knockout.

Ellis Barrett, Jr., son of Ellis Barrett, council member, won a close four-round decision over B. D. White. White was slow to get started but finished strong. Barrett's points in the first and fourth round won the decision.

Hal Knight won from Jeff Jones in the opening fight. It was a close decision with each fighter being credited with one of the first two rounds.

Sol Levine knocked out Harry Killah in the second round. J. B. Morgan won a decision over Elmer Wilson in another good fight and Walter Hinson won by default over Walker.

There will be no fights this afternoon or Friday afternoon.

it was they got two tallies in the ninth to run the total to eight.

Bates' appearance was his first of the season and he looked quite good. He is sure to be one of the Class "B" pitchers. The red-head has already won that place. His arm isn't quite ready, but will be. He should win quite a few games for the Dobbs club this season.

The Crackers were very evidently still in the fell clutches of the slump that gripped them Tuesday in the last of the Brooklyn series.

The club was not hustling. What was worse they were not hitting a lick. In the first inning Jack Sheehan and Jimmy Johnston hit, the latter getting a double. Langford singled in the fourth and in the fifth Yelle hit his home run. That was all.

Jimmy Johnston, probably the oldest man on the club, looks better than any man on it. He has been going great all spring and hasn't had a sore muscle.

Nick Cullop, the Big Blond Bear, walked and tripled in two times at bat. He struck out twice. Cullop has been going well all spring and is well thought of by Mike Kelly. So, for that matter, is Shine Cortasso, shortstop last year with Nashville, and Lundgren, the ex-Vol pitcher.

St. Louis Cardinals Head for Home Park

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 9.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals packed up their baggage today and started for home. They are due to reach St. Louis Friday and the following day will open a two-game series with the Browns. Manager Street expressed himself as well pleased with the progress made by the team during the spring training grind.

Killefer Likes Rookkie Southpaw

PONCA CITY, Okla., April 9.—(AP) Walter Stewart, Crossville, Tennessee's contribution to the St. Louis Browns' pitching staff, will probably get to work more games under the Killefer regime than he did under Dan Howley on the basis of his early season work. The big lefthander has shown to advantage thus far.

SWANN CAPS

Mix Yourself a Mint Julep Shave

It's easily done. Simply take a little BRISK Shaving Cream and a dash of warm or cold water—and Boy!—what a shave! It brings to mind all the coolness and exhilaration of that famous Kentucky potion. And there's a good reason why.

First of all, BRISK makes plenty of lather—and plenty of lather is the first requirement of a good shave! BRISK produces two to three times the lather because it absorbs two to three times the amount of water. That means not only a profuse lather, but one that stays moist on your face until you finish your shave.

Lubricates the Cutting Stroke

Secondly, BRISK, lubricates the cutting stroke of the razor. You know how a bit of soap on a saw eases its passage through a log—well, that's how BRISK smooths the path of the razor. The razor does not "pull," skip or chop, but glides sweetly over the skin, mowing down the hair cleanly at each stroke.

And as a finishing touch, BRISK acts as a balm. Leaves the skin soft and supple as a fine kid glove. Puts your face in good form for the day!

Once you get the flat, tin oval box of BRISK, open the lid and shave with BRISK, you will never "monkey" with anybody's tube, stick or powder.

BRISK, at 50c, is a good "buy" from the quantity as well as quality standpoint. You get an amazing lot of shaves from a box because you have to use so little.

'Gators Hand Bulldogs First Defeat of Season on Cinder Path

FLORIDA SCORES 77-49 VICTORY OVER GEORGIA

ATHENS, Ga., April 9.—The University of Florida track team startled a large gallery here this afternoon by defeating the hitherto unbeaten Georgia Bulldogs by a score of 77-49, on the new Bulldog cinder path.

The Bulldog cindermen were able to get only six first places and to tie for another. The Floridians showed a marked superiority and it was only due to the stellar work of the Georgia cindermen in the distance, the hurdles, the broad and high jumps, and the weight events that the Georgians were able to keep the fighting 'Gators from swamping them.

Captain Bob Young, of the Georgians, was, as usual, good for two first places, finishing far ahead of the field in the half-mile and the mile. Johnny Maddox, diminutive Georgia hurdler, who took three places in the last Georgia meet, battled his way to the tape ahead of the field in the hurdles, winning the 120 and 220 high hurdles handily. Sandy Sanford, Georgia's jumping ace, ran into hard luck this afternoon and lost the broad jump to Red Bethea, of Florida football fame, by the close distance of one-half an inch. Sanford tied for first in the high jump with Hall, of Florida. Carl Bernhardt, Georgia distance man, led the field the entire route to win the two-mile race.

Ed Sauls, of Florida, led his teammates to victory over the Georgians by taking first place in the shot put and the discus throw. Red Bethea, also one of the football stars on the 'Gator track team, won first place from Sanford in the broad jump.

Both Florida and Georgia will be represented in the Tech relays, to be held in Atlanta Saturday. The Georgians will be seeking revenge for their defeat of this afternoon, while the 'Gators will be attempting to prove further their superiority over the Bulldogs.

Coach H. J. Stegeman, of the Georgians, will take his entire squad over to Atlanta Saturday morning for the relays.

Two Busy Sophomores.

When Yale and Columbia opened the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball league on Wednesday one of the afternoon's busiest athletes was a shortstop in blue by the name of Albie Booth. When Harvard's ball team wades into league action shortly one of the Crimson mainstays will be a first baseman by the name of Wood.

Last wall Booth and Wood, both sophomores, were spread all over the sporting pages that covered football. Through the winter Booth was one of the busiest of the basketball athletes, while Wood was even busier playing hockey for Harvard. Now they are pegging a baseball around the diamond for a slight change.

If variety is the spice of life this pair are all cluttered up with spice. If they can only slip Mr. Wood a few spare moments he will step out for the Davis cup tennis team as he has been nominated on the Davis cup list.

In case Woods slips away for tennis, how can Booth match this new move? He may decide to toss the 16-pound shot or perhaps take a crack at Carnera. In any event it is hardly possible that young Booth is going to let young Wood get the jump in some extra sport.

Just what games these two will select for the summer season is not yet known. They will go in for swimming and golf but they may need some added attraction to kill time until another football season starts, when you will hear about them again in even larger type.

The Big Spot.

No one seems to know whether Carnera can fight or not, but that is an unimportant detail. They have all found out the big hulk can pack them in from the Atlantic to the Pacific, two of our best known oceans, and that is all they care to know. He is raking in the rupees and packing in the $10 bills by the barrel.

There is but one answer to all this—at least one big spot for the summer season where the financial killing will be a clean-up. This may come against Campolo—it may be against Dempsey—it may be against the winner of the Sharkey-Schmeling fight.

But the explosion will take place and in spite of anything anyone can do about it the big blast will pack any arena in the country. You would have thought by this time that he would have worn out the sucker list, but he hasn't even warmed it up. He hasn't scratched the top layer.

The big argument today is whether Dempsey will make his return against the Italian mastodon or wait to get a crack at Schmeling in case the German out taps Sharkey in June. It will be one of this pair, for which he will collect something between $600,000 and $1,000,000. Any sum between these two amounts is too much to be pushed aside, even if you are as strong as Dempsey.

The Fastest Pitcher.

"With the hickory blossoms about to bloom again," writes L. P., "help settle an argument—who is now the fastest pitcher, Vance of Brooklyn, or Grove of Philadelphia?"

When both are at the peak of speed you couldn't measure the difference with a split eyelash. But Dazzy Vance was born in 1893 and Bob Grove was born in 1900.

Those seven years between 30 and 37 have something to say when you begin to talk of raw speed. Grove today can push more fast balls through than Vance can. But he can't add anything to write about to the Dazzler's fastest on a good day.

Today's Golf Round-up.

Tommy Armour's iron play has been one of the marvels of golf so I asked him for the benefit of the golfing contingent who take their tips on a fly to offer one suggestion the average sufferer might think about. Just one—

"Better use and more use of the left hand and arm," he said. "this is the only way one can feel that he is throwing the club head out through the ball. Let him feel that he is hitting away from himself, not contracting his arms and cutting across as he reaches the ball.

"This is one of the greatest of all faults in iron play. It can only be cured by a straight, firm left arm, on the back swing and the down swing, to keep the club head in place.

"A good left arm means both power and control. But few have it—because they never think about its importance. They only know how to crash with the right and this usually swings the club head in—not outward as it should be swung."

Charlotte Bows to Dodgers; A's Lose as Phils Even Series.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., April 9.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Robins pummeled the ball for 15 hits today to take a 9 to 3 decision over the Charlotte Club of the South Atlantic league.

After the game the Brooklynites boarded a special train for home where they open a two-game series with the Red Sox tomorrow.

GOOD GOLF by Charley Horton — GOLF'S GREATEST TEACHER

It is not good golfing mental attitude to have in mind the idea of getting additional clubhead hit by jerking the middle body, or hips, into the swing as the elubhead goes through, partly because the thought of especially exerting any particular part of your body in any particular place in the the golf swing is bad business to monkey with. The golf swing is, as I have so often pointed out, an exertion of action, smoothness being the basic attribute always to strive for. Now any effort to make your hips do something in the swing must at the same time interfere with the smoothness of your action, and you can cut it down in one-two order that any action which interferes with smoothness will do you more harm than can be offset by the additional driving power you would hope thus to generate. The best thing you can do with hip-action is to put it out of your mind and forget it, at least while swinging. I say that hip action is no determining factor whatever in any golf swing.

Catcher Undergoes Brain Operation

ROCHESTER, Minn., April 9.—(AP)—Bob McMenemy, catcher for the Milwaukee club of the American association last year, was operated on Tuesday for a brain tumor. At the request of McMenemy his condition was made known only to his club.

McMenemy was with the Milwaukee club of the American association last year but was later sold to the Little Rock club of the Southern association.

The Pirates found Brown for 10 hits, while they were able to secure but two off Burdick. Bool, with a triple and a single, and Chapman, with a double and a single, were the leading hitters for the Pirates and Bears, respectively. The two clubs play here tomorrow.

Barons Win, 7-1.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 9.—(AP) Winning the three-game series with the Milwaukee Brewers, of the American association, with a 7-to-1 victory in the rubber game today, the Birmingham Barons will be hosts tomorrow to the Cleveland Indians in the first of a two-game series.

Bob Hasty, Birmingham veteran hurler, went the route today, giving Brewers only four hits in the nine innings while his mates were getting 10 hits off Gearin and McIntire.

Babe Walks.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 9.—(AP) With Babe Ruth in the lineup but a substitute running bases for him, the Yankees trimmed the Nashville Volunteers of the Southern association, 8 to 3 today. It was the Yanks' 16th victory in 26 exhibition games.

Ruth walked three times, Karlon taking over the base-running assignment on each occasion because of the Bambino's "charleyhorse." In two other trips to the plate, the Babe struck out and grounded out.

Tech Courtmen Dine Tonight

Georgia Tech's 1930 basketball squad, which completed a fairly successful season in the Southern conference tourney early in March, will meet for the last time at the Atlanta Athletic Club at 6:30 o'clock tonight.

The Jackets will meet to receive awards for the season and to elect a captain and discuss plans for 1931.

GRIMES TRADED FOR LEE JONES

BOSTON, April 9.—(AP)—The trading of Burleigh Grimes, star Pittsburgh pitcher, who has been a holdout all spring, to the Boston Braves for Percy Lee Jones, a left-handed pitcher, and a "large cash consideration" was announced here tonight by Emil Fuchs president of the Boston National league club.

Grimes, right-handed ace of the Pirates' pitching staff, refused to join that club at the training camp this spring when his demands for a two-year contract calling for a $20,000 salary were refused by the Pittsburgh club officials.

President Fuchs refused to give the exact figures of the cash consideration involved in the Grimes trade but said it was the second largest sum the Braves have ever paid for a ball player. Two years ago Fuchs said he gave the New York Giants $100,000 for Rogers Hornsby, whom he later traded to the Chicago Cubs.

Jones, the southpaw pitcher, included in the deal, came from the Cubs in the Hornsby trade last year and had a poor season with the Braves.

TECH GOLFERS SUFFER SEASON'S FIRST DEFEAT

Golfers of the University of Alabama defeated Georgia Tech 15 1-2 to 2 1-2, Wednesday afternoon on the East Lake course for their second victory over Atlanta colleges, Emory having been defeated Tuesday afternoon at Druid Hills.

It was the first time that Georgia Tech's golfers have been beaten in match play this season.

Sam Perry, southern amateur champion, and Harry Pritchett, southern intercollegiate champion, tied for low score in the 18-hole match with 73 each, one over par. Perry defeated Charley Brumby, of Tech, 3 up, and Pritchett beat Scott Hudson, Jr., of Tech, 3 up.

Ed Herron, Tech star, lost to Barfield, runner-up to Perry, in the Alabama championship last year, and Carl Harrison saved Tech from complete rout by ending all square with Vaughn, of Alabama.

The Nassau system of scoring was used.

Bulldogs Meet Alabama Today.

ATHENS, Ga., April 9.—The Georgia golfers, victorious in their first match of the present season, will take on the University of Alabama golfers in a match at the Athens Country Club here tomorrow afternoon. Captain Johnny Oliver will lead his men in the match against the Crimson Tide.

Rookie Disposition Worries McCarthy

KANSAS CITY, April 9.—(AP)—Manager Joe McCarthy, of the Chicago Cubs, freed from worry over whether Rogers Hornsby and Charlie Grimm will be ready for the opening of the National league champions, is pondering on who among his recruits will be cast adrift at the close of the series with the Kansas City Blues.

Five pitchers must go and Ed Lautenbacher, Henry Grampp, George Bell, Lou Warneke and Bud Teachout appear to be headed for other places.

Residents of the Davis Airlines' route between Atlanta and Birmingham were startled and alarmed Wednesday afternoon to see—as they thought—a burning airplane, its motor dead, "plunging earthward." But their fears were groundless. The plane wasn't on fire and, though its motor was dead, it wasn't "plunging earthward" but was gliding down to a perfect landing in a handy cornfield. George Shealy, Davis pilot, was making the afternoon run to Atlanta in one of the company's J-6 Travel Airs, when, about 12 miles west of Anniston, something went "haywire" in the motor and it gasped its last and expired. Hot oil sprayed out over the cylinders and created a dense cloud of smoke which gave rise to the "fire" alarm. From 4,000 feet, Shealy had ample time to pick out a suitable, though quite impromptu, landing field, and he put his ship down without damage to the plane or injury to its two passengers.

The two passengers came on into Atlanta by train, none the worse for their experience. George Shealy, however, retraced his steps to Birmingham by air. Art Brown, another Davis pilot, making his regular run to the Alabama city, spied the big monoplane in the field and landed alongside it to offer his services, if needed. He and Shealy tied down the stranded ship and left it for the night, Brown taking off easily and continuing the flight with his additional passenger. A Davis Airlines mechanic this morning will fly to the scene of the force-down in a Curtiss Robin piloted by Paul Davis; the balky motor will be pulled out and a new one shipped from Atlanta. Officials of the company said Wednesday night that the necessary repair work would be completed in a day or so.

Atlanta is to be one of the major routes of the U. S. Aerial Express Lines, Ltd., first of a group of operating subsidiaries of the recently announced $30,000,000 Aircraft Finance Corporation of America. Major routes will run from New York to Los Angeles, by way of Richmond, Atlanta, New Orleans and El Paso; from New York to Los Angeles by way of Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Kansas City and Albuquerque, and from New York to San Francisco by way of Cleveland, Chicago, Omaha, Cheyenne and Salt Lake City. Except for the coastwise lines, a number of north-and-south systems which are to be put into operation are to serve as tributary or "feeder" routes. The company forecasts a not-distant future when vast argosies of freight will fill our skies. The company plans ultimately to operate five to seven-ton ships, powered by Diesel engines; proposes to render 36-hour coast-to-coast service; stresses luxury, delicate and perishable freight as most likely pay loads, and plans organization of huge gathering systems for clearing cargoes through given airports.

Few visitors have been recorded at Candler field during the last two days. Joe R. Johnston, "flying traveling salesman" for the Waterproof Paper Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio, dropped in for one of his semi-monthly visits in his Warner Command-aire. He'll probably be around for several days. Harold S. Hull, of Syracuse, N. Y., flying there from Florida in his Buhl Airsedan; N. N. Prentiss, of Brookfield, Mass., in a Hisso Waco, and Lieutenant D. D. Arnold and Flight Sergeant S. L. Jennings, who came over from Maxwell field for a brief stay, were the only other visitors.

For the second consecutive month, March broke all previous records for the volume of air mail flying over the New York-Atlanta-Miami air mail route, operated for the government by Eastern Air Transport, Inc., it was announced by the company Wednesday. A total of 48,782 pounds, 6 ounces of mail was carried between cities on this 1,572-mile airway in the month just ended. February, too, had broken all previous records for mail flying over this route. March of this year exceeded by 7,543 pounds the amount that flew over the route in the same month last year, and surpassed February's poundage by exactly 1,100 pounds. There being an average of 40 letters to the pound, this means that in March a total of 1,951,280 letters flew over the New York-Atlanta-Miami airway, or a daily average of slightly more than 62,920 letters. Each day during the month an average of 1,573 pounds of mail was flown.

With two months in succession already having been record-breakers, there is every prospect of April, too, smashing all previous records over this route. The double schedule between New York and Atlanta, the night service through Florida, and the addition of Charlotte, N. C., to the service, all became effective on April 1. With the beginning of these new services, Eastern Air Transport began flying 5,066 miles daily, placing it third among air transport companies flying on schedule with air mail, being exceeded by the two operators of the transcontinental route. The company holds fourth place in the amount of mail carried, being exceeded by those two companies and the Salt Lake City-Los Angeles route. It is first in frequency of service, six mail planes now being operated each day between Washington and New York, four between New York and Atlanta, and four in the two Florida services.

Trades Federation Favors Ward System

Opposing the proposal to abolish the ward line system of electing members of city council, the Atlanta Federation of Trades, at its meeting Wednesday night, instructed its executive committtee to appear before the city democratic executive committee and urge that the present system by retained.

The federation's action came after extended discussion of the matter, during the course of which it was declared that to elect councilmen by a citywide vote would be to practically bar from office candidates not able financially to make a citywide race.

Another feature of the meeting was adoption of resolutions urging United States Senators William J. Harris and Walter F. George, along with the Georgia delegation in the house of representatives, to support the Capper-Reed vocational education bill which increases the federal appropriation for vocational training.

Flyer Divorced.

LAS VEGAS, Nev., April 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Ruth Thurston Maitland was granted a divorce today from Lieutenant Lester J. Maitland, army flier. She charged mental cruelty. Maitland with Lieutenant Albert Hegenberger in 1928 made the first flight to Hawaii from the United States. Mrs. Maitland has been living here under her maiden name, Ruth Thurston.

PETER STUMBLES OVER SOMETHING.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

You'll find that chance some part will play
In all you do throughout the day.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit sat on the edge of the Smiling Pool, no wiser than he was before. Jerry Muskrat had gone off about his business and he hadn't explained how those Duck feathers happened to be there on the edge of the Smiling Pool. He had said that there had been no more Ducks since the Quacks had left for the north. Yet here were these feathers newly dropped. Peter gave up his idea of going down to the Big River. He turned and went back to the little alder swamp at the head of the Smiling Pool. There he sat down to think things over.

But the more Peter thought, the more puzzled he became. Peter knew that Mr. and Mrs. Quack and their flock had gone north some time before. Anyway, he thought he knew it, which amounted to the same thing. Could it not be that there had been some more Ducks visit the Smiling Pool unknown to Jerry Muskrat? That must be it. Peter was sure of it.

Having settled the matter in his own mind in this way, Peter started on. He began to hop along rather aimlessly, for he had no place in particular to go. He was still thinking about those feathers and not paying strict attention to where he was going. So it was he stumbled over something and got the worst fright he had had in many a day. You see, the thing he stumbled over suddenly came to life and Peter was struck two or three hard blows, and beaten with some stiff wings, before he could get to his feet and run away. It was all so sudden and unexpected that he really didn't know what had happened.

He didn't run far, for he soon found that he was not being followed. He stopped and looked back. Then he rubbed his eyes and stared. "Well," said a familiar voice, "what are you staring at?"

For a full minute Peter could'nt find his tongue. When he did, he stammered, "Is-is-is that you, Mrs. Quack?" he inquired.

"You ought to know whether or not it is," retorted Mrs. Quack sharply, for it really was Mrs. Quack. "What do you mean by being so heedless, Peter Rabbit? Can't a person sit quietly, attending to her own business, without being stumbled over? If I didn't break one of those eggs, it will be a wonder."

"What eggs?" asked Peter innocently.

"My eggs, of course" retorted Mrs. Quack. "What did you suppose I was sitting there for, if it wasn't to keep those eggs warm?"

"I didn't suppose you were sitting there at all," replied Peter meekly. "Do you mean to say that you have a nest, Mrs. Quack?"

"For goodness sake, Peter, what would I have eggs for if I didn't have a nest?" retorted Mrs. Quack tartly. "Now that you know about it, I hope that you will keep that busy tongue of yours still. Mr. Quack and I have kept that nest a secret. You were the first one to discover it. If you hadn't stumbled over me, you would not have found it. Now I hope you'll prove the true friend that I think you are and keep that secret."

"I will!" cried Peter eagerly. "I will, Mrs. Quack! I don't tell anybody, not even Mrs. Peter. But I thought you and Mr. Quack had gone North with the rest of the flock."

"That is where you thought wrongly," replied Mrs. Quack. "You see we are right here."

TARZAN AND THE JEWELS OF OPAR No. 22

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan drew himself out upon the wet floor of a tunnel. Along this he passed. But now he went more warily. The shock of the icy water had somewhat cleared his confused brain. A slippery stairway ended the passage and up this he made his way. It turned back and forth many times, leading at last into a small circular room. Curious, the ape-man investigated. Several metal-bound, copper-studded chests constituted the sole furniture.

Tarzan let his hands run over these. He pulled at the hinges, and, by chance, raised the cover of one. An exclamation of delight broke from his lips at sight of the pretty contents. Gleaming and glistening, lay a great tray of brilliant stones. Tarzan, reverted to the primitive by his accident, had no conception of the value of his find. To him the jewels were but pretty pebbles. He plunged his hand into them and let the priceless gems filter through his fingers.

He went to the other chests, all full of precious stones, and, taking a handful of the sparkling cut ones, he filled a pouch. Unwittingly the ape-man had stumbled upon the forgotten jewel room of Opar. For ages it had lain buried beneath the temple of the Flaming God, midway in one of the inky passages which the superstitious descendants of the ancient sun worshippers had either dared not or cared not to explore.

Tiring of this diversion, Tarzan took up his way along the corridor which led from the jewel room by a steep incline. Winding and twisting, but always tending upward, he came nearer and nearer to the surface. And now he found himself in a brilliant sunlit scene. Tarzan viewed the vine-covered columns in mild wonderment. He tried to remember. Had he not once been here before? He was not sure.

Judge Kinkead, Noted Ohio Jurist, Dies on Visit Here

Judge E. B. Kinkead, 68, of Columbus, Ohio, one of America's outstanding legal authorities and close personal friend of General Charles G. Dawes, died at the home of his only daughter, Mrs. W. W. Alexander, of 941 Clifton road, shortly after 9 o'clock Wednesday night.

Judge Kinkead, had come south to visit his daughter, early in the fall and remained here spending a prolonged vacation. He died after a week's illness from a heart attack. Funeral services are to be held in Columbus on Friday.

At the time of his death he was the presiding judge of the court of common pleas of Franklin county at Columbus, a position he had held for 18 years. Prior to becoming a judge he practiced law for 17 years, and for the past 24 had been professor of law at the University of Ohio.

In connection with this work he had written a number of books on the 15 aspects of law, and all of his text-books, especially one on pleadings, have been accepted as authority and are used in law schools over the entire country.

While practicing law he first became known as the first man to ever prosecute the Standard Oil Company. In this case he represented the state of Ohio. Another famous case in the legal annals of Ohio was a bribery case of public officials about 15 years ago, when Judge Kinkead again served as prosecutor. The dictaphone was first used in court in connection with this case.

He was born in Belpre, Ohio, and married Miss Nellie M. Snyder, of Canada. He was educated at Marietta college at Marietta, Ohio, the oldest college west of the Alleghenies. At that institution he was awarded his A. B., M. A. and L.L. D. degrees. He was a member of the Delta Upsilon Society.

While at Marietta college Judge Kinkead numbered among his close personal friends former Vice President Charles G. Dawes, a classmate who was later to become vice president of the United States. At the time General Dawes was notified of his nomination to the vice presidency, Judge Kinkead was with him on the former's private car.

Judge Kinkead is survived by his widow of Columbus, Ohio; his daughter, Mrs. W. W. Alexander, wife of Dr. W. W. Alexander, of Atlanta; a brother, Dr. W. W. Kinkead, of Columbus, and three grandchildren, Edgar Kinkead, John Winton and William McLees Alexander, all of Atlanta.

Judge Kinkead was an active Mason, a member of the First Congregational church of Columbus, and was a member of the Columbus Athletic Club and a number of civic organizations.

Earth 1,645,000,000 Years Of Age, Uranium Reveals

USE OF RARE METAL EXPLAINED BY PIGGOT

BY WILLIAM O. KEY, JR.

Uranium, a rare metal discovered during the eighteenth century, and used as the official timepiece to mark off the aeons that have passed since the world was flung from the sun, has decided that this planet's age may be as great as 1,645,000,000, years, Dr. C. S. Piggot said following a lecture before the analytical division of the American Chemical Society here Wednesday.

This is the greatest acceptable estimate of the age of the world, and was reached following analysis of specimens of the metal, a producer of ordinary lead, in Ceylon.

"Of course," Dr. Piggot explained, "this may not be anything near an accurate estimate and probably isn't. But it is the estimate based on the only thing geologists have to depend on in their study, and quite likely is reliable."

Other estimates show heavy discrepancies, he pointed out, one in particular being worthy of scientific consideration following the analysis and study of two separate gram-lot specimens of uranium taken in Brizil, both of which resulted in the scientific deduction that the "geologic time"—or age of the earth was 600,000,000 years. It was regarded as the more remarkable in that each of these two Brazilian specimens came from widely separated and vastly different geological formataions.

"Time," Dr. Piggot told his fellow chemists, "can be estimated only by reference to some change, and geologic time (age of the earth) is no exception. Any change demands a beginning and an ending condition; and a rate."

In this connection the scientist explained that all specimens on which the computation of age is based were formed after the earth had broken away from the sun and only after the planet on which we now live had cooled sufficiently to allow the formation of uranium.

"Geologists, of course," he explained further, "base the beginning of all things from the era of cooling-off of the earth. That is the entire birth of geologic time."

He declared that in the estimating of time three major considerations must be uppermost in the scientist's mind—the denudation and sedimentation period, the salting of the ocean, and radioactive disintegration of uranium into lead.

He said this deduction had arisen from the determination that all uranium minerals show signs of water action which concentrated them in small amounts—large enough to enable the geologist to obtain them in at least gram lots.

Other ages of the earth as computed on specimens of uranium in various parts of the world, he declared, gave the "geologic time" as 1,500,000,000 years, which was set forth by scientists after examining uranium deposits taken from the region of the Black Hills, in South Dakota; and another, by an amateur geologist in Australia which had the figure as high as 2,000,000,000 years. This latter estimate, he declared, while not impossibly incorrect, had not been accepted by leaders in science as reliable.

DEMOCRATS TO GIVE JEFFERSON BANQUET

A dinner of democrats in the fifth congressional district in honor of the birthday of Thomas Jefferson, will be held at the Henry Grady hotel at 7 o'clock the night of April 14, it was announced Wednesday by R. J. Reynolds, state secretary of the Young Men's Democratic League of Georgia, which is sponsoring the affair.

The local dinner will be one of about 1,200 which will be held over the entire United States under auspices of the Democratic National Executive Committee. On that night Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, president of the University of Virginia, will speak over a nation-wide radio hook-up on the life of Jefferson and many of the dinners will tune in on the address.

It is planned to have a dinner in each congressional district of Georgia, and the fifth district function will be an elaborate affair. On the local program will be Justice James K. Hines, supreme court justice; John S. Cohen and Clark Howell, Sr.

All democrats, whether members of the Young Men's Democratic League or not, are invited. Men and women are urged to attend. Tickets may be obtained from Mr. Reynolds at 313 Palmer building.

BIG BETHEL PLANS CITY-WIDE TAG DAY

A citywide tag day for the benefit of the building fund of Big Bethel A. M. E. church will be held in Atlanta Saturday, April 12. The goal set by R. B. Williams, in charge of the campaign, has been placed at $5,000.

He requests that all members of the church and friends who are interested in the tag day and who wish to serve as workers report at the church at 8:30 o'clock Saturday morning. On Sunday at special group rally meetings to be held at the time of the usual morning and night services Rev. R. J. Dawson, pastor, will hear the reports and special music is to be offered by the Big Bethel choir.

HOLIDAYS DECLARED FOR STOCK EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP)—The boards of governors of the New York Stock Exchange and the curb exchange late today voted to close the exchanges on Good Friday and on the Saturday following, April 18 and 19.

This action will give members and employes of the exchanges a three-day holiday over the Easter week-end.

A number of the commodity markets, such as the cotton, coffee and sugar, raw silk and hide exchanges also will be closed on Good Friday and the following day, and it is expected that many of the other stock and commodity exchanges of the country will take similar action.

BILL OFFERED TO END 'PATRONAGE' ABUSES

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(Special.)—Pursuant to the announcement he made in connection with his recent semi-final report on southern patronage conditions, Senator Smith W. Brookhart, republican of Iowa, today laid before the upper chamber a comprehensive bill designed to make it a criminal offense to solicit political funds from postmasters and other federal employes.

The bill is the outgrowth of the extensive investigation conducted by the Brookhart committee of patronage conditions in Georgia and other southern states, where, it was charged, postmasterships and similar offices have been "bartered and sold" for a number of years by republican patronage dispensers.

The present law on the subject is limited in scope, applying only to the solicitation of funds on federal property. Senator Brookhart would amend this to make it apply to any person who may "directly or indirectly solicit or receive, or be in any manner concerned in soliciting or receiving, for any political purpose whatever" such funds.

The proposed amendment reads:

"That Section 118 of the act entitled "An act to codify, revise and amend the penal laws of the United States," approved March 4, 1909, as amended, is further amended to read as follows:

"Section 118. It is unlawful for any senator or representative in, or delegate or resident commissioner to congress, or any candidate for or individual elected as, senator, representative, delegate or resident commissioner, or any officer or employe of the United States service from money derived from the treasury of the United States, or any other person, or any political committee, to directly or indirectly solicit, receive, or be in any manner concerned in soliciting or receiving, for any political purpose whatever, from any officer or employe of the United States, or from any person receiving any salary or compensation for services from money derived from the treasury of the United States, any assessment, subscription, or contribution, whether in the form of notes payable in installments or of pledges involving more than one payment, or in any other form whatever."
